SPENCER TRACY PLAYS HIS GREATEST ROLE IN "THE SEVENTH CROSS"

If we need say anything more to recommend "The Seventh Cross," the exciting new Metro-Goldwyn Mayer picture which opens today at the Prince Edward Theatre than that Spencer Tracy is its star this corner announces that Tracy is greater even than he has been in any of his many outstanding hits: "A Guy Named Joe" "Keeper of the Flame," "Boys Town", "Captains Courageous" and all the rest.

Tracy plays George Heisler, the only one to make good his escape, who, aided by loyal friends, including a lovely girl (played by Signe Hasso), makes good his escape with a promise to fight on against the Nazi tyranny.

Tracy's memorable performance is matched by the picture and everyone and everything connected with it. It is a picture you must see.

"THE LAST RIDE" AT CAPITOL TO-DAY

An exciting search for ahe illegal gangs which sell tires to citizens who themselves violate the law through their purchases, is the theme of the new Warner Bros., film, "The Last Ride," which opens to-day at the Capitol Theatre.

Richard Travis is cast as a young police detective who sets out to break a powerful gang of tire racketeers who were responsible for several auto deaths caused by defective tires.

Eleanor Parker, Charles Lang and Dolores Moran are also seen in the picture D. Ross Lederman, responsible for man action films, directed fro man orignal screen play by Raymond L. Schrock.

Changes In Home Defense Commands

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 — (CP) — (Advance) — Maj.-Gen. P. E. Leclerc, 51, Montreal, is retiring from his Newfoundland command to return to civilian life and will be succeeded by Maj.-Gen. Hardy Ganong, 54, St. Stephen, N. B., former commander of the 6th division of home defence draftees, defence headquarters announced tonight.

The announcement said Gen. Leclerc was retiring "at his own request" after rendering "distinguished service to the Canadian army during both wars and in the intervening period." Gen. Leclerc will resume his post as sales executive of a Montreal flour mill.

Gen. Ganong's 6th division was recently broken up under the Government's partial conscription plan to provide draftee reinforcements for overseas. It was reported then that Gen. Ganong would go to a new command.

It also was reported that the Pacific command—where the 6th division was stationed—would soon revert to its pre-war status of a military district under Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, present command chief.

When it was announced this week that the Atlantic command would be disbanded and its responsibilities would fall to military districts at Quebec, Saint John, N. B., and Halifax, it was suggested there would be little or no deduction in the status of the Newfoundland force which heretofore had been under the Atlantic command. Although defence headquarters did not indicate, it seems logical that Gen. Ganong's command will remain separate from the eastern military districts.

Stocking Rationing Not Being Considered

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 — (CP) —The Prices Board is not considering rationing women's stockings, Donald Gordon, Board chairman, said today in an appeal for co-operation in stemming an unprecedented pre-Christmas rush for hosiery. "Production figures show that practically the same number of stockings have been produced this year as in 1943, but this output still cannot meet the terrific demand from nearly 4,200,000 women and girls over 14," he said.

"Consumers will simply have to understand that there is a limit to what can be produced. This country cannot support a war effort of the magnitude undertaken by Canada and at the same time meet the insatiable demands arising from the swollen purchasing power of consumers in wartime."

In Memoriam

MRS. SARAH MacCORMACK

On Friday evening, October 27th, the angel of death called to its eternal reward the soul of Mrs. Sarah MacCormack in her 79th year.

Her family deeply regret the passing of a devoted mother. She possessed a singularly unselfish and charitable disposition and was tireless in her efforts to do good for friends and neighbours.

A truly Christian woman unhesitatingly following the principles of holy Mother Church, of which she was a staunch member.

During her last illness she was frequently visited by her pastor Rev. T. Campbell, whose consoling words were holy inspirations in her declining days.

The late Mrs. MacCormack was twice married. Her first husband, Charles MacKay and five children predeceased her some years ago. Her second husband Angus MacCormack and two children also predeceased her.

She leaves to mourn: One daughter Mrs. Frank Shanahan, Charlottetown; three sons, George at home; Fred with the Canadian Army in Italy and James, Savage Harbor. One sister, Mrs. Margaret Doyle, Baltimore, M. D., two brothers, John, Point de Roche and Nashes, Savage Harbor.

Her funeral was held on Monday morning to St. Andrews R.C. Church, where Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. T. Campbell.

The pall-bearers were: Walter Pigott, Fulton Pigott, A. D. Feehan, John Feehan, John D. MacInnis and Patrick Doyle.

May her soul rest in peace.

Censorship Director Is Leaving Position

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 — (CP) —War Services Minister LaFleche announced tonight that Wilfrid Eggleston, Director of Censorship since March 1 last, was leaving the Government service at the end of the year to return to newspaper work.

Mr. Eggleston joined press censorship shortly after the outbreak of this war and served as chief press censor for Canada and as chief telegram censor before his most recent appointment. He will be succeeded as Director of Censorship by Fulgence Charpentier of Ottawa, now deputy director, who became chief press censor for Canada early in 1940 and deputy director in March last.

Lancasters Bomb Freight Yards

LONDON, Dec. 8 — (CP) —Upwards of 500 R. A. F. Lancasters spread 3,000 tons of bombs on the jammed freight yards of Duisburg today and several hours later another force of British bombers attacked a synthetic oil refinery at the strategic transportation centre on the northern perimeter of the Ruhr industrial area.

Flying in wintry continental weather, R. A. F. Heavyweights, escorted by fighters, spilled their bombs through clouds on Duisburg to sustain the aerial blitz against Germany's rail system.

Duisburg's railway yards were crowded with vital war equipment for the western front, particularly to the Venlo and Julich sectors which are under attack by the British 2nd and United States 9th armies.

Cites Menace Of Montreal Brothels

MONTREAL, Dec. 8 — (CP)— Brothels in Montreal "eighty of which are operated with far more efficiency than can be found in our largest business firms" are the main cause of the venereal disease menace which "threatens thousands of innocent citizens," John H. Penverne, Montreal lawyer, said today in a service (Lyons) Club address.

"Municipal and military police should clear the streets of bunches of touts; for some reason not in uniform, who secur the thoroughfares to procure girls of from 14 to 18 years of age so that Montreal brothels shall havea full quota of inmates," he said.

A 22-year-old man recently was convicted of "living off the nightly earnings of schoolgirls he had persuaded to walk the streets for him," he added. "These parasites will do anything to carry on their nefarious trade. They make contact with young schoolgirls who loiter around street corners and small restaurants at night time. They promise them fur coats, jewels and money to entice them into the ring."

There would be less venereal disease if the brothels were closed up, "but there are too many people higher up who are interested in the business." Organized prostitution in Montreal was netting the operators about $4,000,000 annually.

Newspaperman Dies At Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 8—(CP)—Lindsay S. Gowe, veteran Canadian newspaperman, died yesterday at his home, aged 67. He had been ill for about three years.

A native of Parrsboro, N. S., he was a former editor of the Saint John, N. B., Sun, the Lethbridge News and the Kingston Standard, and also edited papers at Portage La Prairie, Man., and Wainwright and Macleod in Alberta. About 25 years ago he was editor of the Financial Post in Montreal.

In 1915 and 1916 he was in the parliamentary press gallery at Ottawa and after that did publicity work for the Conservative party. He was a close friend of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

He came to Toronto in 1919 and for a number of years acted as publishers representative for about 200 weekly newspapers. He also was active in the advertising field and in more recent years was interested in the printing business.

Lieut. R. L. Gowe of Ottawa is a son.

Lachine R. C. A. F. Depot Moving To Moncton

OTTAWA, Dec. 8—(CP)—R.C.A.F. officials announced today that No. 1 R C A F. repatriation depot, now at nearby Rockcliffe, will be transferred to the Lachine, Que., station, effective Dec. 14. The "Y" depot at Lachine meantime is moving to Moncton, N. B., the announcement said.

It was understood the transfer of the repatriation depot to Lachine was undertaken to expedite the handling of returning drafts of airmen and because the Lachine station has greater facilities for dealing with repatriates.

Tomorrow is Forever

by Gwen Bristow

Dick considered this slowly and soberly. At length he said, "I believe I get it." He turned it over in his mind again, then ventured, "It means—'all men are created free and equal, endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights—' it means all. Not just us. Everybody."

"Exactly," said Kessler. "You do get it, don't you? Those are beautiful words, inspiring words, until you stop to consider what they mean. That's what has happened in the world—some of us have stopped to consider what those words mean. Just when humanm freedom began to look like a desirable goal, those farsighted persons we were talking about got a glimpse of what that goal would really be. They felt something had to be done to stop the advance right now. So they set out to stop it. They are called fascists."

"Whew!" Dick gave a long whistle. Settling his elbows on the chair-back, he looked across at Kessler with a broad comprehending grin. "So that's what it's all about."

"I don't pretend to any superknowledge," said Kessler. "But as I see it, that's what it's about."

"And you mean they can't win!"

"I don't mean anything of the sort," Kessler returned sharply. "They can win. They can't win through the next thousand years, but they can win in this generation, and this is the only one we have a chance to live in. If they win this generation they'll push us back to do it all over again."

"If we lost this war, They'd have to fight it a'lover? People in the future, I mean?"

"Yes, they would. The conflict is here, you see; the current of human freedom is pushing along the flow of history, and we'd better stay on the side of history, if we want peace. Do you remember when Chamberlain came back from Munich with 'peace in our time'?"

Dick nodded.

Kessler got up and started to walk toward an old bookcase on the other side of the room. Dick sprang to his feet.

"Let me get it, Mr. Kessler."

"No. I can manage. I know just where it is." He sat down on a chair before the bookcase, and his hand thus freed, he took out a volume and ruffled its pages. "Did you ever read this?" he asked, and without waiting for and answer he read aloud. "I once felt that kind of anger which a man ought to feel against the mean principles that are held by the Tories' A noted one who kept a tavern at Amboy, was standing in the door with as pretty a child in his hand, about eight or nine years old, as I ever saw, and after speaking his mind as freely as he thought was prudent, finished with this unfatherly expression, "Well, give me peace in my day." A generous parent would have said, "If there must be trouble, let it be in my day, that my child may have peace."

Dick spoke eagerly. "Who wrote that?"

"Thomas Paine, during the American Revolution."

"Gee, I like it. It's reasonable, I mean, it comes out even. All you've been telling me comes out even." He said in a low voice, as though to himself, "We're fighting for the liberation of everybody."

Kessler returned to his former seat. He said, "We're fighting toward recognition of the simple fact that we don't know where the next genius is going to turn up. Toward finally realizing that good minds and noble characters are not so abundant that we can afford to waste them, no matter where they happen to be. That's all."

"Holy cats," said Dick. "That's terrific. That's big. That's worth doing. Mr. Kessler' But why can't they see it?" he demanded. "The fascists, I mean. It's so simple."

"Most of the important facts of life are very simple, once you make up your mind to look for them, but they're often very hard to accept. Like that business of loving your neighbor as yourself, for instance—it's very difficult to admit that he's as much worth loving as yourself. Most of us hate nothing so much as an idea that threatens our good opinion of ourselves. We don't like oweing up to it that if the earth belongs to us, it also belongs to the Chinese coolies."

Dick began to laugh suddenly, then he sobered again. "Cherry said once that Mr. Wallace thought this war was being fought for the coolies. We laughed when she said it. It sounded preposterous. But you mean it really is?"

"Why yes, though not many of us are willing to admit it. But that's what we mean when we say we're fighting for human freedom."

"That's terrific," repeated Dick. "That's what I'll be fighting for in the Marines."

Kessler hesitated for an instant, then shook his head. "No. Not precisely."

"Then what will I be fighting for?"

"For your country."

"But isn't it the same thing?"

"No. I almost didn't tell you this but I might as well say it. It's not the same thing. You; see Dick, one of the great tragedies of the human race is that history moves too fast for us to keep up with it. Our ideals are always somewhat behind the facts. Right now our ideal is that each army shall fight for its own nation. We'll co-operate just as much as we have to in order to keep safe. Go ahead and fight your own flag, you've got to, because if you don't crush the fascists nations your country will go down to barbarism with them, but don't forget—or forget if you want to—that you're fighting toward a time when you'll have no flag to fight for."

New Commander For M. D. No. 10

OTTAWA, Dec. 7 — (CP) — Brig. R. O. G. Morton, 49, of Toronto and Winnipeg, has been appointed commander of Military District No. 10, Winnipeg, succeeding Brig. R. A. Macfarlane, 48, who recently resigned after disagreeing with Defence Minister McNaughton's recruiting policy, Defence Headquarters announced today.

Brig Morton's District includes all of the Province of Manitoba and part of Ontario. He has just returned from overseas where he held a senior command in the 1st Canadian Army.

Gunfire Sounds Anew In Athens

ATHENS, Dec. 8—(AP)—Gunfire resounded anew in the battle of Athens today. British troops and tanks dug out snipers and moved to intercept a new force of militant leftists of the E.L.A.S. group —the armed force of the left wing E.A.M. Party—who were reported advancing on the city.

Clear weather this afternoon brought a renewal of the general conflict after a night of comparative quiet in which a drizzling rain dampened the E.L.A.S. ardor.

British patrols went outside the city on the northeast to intercept the new force of 700 E.L.A.S. who were reported approaching Athens with an armored car of their own.

British riflemen were busy in the wooded park east of the Royal Palace, digging out E.L.A.S. forces that had infiltrated during the night and taken up strong positions, notably around a concrete stadium in the park.

In Rome, Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, outgoing commander of the Mediterranean theatre, said deserters from the German and Bulgarian armies had been found among the "irresponsible extremists" who brought on the fighting in Athens, and that some possibly were "planted there for the purpose of causing trouble."

R. C. A. F. Trainees Given Call-Up

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 — (CP) —S. H. McLaren, mobilization director of the Labor Department, said today first call-up notices have been sent out to some of the 4,200 R.C.A.F. trainees recently released from the Air Force. The men were given the alternatives of volunteering with the Army or waiting for their call.

Mr. McLaren said he was unable to say how many were being called immediately.

Report V-2 Not Accurate

LONDON, Dec. 8 — (AP) —German long-range rocket operators, despite approximately three months of target practice on the British Isles, have not achieved "very great accuracy" with their vengeance weapon, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

Air intelligence experts, in the first official statement on Germany's V-2, admitted that "the design and the construction is undoubtedly a considerable technical achievement" but added:

"The military value of the weapon as present is extremely doubtful. Accuracy at present is not very great."

Use of the cautious phrase "at present" was coupled with the statement that "there is evidence that the Germans were forced to use the V-2 before it was fully developed."

UPTON GLEANINGS

Upton has become a very stirring centre in the past year due to the energetic efforts of Mr. J. Edgar Whitlock, who has succeeded in rebuilding the beautiful old mill sight formerly known as Morson's Mills. Here work is provided for a number of men both in grit mill and saw mill. For the summer months the beautiful residence called "Summerland", property of the late A. S. Morson was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock. It is understood they have returned to the city for the winter months. Contracts are now being let for the securing of several hundred cords of lumber for the coming season.

Mr. James Robertson and Mr. Wallace Turner recently visited Annandale.

The Misses Mildred and Florence McSwain, school teachers, spent the week-end with their parents.

The many friends of George Turner are glad to see him fully recovered from his recent operation in Montague hospital.

Mr. Jack Judson spent the week-end in Red House, guest of Howard Wood. Jack is owner of a unique line of horses. At present he possesses "Hush" at one time the fastest pacing gelding on ice. He also has "Halson", a beautiful 2 1-2 gelding, the mother of which "Jessica the Great" sired by "Sampson Hal." We all look forward to fast time from this colt. Recently he sold the famous hurdling mare, Princess McCrimmon, to Vimy Jones, daughter of Premier Jones. Last week he purchased Lilite Kalmuck, and judging by her appearance she should make some excitement on Grand River ice. He also owns "Queenie", one of the best reg. ponies on P. E. Island.

Mr. Sterling MacDonald, Forest Hill, spent the week-end at Dundas, guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. MacDonald.
