"LECTURE ON FIRST AID - On Monday night the first lecture on First Aid sponsored by the Red Cross was given at the Montague High School. The course, which will last five weeks, is under the supervision of Mrs. Harry Cudmore, director, and Mrs. E.M. Bagnall, chairman of the divisional committee. Those taking the course include Leslie Stewart, Ruby MacLeod, Minnie MacDonnell, Anne MacEachern, Eisle Waterhouse and Marie Furness of Montague High School. Mary McGregor, Allistair Currie, John Shaw, Gilbert Clement of Montague, and Rita White and Dan MacDonnell of Georgetown. Various others have also signified their intention of taking the course but were unable to be present at the first lecture. Mrs. Cudmore showed films pertaining to the practical side of the course, following this with a talk on the course itself. She also gave a practical demonstration of slings and other preliminary subjects. This course should prove highly beneficial to the students who will become instructors following the course, and having obtained their certificate. The necessity of knowing First Aid is all too apparent in these times of fast motion, and Mrs. Cudmore and Mrs. Bagnall are to be commended in bringing to this community this necessary First Aid course.

Paging one member of the black and white striped porpoise tribe, rather the $64,000 question. - How did the skunk get in the well? The story - Noticing a very strong odor emanating from the immediate vicinity, a local resident felt that the enemy was gradually surrounding the air with gas bombs. Upon investigation, however, it was found that the contamination was concentrated in the cellar, whereupon from the peculiar distinctive odor he knew it to be a skunk. But when the man slipping in at 3:00 A.M. moved more cautiously he gently and cautiously moved aside boxes in an attempt to locate the intruder. But all to no avail, still the odor persisted. Finally investigating the well, there lodged in the hole, looking malevolently at the gazer, sat or stood the interloper. Having found the quarry, but not being up to removing him himself, he went in search of as-assistance. A well known hockey player known for removing smaller objects from his path, offered his assistance together with a member of the force. After consulting on the best manner of approach, the trio decided to enclose the victim. Forthwith the sturdy one advanced to the spot and proceeded to give the anaesthetic prior to the operation. When the victim was overcome, the sturdy one doffed his medical propensities and became a cowboy, lassoing the victim with a loop of wire. Thereafter followed the thrilling race to the wharf. With about 100 yards of rope attached to the hapless victim, the trio started off on the dead run down the hill followed closely by the skipping intruder. All the while awaiting a rear attack, the trio finally reached the last barrier, and ran the enemy over the wharf to its destruction. Modern piers piers. Greatly relieved at having accomplished this feat without being submitted to an attack from the rear, the trio snopped their flustered brows and returned to the business of the day after a most unpleasant interlude.

Mr. Joseph Clory of Moncton, N. B., was a recent visitor to Georgetown for a few days, where he was the guest of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Clory. He left on return to Moncton on Sunday.

A meeting of the Georgetown Hockey Club was held in the Council Chambers on Tuesday night, a large attendance of players were on hand and heard the report of the committee, which attended the Southern Kings Hockey League meeting in Montague on Monday. This committee reported that the hockey teams from Montague and Murray Harbour had decided not to play any schedule league games in Georgetown this winter. A schedule had been drawn up at the Montague meeting which would necessitate much travel and expense. The situation was discussed at great length and on a vote the following decision was reached: that the president of the Southern Kings Hockey League be notified that under present regulations as voted in by the other two teams of the league that Georgetown would not participate in the regular schedule of the Southern Kings League but would defend the league trophy, which they now hold, in the play-offs. The club secretary was authorized to order black and gold sweaters and stockings. The opinion was expressed that hockey
