On the whole tour across the continent, he has seen no better or more prosperous looking farming land than in Prince Edward Island.

Protect Fishing By Old Ceremony

FILEY, England, July 22—(CP)—This ancient east Yorkshire fishing town has witnessed the repetition of a scene that has been enacted once every seven years for more than seven centuries. When the tide was at its lowest, a horseman entered Filey Bay and advancing as far as his steed could carry him, cast a javelin seawards. Thus the rights and control of the Lord of the Manor of Filey and Hummanby over the waters of Filey Bay were asserted and maintained. During the crusades Richard Coeur de Lion told the Lord of the Manor of Filey: "When you get back to Yorkshire ride your horse as far as you dare in Filey Bay and then throw your javelin. Where the javelin drops shall be your boundary." The Lord of the Manor at the time was an astute man. He selected the month of September for the javelin throwing because then the tide was at its lowest. Afterward, he met King Richard at York and was asked if he had thrown the javelin. He replied that he had ridden his horse as far out as he dared and thrown it and if the King could show him on a map where it fell he would be satisfied with his boundary. If he could not, he would claim the same rights as the crown did round other parts of the coast. So although the javelin is thrown, a three-mile limit is claimed. Sir Dennis Readett-Bayley, present Lord of the Manor, explained that by throwing the javelin once every seven years he gained the power to exclude Hull and Grimsby trawlers from Filey Bay and kept the fishing rights for the Filey fishermen. It was not necessary for the Lord of the Manor to throw the javelin personally, he said. Frank Skilbeck performed the recent ceremony. Members of the Skilbeck family have carried out the office for several hundred years. Frank now is more than 80.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 23—Rain which fell in varying amounts over large sections of the drouth territory slight days ago have proved more beneficial to the feed crop, the latter being already too severely damaged by drouth, heat and hot winds. Grasshoppers are prevalent in some districts of southern Saskatchewan and southern Alberta and are causing considerable damage to what crop is left. Weather has been moderately warm with cool nights which have been beneficial for all crops at present in the feeding stage. Rust is reported in southern districts but so far, no alarm is felt. A devastating hail-storm struck a large territory in central Manitoba and ruined the commercial prospects of 50,000 acres, according to the weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture. Canadian National Railway. In southern and western Manitoba districts classes in the drouth area for the past few years report crops in excellent condition with no damage from hail or hoppers and rust infestation is light. Wheat is headed and developing a plump berry. Corn and rye cutting will commence this week end and excellent crops are expected.

In central and central western districts less than an average crop is expected as rainfall has been short. Yields will be variable and in some districts at least 75 per cent of normal crop will be harvested. Similar conditions obtain from Dauphin west through Roblin and north through Swan River on the heavier types of soil. In the northern territory it is expected below average. Along the Lewvan, Central Butte, Avonlea, Gravelbourg, Central Butte, Riverhurst, Benough subdivisions of southern Saskatchewan rains which fell in varying amounts over large sections has a wide territory a week ago which slightly improved the feed situation. It is expected that if more moisture is received within the next week or so large areas will be sown to oats and fall rye, thus augmenting the fall and winter feed supplies. In some of these districts the crop is about 5 per cent of normal and when the sowing will take place the outrun will vary from 2 to 5 or 6 bushels. From Yorkton west through Watrous, Roseton, Biggar and Elton subdivisions weather has been cooler with rainfalls varying from light showers to heavy downpours. Some points report more moisture received this week than during the entire preceding growing period of this season, some of the stubbled-in crops have gone beyond recovery but other crops will come back to some extent and the situation will be better than anticipated. Local rains have brightened prospects in some subdivisions of the Prince Albert division while in others hot dry weather has persisted, in the easterly part of the division crops are still considered fair but further rains are essential if grass are to fill properly. Grass hoppers is apparent in many localities where poisoning was discontinued when the crop situation became serious. In south central Alberta, along the Drumheller, Oyen, Stettler, Three Hills, Red Deer subdivisions heavy precipitation was received with some points reporting as much as five inches. This will improve yields from late sown and summer fallow crops and the expectation is that outruns will vary from 25 to 75 per cent normal crop in the better districts. North central Alberta has experienced cool, cloudy weather and reports conditions greatly improved. Early sown grains will not respond greatly but the later sown grains will show vast improvement. All sections of the Peace River and Grande Prairie territories report weather warm but crops are holding up well. More rain is a necessity. In some districts Beaver Lodge for example crops will be better than anticipated but in the Grande Prairie district it is now estimated there will be sixty per cent of a normal crop.

is claimed. It was not necessary for the Lord of the Manor to throw the javelin personally, he said. Frank Skilbeck performed the recent ceremony.
