WORK AT SCHOOL—The work of renovating the Queen Square School lavatories is expected to be completed this week. The most up-to-date equipment has been used in remodeling this section of the building. Better lighting and additional wash basin facilities have been added and the floor has been covered with braco mastic. Mr. John Danton, the School manual training instructor is in charge of the work.

CHILDREN ENJOY PICNIC—A picnic at Dalry Beach was greatly enjoyed by the children of the Hillsboro Square district yesterday afternoon. Many of the children's parents attended the outing arranged by the Charlottetown Playground Commission. The King Square youngsters will be the guests at a similar picnic today and tomorrow it will be the Connaught Square group. The children are being conveyed back and forth by trucks. They leave each afternoon at one o'clock.

FERRY REPAIRED—Flattened blades on one of the propellers and burned out bearings put the ferry Dunning at Wood Islands out of service on Sunday. The propeller blades were broken when the ship struck a sunken object in docking Saturday about 2.30. She made the trip at three, but the propeller damage caused heavy pressure on one of the engines, thus burning out the bearings. The boat after arriving at Carleton proceeded to Pictou immediately, had the damage repaired and returned to service yesterday afternoon.

LEAVES FOR OTTAWA—Mr. Leo McIsaac, secretary of the Prince Edward Island Federation of Agriculture travelled to Ottawa yesterday by plane to attend agricultural meetings during the next few days. On Wednesday, Mr. McIsaac will attend a meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada which will deal with dairy matters including cheese and the "marginal appeal" to the Privy Council.

Rotary Director Addresses Ch'town Club Luncheon

Rotarian Tom MacNabb, Saint John, N. B., Director of Rotary International, was the speaker at the Charlottetown Rotary Club luncheon yesterday.

Introduced by Rotarian P. W. Turner, Rotarian MacNabb explained that the honour of being the only Canadian Director of Rotary International was conferred upon him after Percy Turner had declined to accept for personal reasons. Rotary head office kept close tabs upon the itinerary and work of the fourteen directors who while they come from many different countries, do not represent those countries.

Rotary International now has membership in 64 nations practically all of which were represented at the International Conference held last June in New York. Rotarian MacNabb said he had been called upon to address this huge gathering of 20,000 and he had gained much by his association with those he had met.

Director MacNabb advised the Charlottetown club to select for membership men with personality. Officers of the club should be men who are able and willing to put time on their jobs.

Closely Associated

Rotary and the United Nations Organization are closely associated. "We are the only organization which has free access to the deliberations of the council, and we have not in favour of human rights and the United Nations."

Selections of suitable "internes" are made from all member nations by the U. N. O.

The speaker recalled having been present at a meeting of U. N. O. during a debate upon human rights. A Russian delegate was gesturing angrily and with gesticulations Rotarian MacNabb picked up the earphones provided and plugged in for the English translation. The Russian delegate was not in favour of human rights and was evidently stalling by moving an amendment for the admission of Spain. He spoke for a long time in favour of human rights and adding nothing of value to the debate. When he sat down, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the chairman, said she was glad to see an amendment, as for purposes of supporting the human rights resolution it was not necessary that countries be members of the Organization.

The bye-laws stated that any nation of goodwill and brotherly feeling could endorse the declaration, and she hoped that Russia and all satellite countries would do so. Director MacNabb said he had a feeling that the chairman had nearly cut the Russian's suspenders.

There are plenty of stories going the rounds at the U. N. O. headquarters in New York, but this one served to show the type of blocking tactics usually employed by the Russians. An American engineer visited Moscow and was shown a new subway. The enthusiastic guide pointed out how clean the station and tubes were kept in contrast to the New York subway. The walls were decorated with murals. Nothing like that in America, he said. Look at those rails. They are better than your Pittsburgh steel. Very fine said the American engineer. Tell me how many trains a day pass through here? The Russian said: "You're in North Carolina? returned the Russian."

Same Objective

Rotary and the U. N. O. are both working toward the same end, and differ only in the field in which they work. The U. N. O. is striving for international friendship in the national field, while Rotarians are working with the individuals of those countries. He said he believed that the Rotarians are approaching the problem at the root for without the friendship of the individuals there was little hope of national friendship.

Chairman yesterday were Rotarians Newman McLellan and Ernie Coffin.

The club was also entertained by two finely rendered solos by Mr. Lorne McLellan, son of the chairman, his accompanist was Mr. William Rogers, son of Rotarian K. S. Rogers. Miss Louise Cox

On Thursday he will attend a meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and on Friday, a meeting of the "Hot Producers' Committee of the C. F. A. He expected to return to Charlottetown on Saturday.
