THE POPE AND PEACE.

Among the other "powers" to whom the Czar's circular note in regard to disarming was sent was His Holiness, the Pope. It so happened, whether by design or omission of the Russian foreign office, that the missive did not reach the Vatican until about two weeks after it had been received at the other courts of Europe. And it also turns out that no reply has been sent. Whether the answerd has been delayed, out of resentment for the delay of the Czar's message remains to be seen. In the meantime the Roman newspapers which usually are the exponents of the views of the Vatican are discussing the Czar's proposal in no cordial spirit.

The Pope has been so generally regarded as the friend of peace that his cordial acceptance of the invitation to join in a peace conference was counted upon with great certainty. But both the Observatore Romano and the Della Verita, which are spoken of as authoritative organs are quoted as saying:—"Disarmament implies peace, but how can continued peace be guaranteed in Europe so long as the question of the Pope's temporal power is left open?" This position is vigorously attacked by the anti clerical journals, which hold the Pope responsible for the utterances of his reputed organs. One of them deplores what it calls the dreadful fact that "While all the powers of Europe are dreaming of universal peace, the chief of the Roman Catholic Church, who claims to represent Christ on earth, alone preaches war." This seems an extreme and unwarranted view. The Pope has not preached war, but the clerical journals clearly indicate that the only hope of a restored temporal power rests on the sword.

Some possible combination of the Roman Catholic nations seems to be held by them in hope to effect the restoration of the states of the church. but at this distance the prospect is not bright. Whether or not the papal policy is opposed to reducing the vast military armaments under which Europe at present groans, it sufficiently appears that the press which has been most dispoaed to throw obstacles in the way is that of the clerical party in Italy and the press of France. The latter still hopes for the restoration of her lost provinces on the Rhine and the Papacy clings to the equally forlorn hope of a restored temporal power. Neither of these objects can be obtained by peaceful methods. In the last analysis their hopes rest only on the chances of war, and these long cherished purposes may yet turn the scale toward war. At present the agencies making for peace are not strengthened by the attitude of either France or the Vatican.

It seems that a supreme effort was made in the province of Quebec to obtain votes enough to counterbalance the majority for prohibition in the other provinces. La Minerve probably intimates that this majority in Quebec has been "cooked" to order. It charges that the returning officers appointed by the government were in the plot and lent themselves to the frand. Allowance must be made for Minerve's party leanings till the facts are ascertained. At present it is claimed that the vote in Quebec was so large as to overbalance the temperance majority elsewhere. We must await the official returns before we shall know the facts.

Bradstreet's statement of failures in the Dominion for the first nine months of the current year shows a very favorable contrast with the like period of last year. The total number of business failures so far in 1898 is 1,091 against 1,501 last year, with liabilities of $7 592,510 against $10,653,212. In P. E. Island the number of failures dropped from eight to four, with liabilities in about like proportion.

The Indian trouble in Minnesota is at a point about 200 miles west of Duluth and something like the same distance south of the Manitoba boundary.

Quebec province is lagging in the march of progress. The Marchand government tried to pass a law last year requiring that school commissioners shall be able to read and write, but in deference to strong objections made the clause was dropped. Now the Montreal Herald puts in a plea thut the aldermen of an important city like that should be able to read and write. From the length at which the Herald argues the matter we are forced to conclude that illiteracy is prevalent in the city council of the metropolis.

It turns out that aluminum was discovered nearly two thousand years ago, and then lost to the world. Pliny tells that in the time of Tiberias a worker in metals presented to the emperor a beautiful metal cup resembling silver, but much lighter. When questioned he said he had extracted the new metal from clay by a process known only to himself and the gods. He was promptly decapitated, so that the secret might be left with the gods and lest it might make gold and silver less valuable. This act of a tyrant deprived the world of this valuable metal from before the Christian era down to the present age.

Severe Headaches

Resulting from Catarrh Cause Great Suffering

The Great Blood Purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures.

Sufferers from any disease caused by impure blood should never be discouraged about taking Hood's Sarsaparilla because other medicines have failed to give relief. Remember Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail. Read this statement:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Dear Sirs:—I think it my duty to let you know what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I was suffering with severe headaches daily and also with catarrh. One day a paper was left at my house and in looking it over I read of your great medicine's value to my fellow sufferers. I reasoned that if it cured them, why would it not cure me, although I must own I had some doubts about it, as I so-called cures which had failed even to relieve me. At last I procured a bottle and after taking all the medicine the headaches had left me and my catarrh trouble was much better. I continued taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and have derived so much benefit from it that I would advise any one troubled with impure blood to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. I feel better now than I have for years, thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. E. GREY, 27 St. Nicholas St., Toronto, Ontario.

Had Tried So Many
