The latest for the lady who wants to wear her hair "up" is a series of hair nets in such colors as orchid, red, pink, blue and green so that you may not only use it to keep your curls in place but match it to your evening gown or accessories. It's an amusing innovation for the smart girl to wear on her way to an evening's entertainment so that she will arrive looking suave and smooth, instead of wind-blown.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Warren who have been on a two months' trip to Western Canada have returned to their home in Ottawa. On Wednesday evening Miss Roberta Holley had a miscellaneous shower at her home on Grafton Street for Miss Cantwell when she received many lovely articles to add to her Hoop Chest.

Her many relatives and friends in this city will be interested to know that Miss Gwendolyn Duchemin of Sydney, N.S., now holds the highest degree from the Toronto Conservatory of Music. Licentiate, Miss Duchemin gained the degree in piano work and also won the gold medal for highest marks in her division. To obtain the Licentiate a student must study at the Conservatory for a year. Below that is the Associate Degree, A.T.C.M., for which a student need not study at the Conservatory. Miss Duchemin received her degree at graduation exercises Tuesday night.

The Queen has been showing an increased liking for delphiniums, particularly for interior decoration. This flower has been much favored in her rooms during the past summer. She desires them to be grown upon a more extensive scale in the Royal gardens. "Delphinium blue" has appeared to Her Majesty for some time past, as a dress color, especially for children's wear. Plans for the Royal gardens are, of course, made months beforehand, and the best and most effective way in which delphiniums can be displayed at Royal Lodge next summer is under consideration. Buckingham Palace also is to have its delphiniums.

Congeniality is the Most Important Asset in Marriage, so Pick Out a Mate Who Likes to do the Things You do and is of Equal Mentality

Dear Miss Dix—When people marry, should they have an equal amount of intelligence, breeding, education and so forth? Or should they be superior to the wife or the husband? In my case I am inclined to believe that I am just a little above my husband. Do you think the feeling of superiority will make me tire of him? He worships me and thinks he has the greatest wife in the world, and we are very happy, but I fear I may sometimes grow weary of him.

Answer: Congeniality is certainly the one most important factor in making any marriage a success. As long as a married couple think alike and have the same tastes and habits and enjoy the same things they are sure to be happy together.

If you will trace every family quarrel back to its origin, you will find that it had its beginning in a difference of opinion. The husband wanted to do one way, the wife another. Both were absolutely certain that they were right and their own individual point of view was the only one that any intelligent human being could hold.

Let a man and woman belong to the same church or political party and it is a bond between them. Let them belong to different ones and nine times out of ten it is the cause of a perpetual scrap between them. It is the woman who loathes golf who complains of being golf widows, not the woman who plays a good game herself and who enjoys a day on the links and the post-mortem afterward. A husband and wife who like to step out can have a grand time going to night clubs, but if the husband likes to go and the wife likes to stay put, or vice versa, there are tears and reproaches and rue long at home. And so it goes.

BOOKS / ART / MUSIC

New books scheduled to appear last week in October and the first week in November include many interesting ones. Some of these, with their abbreviated previews are:

Byrd—his experiences at Advance Base, far south of Little America, during the long winter night... "The Noise of their Wings" by Mackinlay Kantor—his first modern novel in six years, the scene is in Florida... "All This and Heaven Too" by Rachel Field—perhaps the most important novel of October... "The Code of the Woosters" by P. G. Wodehouse—said to be one of his best efforts... "Chateaubriand, Poet, Statesman, Lover" by Andre Maurras—his first full-length biography since the popular "Disraeli"...

"The Provincial Lady" by "In Hazard" by Richard Hughes—high adventure combined with high adventure and terse pungent style—compared with Conrad's "Typhoon"... "As Once You Were" by A. S. M. Hutchinson author of "The Water Comes"... "Spella Ho" by H. E. Bates—"stark power, amazing vitality, entertaining, beautiful, fine, a moving experience," from Editor's Choice... "Testament" by R. C. Hutchinson... "Count Belisarius" by Robert Graves... "The King was in His Counting House" by Branch Cabell... and many, many more.

This may not apply to Canada, but in the United States at least, from Oct. 1st until November 25th, the $2.50 edition of "The Citadel" by A. J. Cronin is to be sold at the reduced price of $1.39. And from November 1st until November 15th "Gone With the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell is to be sold at $1.49 instead of $3.00.

Among the best sellers in England are "Rebecca" by Daphne Du Maurier, which tops the list, "Konigsmark" by A. E. W. Mason, "Windsor Tapestry" by Compton (Continued on page 9, Col 1)

THE COOK'S CORNER

POULTRY STUFFING FOR DUCK

3 cups dry bread crumbs
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup minced apple
4 tablespoons butter
1-4 cup orange juice
Grated rind 1 orange
Salt, pepper
Method: Put the bread crumbs into a bowl with the chopped raisins and apples. Add the orange juice, grated rind and melted butter. Season with salt and pepper. Add the too dry, sprinkle with a little warm water.
Stuff the duck and sew up the cavity. Do not stuff too tightly for the dressing expands as it cooks. If there is too much to fill the duck, bake the remainder in a small pan, basting occasionally with some of the drippings, or place around the duck during the last 20 minutes cooking.

FRUIT DRESSING FOR DUCK

2 apples
1-2 lb. prunes
1-4 cup raisins
1-4 cup fine cracker crumbs
1 egg
1 tablespoon sugar
Salt, pepper
Method: Peel and chop the apples. Soak the prunes, then remove the stones and chop fine. Add the raisins, crumbs, beaten egg and seasoning, then add the chopped apple. Stuff the duck, not too closely, and fasten securely before roasting.
This may be too much for one duck, but the remainder can be cooked in a small pan and served separately.

Household Scrapbook

Acid Stains
Often when the color of a fabric has been changed by an acid, the original color can be restored by sponging with ammonia and water, and then with chloroform. CAUTION: Chloroform is an anesthetic.

Mashed Potatoes
Hot milk, adding a little at a time, while mashing potatoes, will make them light and fluffy. Heat, do not boil, the milk.

THE HOUSEWIFE -AND- HER ACTIVITIES

FALL PLOWING

The stubbles mellow here beneath the sun;
Their garnered wealth is stored in barn and mill;
The naked apple trees, their yielding done,
Are drowsy neighbors couched upon a hill.
With appetite that never seems to dull,
Around the field my hungry plowshare goes,
Regurgitating like the trailing gull
The steaming manure that fall in darkened rows
Within these graves the colored leaves are tossed
To waste in death; throughout the winter night!
The world shall know marauding winds and frost;
Not so this loam, for soon the winding white
Shall armor it against the age-old feud.

That it may rest and resting, be renewed.
—Eva Wilkes Wanggaard, in the New York Times.

FASHION FLASHES

Black velvet appliques are being used for trimming of metal buttons to match.

Black net woven with shimmering strips irregularly arranged, is effective in a tunic model, blouse, belted by one light blue and one pink lame gown, and fastened by pearl buttons alternately tinted blue and pink.

The long Torso silhouette appears in slim dinner gowns and in full-skirted evening styles as well but in each case the molding of the bodice extends well down over the hips.

Stripes, checks and plaids are shown in strange colors that have a Far Eastern flavor.

Turquoise and brown combine in a suit with short, straight jacket with narrow, widely spaced turquoise stripes and monotone skirt, worn with turquoise jersey blouse, shirred from a shallow ruche.

Boysie, a tweed jacket chosen for a slim cocktail frock.

An evening gown is executed in royal blue jersey with full sleeves and a full skirt originating from the normal waistline. A jeweled sleeveless red velvet jacket is worn with it.

Teal green and rusty light brown are prominent for day, with much black for afternoon, both in dresses and coats.

A silver lame dinner-gown with long sleeves has a very low décolletage.

A short velvet cape in wine red is worn over a wine red tulle frock.

In stripes, rose is blended with violet, with pink and green and white. A smart effect in a plaid is turquoise with shocking pink and navy, the crossings in the weave giving three soft-toned dull colors of purple and dull blue.

Wine color is good with black, brown or grey furs.

DARK COLORS FOR BABY

The fashion authorities who rule the world of baby's clothing are suggesting that dark colors are quite as attractive on baby as are pastels, when it comes to sweaters Navy blue, dark brown, and even black, heightened with a bit of colorful accent, are in this year's fashion parade. Crew, v-necks, and the straight boat

"DRYDOCK" INJURED
Talking with a young lady admirer, Mark Twain had occasion to use the word "drydock." "What is a drydock, Mr. Clemens?" she inquired. "What is a drydock, Mr. Clemens?" she inquired. "What is a drydock, Mr. Clemens?" she inquired.

type are comfortable even on the youngest baby.

Because it is so important that a child's underwear fit properly, it is false economy for children to be permitted to wear garments which they are outgrowing.

SHAMPOO BOARD
Mothers with large families can ease the hair-washing hour with the simple device of a shampoo board such as is used in beauty parlors, together with a high chair.

Dry Out Before Stacking
Do not pile table napkins and handkerchiefs on top of each other after ironing. Spread them out on a piece of brown paper or clean towel and let them thoroughly dry out before piling them. You will find they will look very much better and stay fresh longer if this is done.

In the Wardrobe Trunk
Cover the coat hangers at the wardrobe trunk with a piece of tissue paper to prevent creases in the garments hanging on them.

Don't try to economize on tissue paper when packing the trunk. These little puffs here and there of paper prevent many and many a wrinkle.

in the trunk so that all the weight does not fall in the same place. Try to distribute the heaviest things evenly.

Don't try to include all your traveling purchases in the trunk on your return trip. If it was full on starting, your common sense will tell you it cannot be done successfully. Purchase an inexpensive bag for these extra purchases.

WINTER HATS

Milliners are getting seriously under way with winter hats, Legroux is even showing fur toques. One is a small rounded nest shape of silver fox in which nestle tiny pink birds. Another is like a tiny Victorian toque of sable-dyed ermine, held on by felt streamers tied at the ends.

Two movements lead in fall millinery. First, tiny forward-perched shapes differently interpreted, as Schiaparelli's famous doll hat. Erik's wide-brimmed toques with high cut brim bow forwards; or Le Monnier's shapes with brim cut from the crown at back and folded over the forward brim; while everywhere tiny tricorners perch at this angle, showing curls of brushed-up coiffures just behind the hat.

The second movement is the bonnet, constantly enveloping the back of the head and showing curls in the hollow of the scoop brim at front, these often with streamers tied under the chin. Some positions are also shown, including an Erik model inspired by Queen Victoria riding hat with a heavy veil at the back protecting the neck. Also tiny 1900 canottiers are made of velvet with bird ornaments like transparent wings pressed in air on the crown. Suz is making hats in Queen Elizabeth's favorite color, lime green.
