REMOVING OBSTACLES

The journey from the cradle to the "pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow" that, in imagination at least, awaits each of us, is beset with many obstacles.

by the struggle of overcoming, and are prevented from reverting to their original type by maintaining the struggle.

It is a matter of general knowledge that the people who have been compelled to struggle for existence against the rigors of our northern climate are those who have made our civilization what it is.

And there never was a greater delusion. No heavier curse can be laid upon a child than the thought that his future is provided for, that there is no need to work.

Nature's way is a way of struggle. Her instincts are upward, but her every tendency is downward. It is in overcoming this tendency, in following the instinct upward that strength is attained.

The young man who sets out in life depending upon his own efforts to win his way in the world has a chance on the road to success, and the history of the worlds greatest men in every age is the history of men who have carved their own way through difficulties.

It is the law of nature that men should fight their own way through life's difficulties. It is the only law that has the promise of success both here and hereafter for even in the last awarding of the victor's palms prominence is given to "those who have come through great tribulation and have overcome."

SMALL VS. LARGE FARMS.

An esteemed correspondent takes exception to our small farm theory and sends us an article by a certain Professor Snell, who has gone exhaustively into the subject and has proved conclusively that "for general farming it is undoubtedly true for Tomkins County, N. Y., that the largest farms pay best."

Our correspondent, in sending us this evidence has overlooked the fact that it has reference to a country with a population of some ninety millions and not worrying about an increase. The Guardian's argument was for a country of less than a hundred thousand of a population and anxious to increase it three or four fold.

The argument in favor of large farms simply amounts to this: A man can make more money and make it easier by spreading his operations over a parish than he can if confined to a hundred or even two hundred acres. With unlimited land at his disposal he can utilize the suitable portions without the trouble of fertilizing and rotating crops as he would be compelled to do if confined to a limited area.

The Guardian does not claim that the farm of five or ten acres could be profitably utilized for mixed farming such as is followed in this province today. There are many lines which necessarily would have to be abandoned and more profitable lines substituted.

Our land is valuable for several reasons, among them the fact that it is all tillable and naturally fertile; that it is needed by our young men and young women who, for want of it, are obliged to go elsewhere. Therefore not a foot of it should be wasted even to make farming easier or more profitable to any one man at the expense of the province.

Our correspondent asks, "Wouldn't it help to keep more people on this Island if the Guardian were printed on smaller presses, by hand, instead of following the up-to-date farmer with first-class machinery?"

Our reply to this is that the Guardian is today giving employment to at least five times as many men and women as it employed in the days of the hand presses. If our correspondent can show us a farm that has similarly increased its employees in the same time we will tell him that that is the kind of farm the Guardian has been contending for.

NOTES

The prize list of the St. John Exhibition will be read with pleasure and pride by Prince Edward Islanders. The Island farmers who are capable of raising stock that can compete successfully with the best that can be produced in Canada, and enterprising enough to exhibit their stock in the cities of our sister provinces, are doing their native province an incalculable service.

for their most generous gift. You will perhaps remember that while in your beautiful city a year ago at Synod, I complained about the fact, that the foreigners of this city are not only badly housed but have no place wherein to meet and pass their spare time and we consequently forced to give themselves to drink and by-and-by do drink themselves into oblivion.

The amount your Presbyterian sent us was used in buying the lot on which our mission house is going to be erected, so that I can say your P. E. I. ladies laid the very foundation to our mission. We bought in all five lots our intention being to erect a church with seating capacity of about 150 people, two class rooms for the Sabbath School and one for the Kindergarten one large hall for lectures and evening-school for men and women, and another hall as a club-room for men. In the basement separate tub and shower baths for men and for women. An open and public play-ground for the innumerable children of that district.

At the present time I can hardly do anything at all as I have no place of worship and no place where to gather all those little ones. Now as to clothes, I would beg to say that I have very good use for anything you might send me, but especially for warm clothes for children up to twelve years of age; quilts; eventually some warm jackets for the women. I really do not know how to thank you and ladies of your society for your great and kind interest in my cause and work and beg to remain,

Very faithfully yours, M. C. A. Kinnale, 110 St. George St. August 24, 1912.
