Randolph Carruthers, N. G., was master of ceremonies. Rev. Mr. Sinclair of Valleyfield gave a few interesting remarks also Mr. A. Sinclair of Wildiey Lodge, Charlottetown. Following is an excerpt of a letter on the life of Wildey, read by M. C. Reynolds, D. D. G. M.

Thomas Wildey, whose name is inseparably connected with the history of American Odd Fellowship, as its father and founder, was born in London, England, on the 15th day of January, 1782 of humble parents, whose names even are unknown. He attended a parish school in London for some five years where he acquired the merest rudiments of an education, and at the age of fourteen became an apprentice to learn the trade of coach spring making. He duly served his time of seven years when he was released from his indentures and was recognized as a skilled workman of his craft. From that time until 1817 he steadily pursued his trade in various towns in England and appears to have been a leader among his fellow mechanics and looked up to by them as well on account of his skill as his leadership in their friendly societies, which were then quite numerous in that country, many distinct and separate organizations of Odd Fellows already being in operation there; with one of these bodies of Odd Fellows he united himself and rapidly advanced to the highest rank in its Council. And so impressed the brothers of the lodge with his zeal and capacity that they presented him with a testimonial of their esteem in the form of a valuable silver medal. In the year 1817 Wildey married and later in the same year sailed for the U. S. A. Arriving at Baltimore on September 2nd. Among the acquaintances formed by Wildey at this time was a man named John Welch, like

A Miserable Welcome (Malden, Mass., Exchange) On Saturday noon some 1500 excursionists from the Maritime Provinces arrived in the North Station, Boston, about five hours late. Their excursion ticket gives them an opportunity to stay here over Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Because their train was late, they lost a sixth of their vacation. Their train came in three sections and most of the delay was because they were held up at Vanceboro by immigration authorities. There were not enough immigration officials to speed up matters. The immigration officials knew the excursion was coming, knew about the number that they would have to examine and just about what they would have to contend with. But they fell down pitifully and woefully. Instead of holding up those excursionists for hours, it seems as though they might have scurried around New England and had extra immigration inspectors sent to Vanceboro to help out. Unless we are greatly mistaken, there are at this time of year a number of immigration officials at ports of entry that are by no means overworked. Wouldn't it have been possible in such an emergency to have sworn in a score of temporary immigration officers, just as extra policemen and constables are called upon? From what we have seen of immigration officials, the job takes no very high order of intelligence. And there are scores of men out of work who could easily have helped out. But no, our government fell down completely. It gave these friendly visitors about as miserable and as tedious a welcome as we could conceive of. We have heard for years about the 3000 miles of friendly border without a fort or a soldier, but that isn't any reason why American officialdom should irritate and harass the people of a friendly nation and send them home with a contempt for our functions of government. This excursion himself an Englishman and mechanic, being a ship and house painter. Thrown much together by reason of their nationality and occupation, they mutually discovered that each had been connected with an Odd Fellows Lodge, which fact formed a fresh link to bind them together as friends. After this discovery the two friends concluded that there were likely others in Baltimore who had been Odd Fellows and who would probably be glad to meet together and form a lodge. So it was decided to publish a notice calling a meeting of all Odd Fellows in the City for the purpose of consulting together as to the formation of a lodge. This notice was published in the Baltimore American and resulted in the formation of the first lodge of Odd Fellows in America in the year 1819.—H.

Face and Neck Covered With Pimples. Healed by Cuticura. "My face and neck were completely covered with pimples. They came out in hard, red blotches and itched and burned. I scratched them and they kept getting sorer and redder, and festered and scaled over. They lasted about a year. "I used so many different remedies but they did not help me. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and got relief after using them. I purchased more and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Leola Vidito, R. R. 3, Middleton, N. S. Soap 25c.
