GREY OWL'S LAST CAMP RESISTS AMID NORTHERN BEAUTY

(Canadian Press)

WASKESIU, Sask., Aug. 31—Many tourists to Northern Saskatchewan's Ajawaan Lake, site of Grey Owl's famous beaver colony, visit the grave of the author-naturalist who died early this year. Ajawaan Lake is a mile long and about a third as wide. On its heavily-treed western shore is Beaver Lodge home of the beaver colony started in 1931 by Grey Owl. It is the famous naturalist's last resting place.

Archie Banehey was the white man's name for the famous lover of wild life and a simple white cross bearing the two names, "Grey Owl" and "A Banehey" marks his grave. Spruce trees have been planted around the grave with a young white poplar and a jackpine at the head and foot.

Silver Moon, Indian widow of Grey Owl, has noticed a difference since her husband's departure. "The animals seem to sense his death," she said recently. "The whiskey-jacks used to fly across the lake in flocks when he called them. Now there are very few here."

Silver Moon would like to carry on the work started by Grey Owl. She has finished putting together the last book on conservation, a wild life written by Grey Owl and it probably will be her last work at Beaver Lodge.

Writing of the book had been completed but arrangement and editing was left unfinished when the naturalist died.

SKELETONS STUDIED IN DESERT MYSTERY

(Canadian Press)

ADELAIDE, South Australia, Aug. 31—A 99-year-old mystery seems near solution with discovery of eight human skeletons in the Simpson Desert of Central Australia.

It is thought they might be those of Ludwig Leichardt and members of his expedition who vanished in 1848 while attempting an east-to-west crossing of Australia. Seven of the skeletons lay in a circle, indicating they might have been killed by natives while sitting around a campfire.

The remaining skeleton was found two miles from the others suggesting one of the party had tried to escape.

Rains uncovered the whitened bones, now being studied in hopes of positive identification.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER—On Friday evening, August 19th, over one hundred friends gathered to tender a miscellaneous shower to Miss Evelyn McCallum at her home. To the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Vernon Hughes, the bride-to-be was escorted to a chair, decorated in pink and white, by Misses Lillian Robinson and Hazel Stewart. The numerous and valuable gifts were opened by Misses Erna MacMillan and Dorothy MacKenzie. Miss Jessie Stewart read the verses and the presents were arranged on the table by Mrs. George Shaw and Miss Margaret Hughes. Following the presentation the bride-to-be made a fitting speech of thanks and all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." After a delicious lunch was served, all departed wishing Evelyn every happiness.

Gwynne Johns, English parachutist, is here shown walking away from his landing on a record-making parachute descent over Salisbury Plain. Jumping from 15,000 feet, he delayed the opening of the parachute for 70 seconds, dropping two and three-quarter miles before pulling the cord. He made a safe landing in a roadside hedge near Netheravon, Wiltshire.

For the third time in less than a year, "Tinty," great St. Bernard dog belonging to Suzanne Jeffs, of Sacramento, Calif., is a hero. Suzanne here consoles him over his injuries, sustained when he tried to push a woman from in front of an automobile. A few months ago, "Tinty" saved Suzanne from a fishpond into which she had fallen, and still later brought aid to a man who had suffered from sunstroke.

In Memoriam

MRS. R. L. WEBBER

The death occurred at Saco, Maine, on Saturday, of Mrs. Webber, wife of R. L. Webber, proprietor of the Bayview Camps at that place. Mrs. Webber, whose maiden name was Eva Harris, was a daughter of the late William Harris of Charlottetown, formerly of the Post Office Staff. She leaves to mourn, besides her husband one sister, Lena, who lived with her at Saco, also several brothers. Mrs. Webber was a lady of many fine qualities, and the news of her death will be learned with deep regret by numerous friends in this province.

SCRAP LUNCH

Lunches are often the most appetizing meal of the day, if the convention is adhered to that scraps must be finished up. A cupboard of scraps and saucers does not look inviting, and so it leaves something to the imagination of the cook and sends her to prodigies of invention.

The ham which has been nearly eaten down has long ceased to charm. It is an excellent plan to chop it up and mix it either into an omelet—if skill with omelets is present, but not unless—or with bread crumbs on toast. The remains of the haddock and a few un'ly potatoes will make a delicious dish if potato is mashed and if there is any sour cream over, mixed with cream. There is no cream some white sauce can be made fairly thick and well seasoned with salt pepper. The haddock can be deboned and mixed with the potato. A little haddock goes a long way as regards flavor, so that it is worthwhile to make this mixture, even if not much fish remains over from breakfast. Ends of cheese which, like the ham have been growing steadily more uninviting can be grated, melted with a little butter and mustard, salt, and pepper, and a little beer or milk added to make a delicious Welsh rabbit. Combined with thinish toast well buttered this is enough for most people's lunches. Beef and mutton on their last legs yield the usual minces. But minces must be well flavored and not necessarily with onions or herbs, which not everybody likes. Those fortunate enough to keep a pot of glaze by them can use this in making a sauce in which to embed the mince. Others can use any beef essence mixed with white sauce. Mince is best with crisp little pieces of toast well fried. Where there is too little it can be given a potato top to turn it into pie.

BOUQUET ICE CREAM WITH PEACHES.

One teaspoon of gelatine, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, separated, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-4 teaspoon lemon flavoring, 1-4 teaspoon almond flavoring, 1 cup whipping cream, 10 to 12 peaches, chilled and sliced. Soak gelatine in 2 tablespoons of the cold milk. Scald rest of milk. Beat egg yolks, add sugar and salt, and slowly stir in scalded hot milk; then cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until custard coats a metal spoon. Remove from heat and stir in gelatine until dissolved. Beat egg whites stiff and fold into custard. Chill. When cold, add flavorings; then whip cream until stiff and fold into mixture. Freeze in freezing tray of mechanical refrigerator, stirring once or twice; or omit gelatine and freeze in handturned freezer. Serve before ice cream becomes hard. Fold in sliced peaches, using a generous number, and serve at once, with a sauce made by combining 3-4 cup blanched almonds, chopped with 6 melted marshmallows, 1-2 cup light cream and a few drops of almond extract. The almond flavoring is particularly appealing with peaches. The ice cream recipe alone serves 5 or 6 persons generously.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. Just ceases to be nourished. Gas builds up, your stomach, you get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of a colon but have no colon or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

LEARD—STORDY—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leard of Tryon, was the scene of a happy event on Saturday, August 13th, when, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends their third daughter, Cicely, was united in marriage with Leith Bell Stordy, also of Tryon. The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and the ceremony took place under a beautiful canopy of ferns and gladioli. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Fred M. Young. The wedding march was played by the grandfather of the bride, Mr. Joseph Fell. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a dress of pink georgette with matching accessories. She carried a large number of pink and white sweet peas with maiden hair fern. The color scheme in the dining room was pink and white the table being centered with snapdragons and Canterbury bells. Assisting in serving were: Miss Leah Lord, Mrs. Archie Thomson and Misses Florence and Jessie Leard. Later in the evening a large number of merry-makers gathered to congratulate the newly-weds. Previous to her marriage the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower from the Y. P. S. and community, at which she received many beautiful and useful gifts. The happy couple will reside in Tryon.

REMEMBER WHEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Sir Malcolm Campbell, holder of the world land speed record and "novice" boat driver, eclipsed Car Wood's motorboat record at Locarno, Switzerland, one year ago today with an average speed of 125.785 miles per hour. He boosted it to 129.416 m. p. h. the following day. Capt. George Eyston of England now holds the land record with 211.42 m. p. h. set last November.

Unknown to all except high government officials, Sir Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British Colonial Secretary, recently paid a flying visit to the Holy Land where he conferred with authorities on the conflict between Jews and Arabs. His report later to Premier Chamberlain is being closely guarded but his trip, apparently, was successful for he is shown above waving a cheery goodbye to the crew of the big seaplane which carried him back to England. He landed at Calshot, where he boarded a Government launch to go ashore.

Two small boys were gazing at the shop windows decorated for Christmas. Presently they came to a butcher's shop, and one of them pointed to a number of hams hanging from a large holly branch. "Look, Tom," he said, "Look at them! Always a growing-up there." "Get away," said the other, "They don't grow." "Well, that's all you know about it," said the first scornfully. "Ain't you ever 'eard of a 'ambush'?" — The New Chronicle.

This ancient cannon once offered protection to the post of the Hudson's Bay Co., founded at Moose Factory a year after the company was incorporated in 1670. Near the Indian village of today is the old smithy shop opened by the company.
