LIKE FATHER LIKE SON

Fully aware that he has a difficult path marked out for him, twenty-year-old Lt. Francis Richard LaFleche is off to the wars. He follows in the footsteps of his soldier father, Major General the Hon. L. R. LaFleche, D.S.O., Minister of National War Service. Word of his safe arrival in England has just been received by General LaFleche who is himself one of Canada's outstanding soldiers of the last war. The young officer will serve in his father's old regiment, the famed "Van-Doos," officially known as the Royal 22nd Regiment. Lt. LaFleche is shown here with his proud parents shortly before he sailed for Canada. Starting his military training at the age of sixteen with the University of Ottawa, C. O. T. On Saturday afternoon the fire alarm was rung in for a fire that had been set by children burning grass. It had crept in below the Orange Hall and had it not been for the quick work of the firemen the wooden building would have been burned down. Another grass fire which got out of bounds was nearer the shore. It took much hard work to beat it out and ran the whole length of a large field. Luckily the wind kept it away from a nearby fox ranch where the excitement of fire at this time of year might mean a very definite loss. These fires should be a warning to parents to keep matches away from children and allow them to set no fires unless under constant supervision.

"The Stewart's" Is Gay Comedy Of Newlyweds

When a boy without a dime in his pocket marries a girl without a brain in her head, and they try to live on love and a budget, the end result is bound to be an appealingly human "Meet the Stewart's," Columbia's new romantic comedy at the Capitol Theatre, is exactly that, a zesty joyously refreshing marriage-round of love and laughter.

Co-starring William Holden and Frances Dee, with a splendid supporting cast and directed by Alfred E. Green, "Meet the Stewart's" captures all the gay warm-heartedness which held the enthralled attention of Ladies Home Journal readers when Elizabeth Dunn's glowing "Candy" stories first appeared in that magazine.

Supporting Holden and Miss Dee are such veteran character actors as Grant Mitchell, Ann Gillis, Roger Clark, Marjorie Gateson, Anne Revere and Danny Mann.

The Stewart's—Candy and Mike—find themselves in one financial jam after another. A daughter of wealth, Candy is unable to live as cheaply as one, even if they do have twice as much fun. And so Candy goes to work. To repay Candy's many debts she has managed to run up in virtually no time at all.

Candy's experiences as a career woman are of lesser importance to "Meet the Stewart's," although they do culminate in a climactic denunciation of the Stewart's domesticity.

Mike barges off on his own; his return, months later, is heralded by a free-for-all of comic proportions in which both he and Candy come off second-best. They wind up in jail and ultimately, in each other's arms.

"Meet the Stewart's" merits its critical raves.
