WHAT RUSSIA IS DOING.

(Springfield Republican.) Whether the Russians will or lose in isolated encounters they are powerfully aiding the cause of the Allies by the length of the frontier which the Germans and Austrians have to defend. The British fill perhaps 30 miles of trenches 100 miles of frontier. Increased a little by Montenegro, but from the Baltic to Bukovina, following the irregular course of the lines, it is over 1,200 miles, and the whole of this great stretch must be carefully guarded, if not actually occupied in force. To do that would require at least 6,000,000 troops on either side, and not even Russia with its huge population can keep 6,000,000 men content in the trenches. Thus there are gaps and points of concentration, and more room is left for strategy of the normal sort than in the western field where neither side can be flanked. Yet so long as the Russians can avoid absolute disaster, it matters not a little if they suffer repeated defeats. The great point is the extent to which they compel their opponents to strain their resources, and it does not appear that the recent victories of the Germans in Poland and of the Austrians in Bukovina are likely to release any considerable forces for use against the Allies in the west.

THE PERFECT TRUTH

FIRST INSTALMENT OF NEW SERIAL "DOLLY OF THE DAILIES"

The day after Dolly Desmond had started the community with the excellence of her graduation oration, Bobby North, a reporter on the local paper, suggested that it would be a good idea for her to write stories and things for his paper. She decided to write a story, which, although ostensibly fictional, should actually give a truthful picture of life about her as she saw it.

Afterpiece was finished. The editor was delighted with it. It was published under the title "The Perfect Truth: A Story of Real Life," and at Dolly's request, the name of the author was omitted. On the afternoon of the publication of the story, the Ladies Home Sewing Guild was engaged in its customary routine of languid needle work and somnolent gossip.

In graphic, pitiless bits of description, the essential characteristics of each of the members of the "Guild" were set forth so plainly, that there was no possibility of mistaking their several identities. Dolly had used the pen of a satirist with telling effect. Mrs. Broome, the hostess of the house, whose husband was particularly scorned, rushed to the newspaper office and demanded the name of her defamer. The editor refuses, but a note from Dolly on Bobby's desk made all things clear to Mrs. Broome.

The storm centre now shifts to Dolly's house. Instant danger threatens to withdraw their accounts from her father's bank. He commands Dolly to stop the story, but she, for the first time in her life, refuses to comply with her parent's wishes. With the fifty dollars her story had brought her she left for the city to earn her own living. We shall discover later what happened to her there.

Rheumatism, A Sneaking Disease Has At Last Met Its Conqueror

THRORBBING MUSCLES AND SWOLLEN JOINTS MADE WELL

RUB ON NERVILINE

Old age knows no foe more subtle, more unrelenting than rheumatism. At first only a grumbling pain is felt. But alas it settles in the joints and muscles, and finally tortures its victims.

Today the disease may be in the muscles of the back, thigh, shoulder or neck—tomorrow in the joints of the hand, toes, arms or legs it may work with redoubled fury.

Whether the pain is constant or occasional, makes no difference to "Nerviline."

Because other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged. Nerviline has cured the worst of cases. It has brought health to those in the deepest despair, has ended years of awful suffering for those who never hoped to be well again.

There is a marvellous healing power in Nerviline which it derives from the extracts and juices of certain rare herbs and roots. It allays almost magically the awful pain that only rheumatism can describe.

Congestion is drawn out of the muscles, stiffened joints are eased and limbered up, the old time feeling of depression is cast off, and once again Nerviline brings the sufferer to buoyant, vigorous lasting good health.

Every home needs good old Nerviline, needs it for earache, toothache, headache, neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica, stiff neck, chest colds and sore throat. Wherever there is pain, congestion or inflammation, Nerviline will cure it.
