COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT ST. DUNSTAN'S

Largest Graduating Class in History of Institution. Interesting Programme Carried Out.

There was a large attendance at the commencement exercises of St. Dunstan's University yesterday afternoon. The program, which has already appeared in the Guardian, was carried out successfully and was augmented by a brief address from His Grace Archbishop O'Leary of Edmonton, His Lordship Bishop O'Leary of Charlottetown, Lieut. Governor McKinnon, Hon. W. M. Lea, Commissioner of Agriculture. The graduating class this year was the largest in the history of the institution.

Following the opening march by the students orchestra came the reading of the Alumni Prize Essay, by Mr. William O'Leary. The subject of this essay—"The Safeguards of Society against Bolshevism"—was one which called for a thorough knowledge of the trend of modern ideas, and exhibited in its composition sound judgment as well as literary skill. Mr. O'Leary's reading of his essay was marked by clearness and vigor.

After a vocal solo by Mr. Westford Gordon the medals and prizes were distributed by His Lordship Bishop O'Leary.

After the distribution of medals and prizes and some further music by the orchestra, an eloquent address to the graduating students was delivered by Rev. Terence Campbell, whose sound advice and profound comments upon present day society and modern scientific and social doctrines were tempered with many humorous allusions and sly digs at the students themselves. While laying bare the many pitfalls and temptations awaiting the young graduates upon their entry into the busy work-a-day world, the speaker was careful to show the other and brighter side of human nature, and to emphasize the danger of forming hasty or tolerant judgments.

The world today is in a state of transition, said Father Campbell, "but it is to be hoped" that things will eventually come right and that the students graduating today will lend a hand in setting it right. It seems these days that every man has let go his own business to take up somebody else's. The scientist has left his laboratory, the contented, "has turned his back upon his self and is probing vainly into the spiritual world. Science has become the practical men of affairs." The speaker instanced the stories told of Marshal Foch, who it was claimed, prayed as diligently as he fought. Foch presented the remarkable spectacle of a general inviting women and children to pray for him while he led his armies to victory. The speaker deplored the futile attempts of such brilliant men as Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir A. Conan Doyle, who quitted work in which they were benefiting the human race—only to take up researches which were beyond the domain of scientific study. He alluded to the spread of the theory of evolution and maintained that however plausible it appeared it could not withstand the test of nature. Humanity has not yet outstripped its Caesars and Alexanders. Neither in crime nor in virtues are we greater than our predecessors, as the theory of evolution would require us to believe. Religion has stood an acid test during the Great War and has come out stronger than ever. In France, where previous to the war, infidelity was widely spread, men began to turn for relief to religion. The next item on the programme was the commencement song by the Glee Club.

Dr. McEellan, rector of the University then delivered a comprehensive review of the year's work, which has been most successful in every way. The full text of his address appears in another column.

His Lordship Bishop O'Leary, in a brief address, expressed his pleasure at attending for the first time the closing exercises of St. Dunstan's especially on the present occasion which is the winding-up of so successful a year's work. He congratulated not only the successful students but also those who failed, for very often failure meant ultimate triumph and led to great victories in the future.

His Grace Archbishop O'Leary spoke feelingly of the closing of St. Dunstan's exercises, and his words were grounded upon its deep religious influence. This influence is being recognized more and more as an essential feature of an educational institution. He expressed the greatest pleasure in giving him to be privileged once more to address the graduates of St. Dunstan's University. The institution, he believed, is only in its infancy. It has done well in the past but its sphere of activity will broaden with the years.

The concluding addresses were made by His Honor Lieut. Governor McKinnon, Judge Warburton and Hon. W. M. Lea who, each in turn congratulated the graduating students and all concerned for the splendid work achieved.

The Valedictory

Read by Louis P. Callaghan at the Commencement Exercises of St. Dunstan's University.

My Lord, Rev. Rector, Your Honor, Your Worship, Rev. Fathers and Gentlemen of the Faculty, Fellow Students, Ladies and Gentlemen.

"There is a word of grief and the sounding token,
There is a word belov'd with bright tears;
The saddest word found lips have ever spoken,
A little word that breaks the chain of years;
Its utterance must ever bring emotion;
The moment it is spoken it never dies;
'Tis known in every land, on every ocean,
'Tis called good-bye."

Mesopotamian Situation Serious

(Special to The Guardian)

Garfield Remains Cool

(Special to The Guardian).
WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 1.—Although he has only a few more hours to live, Norman Garfield is showing the same steel nerve that has always been with him. He slept last night just like a baby. He was awakened at dawn by the birds chattering on the chimney and a good breakfast of toast, poached eggs and coffee; and taken on his night cell across the corridor to his day cell he appeared with a steady stride and appeared to be well within himself. "I would like the young men of Woodstock, Toronto and everywhere to know there is nothing in this jail officials," he told one of the young men take my life as an example to go straight, shun bad company, leave guns alone and work honestly. I have brought disgrace to my family and my dear mother," he said.

now, before leaving this tranquil port to set sail on the turbulent sea of life we have assembled here to say to our Alma Mater. "The saddest word found lips have ever spoken, the little word that breaks the chain of years."

Yes, fellow classmates, today we go forth from the sheltering walls of Old St. Dunstan's. Today we part. Our college days are no span has revolved. The lamp of our future career is lighted; tomorrow we go into our chosen spheres of life's activity. Soon we shall be separated from our Alma Mater and her environment. Dear Alma Mater, as we stand on the threshold, ready to betake ourselves from your hallowed precincts we should like to call in review each of the many benefits and thus show to the world the great work which you are accomplishing. But the transcendent character of your work and the multitude and variety of your benefits render this impossible. It is not only impossible, it is unnecessary; for what we find impossible to express in words is daily expressed in deeds. It is expressed in the careers of the many eminent men who rejoice in affectionately owing St. Dunstan's as their Alma Mater.

His graduates occupy positions of honor and trust both at home and abroad. Whether they labor in the vineyard of the Lord or have positions on the Bench or at the Bar; whether engaged in the culture of the fine arts, or in commercial life they have shed lustre upon the institution that fostered them in their youth. So wide spread and beneficent has become the influence of those who in the past, drank from her fountains of faith and science, that now we can truly say that there is scarcely a nation that has not, at least in some small degree, reaped benefits from the teaching of the institution which we today, so proudly call our Alma Mater.

Dear old St. Dunstan's! Only you who have had the advantage of dwelling within these walls can realize the wealth of feeling and emotion contained in this little phrase. To us the mere mention of it serves as an inspiration. How dearly did we love to hear it repeated as we entered the arena of sport! How often has it cheered us on to victory! How often has its magic power fired our flagging energy and thus enabled us to carry back, again and again, the laurels of victory to our Alma Mater!

Such, then, has been its inspiration, in the past but what a wealth of memories it will contain for us in the future—memories of our vicissitudes, the scenes of our trials, of our strength and of our progress, of our triumphs and of our defeats; memories of the classroom where our intellects were trained and developed; memories of the bell whose command of duty or of our classmates with whom we have long been united in the golden bonds of friendship, memories of our teachers who spared neither time, talent nor energy in endeavoring to direct our feet in the path of duty.

Insurgents Checked By Arrival of British Troops

(Special to The Guardian)
OPPEL, Upper Silesia, June 1.—Reputed in their latest attacks on the German lines near Kallanow, Polish insurgents are threatening a reign of terror, according to accredited reports here today. The Poles were said to have planned to use dynamite on public buildings and German homes. They were especially angered at the arrival of British reinforcements in Silesia. The insurgents reduced the castle of Kallanow with an artillery machine gun attack, but were driven back on Annaberg. Sixty Polish soldiers were killed during the fighting. The British troops are settling their new garrisons today to await the arrival of three more battalions. They said they were expected within a few days.

Press—Principal L. Wynne; Miss L. J. Taylor; Principal Yeo.
Finance Committee—Inspector Braden; Inspector Auld; Principal Seaman; John Sullivan; Principal Norton.
Resolutions—Principal J. D. Seaman; John Sullivan; Principal Norton.

Nominating—Principal J. D. Seaman; E. J. Dunn; Inspector J. F. Doyle.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The President introduced Miss Josephine McLatchey, M. A., Editor of the Educational Review. She asked for co-operation of the teachers in the circulation of her paper, as it was the only one of its kind in the Maritime Provinces. The President then gave his opening address. He heartily welcomed the members of the P. E. Island Teachers' Union at their first session.

Great responsibilities are thrust upon us, he said, and we must face the issue. He advised strong co-operation of the teachers. He promised to give half the grant of about a princeling of the College in his noble work of teacher's training. Mr. Shaw explained that the period of convention had been changed in order that increased interest might be taken in the proceedings at this time instead of during the comparatively small number of schools vacant at the present time. He commented on the higher if the teachers' training was more efficient. This was one of the main ideals of the Union. Mr. Shaw remarked on the Amendment Clause recently passed by the Government relating to school attendance. He thought that the standard of sixty per cent was not too high. In regard to summer schools Mr. Shaw explained that nothing definite had been done up to the present, but the Department of Agriculture had promised to vote half the grant of the schools. Relating to text books he remarked that the text books adaptable to the Maritime Provinces would be suitable to us, and it is to be hoped that Prince Edward Island will fall in line with the other provinces in this matter.

The President then read a telegram from the headquarters of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, Toronto, asking the co-operation of the Union, also to name three delegates to attend their annual convention to be held in Toronto shortly. In his closing remarks, Mr. Shaw urged that every teacher in the province at once become a member of the Union, as it requires the co-operation of everyone to insure success.

Mr. R. H. Rogers, M. A., B. C. L., addressed the teachers in a very graphic manner. He appreciated the efforts of the teachers in his work, and suggested that every agency engaged in educational work should get busy in our great business. "Together" is the motto which should influence us. He advised more physical training and supervised play in public schools. The maximum of a sound mind in a sound body should be well exemplified. Mr. Rogers remarked that he would like to see more singing practiced in schools throughout the province, as it had a cheering effect on the children. He hoped to see more patriotism instilled into the minds of the children and that the flag should fly on every school in P. E. Island during school hours in the near future.

At the conclusion of the session the teachers visited the Experimental Farm and were shown about the Farm by Superintendent Clark and his staff.

EVENING SESSION

The President, Mr. Shaw, introduced Dr. H. D. Johnson and Miss McMahon who spoke on the subject of child welfare in the public schools throughout the province. Dr. Johnson remarked that in the inspection of pupils to be present in the schools, the defects in the child stage, these defects can easily be remedied, whereas during the war fifty per cent of our volunteers did not measure up to the army standard.

Mr. McMahon in an excellent address explained how the teachers could co-operate with her in this great work, as they were so well acquainted with their pupils. She gave a comprehensive outline of her inspection of the schools, which has proved that the Junior Red Cross Society has undertaken a very noble work.

Latin Americans Will Withdraw From League

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Withdrawal of all Latin American republics now members of the League of Nations was predicted by South American diplomats here today. It was learned that several representatives of a Southern League are the reasons given by diplomats for the agitation in their countries for withdrawing. Dr. Jacob Varela, Uruguayan minister, withdrew the report today that withdrawal from the League was to make an appeal for hundreds of thousands of dollars to carry on their great work. The same problem confronts Hospitals the world over. We are trying to keep our rates down by asking everyone to help by subscriptions, but we wish every patient, when paying his or her bill, to understand that it is not nearly the cost sustained by the Hospital in rendering the service.

Big Treat Tonight At Prince Edward

TONIGHT WHEN KING'S COLLEGE TROUPE PRESENT MRS. TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM WITH SPECIALTIES.

King's College Dramatic Troupe arrived by the S. S. Constance from Pictou last evening to give their performance of "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" in Prince Edward Theatre this afternoon and evening. The combination is a very strong one and has won golden opinions from critics throughout the town.

The Halifax Herald says: "One of the best amateur plays it has been our privilege to see for many a day—Every character was well taken and the enunciation was perfect."

New Glasgow News says: "Those who were fortunate to be present were more than repaid. It was a highly creditable production in every respect, and the entire performance ran as smoothly as if in the hands of professionals."

Truro News said: "The comedy was most entertaining—the cast was a strong one and there was no poor actor on the stage."

The specialties between the acts included violin solos by Mr. Wilbert Avery who is described as a finished artist. Of him one enthusiastic critic says: "A little boy in rags playing the violin with the soul of a Kreisler describes Wilbert Avery whose endeavors failed to satisfy the audience in their demands."

An unusual treat is therefore in store for those fortunate enough to secure tickets for today's performances at the Prince Edward.

Rev. Professor Wigle, Principal of Mount Allison Ladies' College, who delivered an excellent address entitled "The Romance of the Mind," in which he pictured the various phases of memory training. We regret that space does not permit a longer report of this excellent address which was one of the finest heard here for some time.

The session this morning at the college will conclude the convention.

P. E. I. HOSPITAL ANNUAL REPORT

The Year Just Closed Has Been the Most Successful in History of the Institution From a Stand Point of Service.

The following report was read by Mr. W. K. Rogers, Chairman of the P. E. I. Hospital Committee, at the annual meeting held Tuesday evening last in the Y.M.C.A.:

The Trustees of the Prince Edward Island Hospital beg leave to present to this the thirty-eighth annual report.

The year just closed has been the most successful in our history, for I take it that success as measured from a Hospital standpoint, means suffering relieved and lives saved. In this we have succeeded greater than ever before. One thousand and five patients have received treatment through our institution, those who were able to pay, did so; those who were unable to pay received the same treatment rendered just as cheerfully.

From a financial standpoint, however, we have not been so successful. We commenced the year's operations with an adverse balance of $1759.83 and this we have withstanding 424 patients' fees amounted to $24,317.90 an increase of $4121.78, collections to $7508.79, an increase of $1567.96, nurses' fees to $877.79, an increase of $405.13.

The other side of the ledger shows: Coal $525.18; Furniture & Furnishings 1934.48; Salaries 6338.12; Groceries $417.73; Meat and fish 3201.80; Milk 1894.55; Medicines 4183.11; all of which, with a large increase over the amounts spent for the same purposes last year. This was due largely to the greater number of patients treated and to quite an extent with some items to higher prices.

A very large number of people quite honestly think that our patients' fees at least cover the cost of caring for these patients and I wish here to correct this very erroneous, though honest belief. Last November, when sending out our annual appeal for collections, I took occasion to publish in detail the rate of our patients' fees, and most heartily endowed hospitals of Montreal and also our own rates. This comparison showed the rate of the Montreal Hospital to be over double that charged by us, and for any extras, the charge was from two to four times as great.

It was learned that the League was to make an appeal for hundreds of thousands of dollars to carry on their great work. The same problem confronts Hospitals the world over. We are trying to keep our rates down by asking everyone to help by subscriptions, but we wish every patient, when paying his or her bill, to understand that it is not nearly the cost sustained by the Hospital in rendering the service.

The amount paid for repairs to the building was $2610.00, and while less than last year, is a formidable item and one which will be greater each year, rather than less.

The yearly appeal to the people for financial assistance was made as usual on the first of November, which date we have been using for three years. This year, however, the Red Cross and the Navy League came out with an appeal on the same date and this largely interfered with our collections in the country. Next year, we are going to make our appeal on the first of October and we trust we will be allowed this as a free date in the future. It seems a great mistake for all charitable institutions to make their appeal on the same date. However, we have no particular cause to complain of the results of our campaign. From the country we received $3377.27, a decrease of $548.52; and from the city $4132.24, an increase of $2106.48. This should have been reversed, as from the country we had 369 patients and from Charlottetown 329.

The list of contributors will be printed as usual in the annual report.

The following school districts have failed to contribute or pay any attention to our appeals.

We do not believe the people of these districts are generally less charitably disposed than those of other districts, but we believe it just so happens that this year, the trustees of these districts are man lacking in community spirit and have not been so prompt in their effort to be made to get these districts organized in some other way.

The Endowment Fund has been increased by $300.00 through the legacy of the late Capt. R. K. McKenzie, the total now is $39,150.67. Last year we promised consideration of building operations for we need more rooms badly. We cannot see our way clear at present to undertake this work. The Province is about to be asked for a large sum for a most worthy object, and we have taken occasion to point out that this year and let this worthy object be given a clear field.

The work of the Ladies' Aid under the presidency of Mrs. Pethick has been by far the greatest in the history of the Hospital. Last year we took occasion to point out that the work of the Ladies' Aid was not keeping pace with the increased work of the Hospital and suggested that at least $5000.00 should be raised by the ladies during the next year. We are pleased to say that the amount asked for has been secured and, to Mrs. Pethick and
