The Millinery People

Fall millinery opening

Tonight at 7.30

IT IS PRETTY well understood by this time that our reputation for millinery is rather a remarkable one to sustain. Not many stores anywhere, in towns of this size can show you as good a millinery department as this of ours—not many can show you the range of handsome fall millinery ideas either in extent, in style, or in prices.

We have done so well for you in the past that you might, naturally enough greet any improvement with surprise—yet we feel confident that never in the past have we provided the showing, in value or attractiveness that will be ready for you on Wednesday evening.

We have already referred to the hats that will be shown, and briefly again, we want to tell you a little of them.

They will for the most part be small and medium in size, and as some one has said many of the shapes are in "melon" style. Indeed there's more than a little suggestion of the "glengarry" about the newest ones. Variations, of course for variety, and individuality are the making of a millinery exhibit. Felt and velvets will both be shown and the trimmings will be velvets, ribbons, wings, ostrich plumes (uncurled) and many soft drooping feathers. Wood browns hunters Greens, Wines of several vintages as well as Scotch plaids will be prominent among the colours. But, after all there isn't much to description is there? You'll see better when you come.
