IN MEMORIAM

JAMES CARRUTHERS.

Many will learn with sorrow of the death of Mr. James Carruthers, which occurred yesterday morning, at his home in North Bedeque. The late Mr. Carruthers had been in failing health for some time and during the past few months it was realized that the end was approaching. It was the ending of a well spent life, a life of usefulness, of activity and of helpfulness, both to the immediate community in which he lived and to the country at large. For over forty years he was a member of the session of the North Bedeque Presbyterian Church, and, until recently, its choir leader and a teacher in its Sunday School. A man of more than ordinary natural ability as a public speaker, he gave freely of his time and talents in helping every cause which he believed was for the betterment of his fellow men. He was a progressive and successful farmer and was closely associated with the different forward movements that gave Prince County its status as the banner agricultural county of the province. In church and school matters he was always a leader, and his judgment relied upon. His death is a distinct loss to the community and a sore blow to the family in which he was the loving husband and father. Of a family of twelve brothers and sisters, his is the sixth death to occur during the past three years, each passing away at a comparatively advanced age. The surviving brothers and sisters are Mr. Robert Carruthers, Cape Traverse, Dr. George Carruthers, Charlottetown, Mrs. (Hon.) Alexander Laird and Mrs. J. M. Baker, North Bedeque. Besides these he leaves to mourn, his wife, formerly Miss Sara Jane Clark, two sons, Clement at home, and Dr. Jim Carruthers, at present medical officer with one of the Canadian Regiments in England, and three daughters, Mrs. (Rev.) S. J. McArthur, Newcastle, N. B.; Mrs. P. G. Clark, Summerside, and Miss Vera at home. One daughter, Ida, died seven years ago. To the bereaved family and relatives The Guardian tenderers sincere sympathy.
