Sea-going Editor Has No Easy Job

MONTREAL, May 16 — (CP) — Editors ashore who think publishing a paper has its ups-and-downs should try turning one out aboard a ship pitching and tossing in a North Atlantic twister, says Allan Williams, editor of the Ocean Times. Williams, a middle-aged Liverpool native, publishes the eight-page daily (when he can get enough newsprint) aboard the Cunard White Star liner Ascania. He proudly makes the claim that the Times has appeared daily for 26 years when the liner is at sea, except for the war years.

Editorial room of the Ocean Times is a 10-foot square cabin on the Ascania's port side. Here Editor Williams sets his type and prints the daily, then distributes it among the passengers. Williams has the biggest headaches during the winter season on the Atlantic. "It's pretty hard trying to get a newspaper out when you can't stand up and haven't the room to get seated," he said.

CHURCH SPIRE IS ERECTED Rev. Michael Brondos, young Lutheran minister at Timmins, has had his church building problem solved. Through late fall and the cold northern winter, the minister, with help from many in his congregation, has seen just recently, his dream come true for a chapel. The church spire was drawn to its crowning position above the small modest chapel. The spire was built inside the chapel and has awaited warm weather for this event. Rev. Mr. Brondos, born in Europe and raised in Ohio, has been the guiding hand behind the first Lutheran church built in Northern Ontario.

Crash Victim Was Well-Known In Province

Word of the accidental death of Robert Weber, transport pilot who died as a result of an air crash at Malton airport April 30th, will be received with general regret here where the young airman made many friends while based at Charlottetown as member of the Coastal Command during the war years.

Mr. Weber was married to a Charlottetown girl, Miss Margaret McInnis, daughter of Mrs. Frank L. Dillon, all of whom will have sincere sympathy in their tragic loss.

Text of the account of the crash as appeared in the Lubec Herald follows: Investigators of the Federal Transport Department at Toronto today sought an explanation of the engine failure which Saturday sent Robert Weber, 23, formerly of Guelph, plunging to his death on the perimeter of Malton Airport.

"The young airman was leaving the field on the final test of a surplus U.S. Air Force trainer when the engine spluttered and, from an altitude of 800 feet, the machine plummeted toward a stretch of grass beside the highway.

"The Vultee monoplane was split into several pieces by the force of the impact. One wheel was thrown 200 feet from the main fuselage section. The engine was wrenched loose and landed 10 feet away.

Deserves Credit

"He certainly deserved credit because he saved the lives of those children," the eye-witness said.

"The pilot was barely breathing when he was lifted from the wreck, and he was rushed unconscious to St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto.

"Robert Weber was the oldest of a family of seven children of Dr. G. Harold Weber, Guelph dentist, and Mrs. Weber, 127 King Street. "Joining the Royal Canadian Air Force, on the day he was 17 1/2 years of age, he started his training in Guelph, and was trained at several other air force schools in Canada. He was the youngest pilot to graduate under the British Empire Training Plan, when he received his wings at Brantford. He was also the youngest commissioned officer in Canada when he was placed on an overseas draft. However, he never reached that goal, being based at Charlottetown, P. E. I., in the coastal command.

Served As Captain

"The 23-year-old youth held a transport pilot's license, and had been at Malton for only six weeks, having previously served as a captain with the Rimouski Air Lines, and had been flying with the Maritime Central Airways and the Sturgeon Air Lines. He had been in civilian flying since 1945 when he was discharged from the R. C. A. F.

"Flying had always been his pet hobby ever since he was old enough to know anything about it. His father had flown with the youthful air victim on Good Friday. "Surviving one his widows, the former Margaret McInnis, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., a 6-month-old son; his parents, Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Weber; four brothers and two sisters, Donald, Jack, Richard, William, Mary and Sylvia, all of Guelph.

Thank God for the faith that teaches When the struggles of life are over We shall meet our own, our loved ones And know them all once more.

What matter though life be weary And we tread the path alone If when the journey is ended In heaven we'll know our own.

There is no final parting For all is in his care And those who learn to love us Are waiting for us there.

When we shall meet our loved ones And understand at last That dawn is always waiting After the night is past.

Inserted by His Wife Irene.
