SPICES LIKE MOTHERS

Nearly everybody has a longing for the good things grand-mother used to make. Pickles even when made by grand-mother's receipt, seem to lack something. This lack is in the spices used. Realizing the needs of the housewife and cook, we have made a specialty of pure, fresh pickling spices. We know what spice should be and we have a mixed spice which we should like you to try. Use them and you'll know the secret of grand-mothers good pickles.

THE CHARLOTTETOWN GUARDIAN

TUESDAY MORNING SEPTEMBER 18, 1906.

DEATH OF DR. TAYLOR.

Our citizens received a profound shock last evening on learning of the death of Dr. F. P. Taylor. He had been for some time in failing health, but no one anticipated his early demise. Shortly after 9 o'clock last evening he was taken suddenly worse and Dr. S. R. Jenkins, who resides next door was hastily called in but the patient was already beyond mortal aid. He retained consciousness to the last and passed peacefully away at 9.30 o'clock.

Dr. Francis Perley Taylor, was born in Studholm, near Sussex, New Brunswick, and received his early education there. His medical course in which he distinguished himself, was completed in Edingurgh. He first practised his profession in Sussex, and there is probably no instance in the history of the profession in the Maritime Provinces where a young doctor so quickly obtained a large and lucrative practice. In his profession his ambition was boundless, and down to the close of his active career as a practitioner he kept himself abreast of the times in regard to the latest discoveries and appliance sin medicin and surgery.

In 1869 he removed to this city and here he quickly obtained enduring success in the profession which he loved, until he became its recognised leader in this Province. In the meantime, and throughout his life he took an earnest interest in the advancement of education and rendered most valuable service as a member of the City School Board. The Prince Edward Island Hospital owed its inception and development, as a noble and greatly useful institution largely to Dr. Taylor. To it he gave liberally of his talents, time and money. He was in fact the friend of all useful and progressive measures.

Dr. Taylor was a man of more than ordinary force of character; resolute, sincere and earnest in whatever he undertook and always outspoken for the cause of right. There was no truer friend; there was none who more heartily despised fraud, pretence and sham. He prospered beyond most men in his profession, and won the respect of all to whom he was known. In his occasional public addresses as in private life, he set up lofty ideals. And now, "after life's fitful fever he sleeps well."

Mrs. Taylor to whom he was married in 1869, three sons and one daughter survive him. The sons are Richard N. Trevelyn H. and Russel, opticians, Montreal, and the daughter Perle B. at home. The sons and daughter were all regretably absent at the time of his death and received the sad intellegence by wire. Three sisters and two brothers are in New Brunswick. The Guardian joins in sympathy with the bereaved ones in their great loss which is also a great public loss.

THE CUBAN TROUBLE.

In any endeavor to understand the Cuban trouble it is well to remember that in nearly all the Spanish Americans republics the revolutionary habit prevails. The defeated party in an election resorts to arms, and appeals from the battle of ballots to one of the bullets. In fact the Opposition would be counted a rather spiritless party should it submit quietly to defeat at the polls. Politics, even in Mexico ran on these lines for fifty years until Diaz arose,—one of the strongest men that Spanish America has produced—and gave his country the boon of settled orderly government. It is a dull year in South America or the Spanish West Indies that does not envolve at least an incipient insurrection.

Cuba, with a white population of a million and half as many colored, had seven years of warfare with Spain, when the United States intervened six years ago and gave her freedom. Prosperity followed, and this has been a contributory cause to the present trouble. The revolutionary element has become a little bored with peace and order; besides, the restored plantations afford tempting chances for loot, the memory of which is still fresh in the popular mind. President Palma, having before led a revolution against Spain, might reasonably expect that his own power would be tested in the same way. Besides, there has been, apparently a lot of corruption in both the political and judicial life of the country.

It may be mentioned that the voting lists were unconscionably stuffed and contained one half more names than there could possibly be of duly qualified voters. The Liberal party, now in opposition, at the election of a year ago, seeing that there was no possible chance of success, withdrew their candidate for the Presidency, Jose Mignel Gomez, stayed away from the pools, permitted Palma to be elected for a second term of four years and at once began organising the revolution. It will be remembered that there was a small rising in August of last year and another in December, both of which failed. It is now renewed. It is the old story of politicians out of a job, with negro laborers and other lawless spirits who had rather fight and plunder that settle down to honest work.

THE SUN BEWILDERED.

In the last days of the Mackenzie Government of thirty years ago the Daily Sun was established in St. John as a stalwart Conservative organ. Such it was when the Mackenzie Government fell in 1878, and through the long Conservative regime down to its downfall in 1896 and long afterward. Last spring—it was a backward season—the Sun failed for the first time to warm and cheer the Conservative hosts with its beams. More recently its numerous readers saw their favorite organ totally eclipsed in the political firmament, from which eclipse it has emerged to shed its radiant beams brightly upon the Liberal camp.

This interesting incident in political astromony was a gradual process. It was not exactly timed at any of the great observatories, and had it been so observed it would have been difficult to note precisely the first contact with penumbra, the exact moment when the shadow became total, or the specific hour and minute when the Sun began with growing expansiveness to shed forth its liberal rays upon a temporarily darkened world. Be that as it may it is satisfactory to note that its old-time brilliancy is quite restored, but with some marked difference in the quality of its effulgence.

Viewed in the new light a strange transformation has come over the public men of Canada. Laurier, Fielding, Emmerson and other members of the cabinet who were formerly but political pigmies now appear as giant statesmen, tall and strong and dignified, while Borden, Foster, Monk, et al who formerly stood ten feet high and were adorned with haloes have now shrunk into lilliputian insignificance. They appear utterly bankrupt of political assets, and The Sun's most searching beams fail to reveal any semblance of a policy that they are contending for.

This must seem strange to some of The Sun's readers. It is strange even to The Sun itself, which affirms that "it is all very bewildering to any one who has not been bred to wear party blinders." There is an element of humor in this bewilderment under the circumstances as viewed from the standpoint of independence. We have not noticed any such transformation in the two political parties when viewed from this latitude, as the Sun reveals to the people of St. John. We are inclined to think our contemporary has during the eclipse only exchanged one pair of blinders for another.

And now Russia has famine added to her other troubles.

New York has now a third party with William Randolph Hearst as its candidate for Governor.

It seems that the revolutionists had predicted that Trepoff would not be blown up, shot or stabbed, but would die in his bed, as he did.

Mr. Tarte, who has remained quiet and sensible after being dropped from the cabinet a few years ago, is now to be rewarded with the chairmanship of the Montreal Harbor Commission and $7,000 a year. This may set Mr. Blair thinking.

It is an unfavorable record that only eight out of sixteen samples of milk selected from this Province and tested by the Island Revenue Department were found to be up to the standard. The official report gives the names of the delinquent milkmen. In each of the classes of "watered", "doubtful" and "below average in butter fat" one or more samples were found in both Charlottetown and Summerside.

Our head milliner, Miss Margaret Sloan, has just returned from an extended visit among the best Western t millinery" houses, including some of the brightest of the American milliners—she will be ready for you Wednesday evening 7.30—with a splendid collection of the newest autumn designs in hats and bonnets. WOMEN'S FALL HATS.

Ready With the New Styles.

THE LITTLE TOQUE OR TURBAN in which one may slip the minute a cold snap makes Summery flowers and maline look crushed and flimsy. Practical, wearable Fall Hats are fairly crowding each other to get from the workrooms to the glass cases of the Ready to-Wear Hat Store, and a glimpse of the busy counter shows where Charlottetown women of taste have learned to look for.

INDIVIDUAL AND DISTINCTIVE HATS AT MODERATE COST. The early models are chiefly in the trim, close-fitting effects that go best with the face veils one likes to wear on freezy Autumn days. Trimmings, of course, are the Fall-like velvets and breasts and graceful coque feathers in rich Autumn colorings and black. Plenty of smart bent up felt outing Hats, too, for wear with the new tailored shirt waists.

Not a Hat in the Ready-to-Wear Store ever stepps over $8.00. Some of the new models for Fall range as low as.....$1.98

Sumptuous Furs

A Broad and Artistic Collection

The beauty of fur is twofold. The depth of coloring is enhanced by the soft, graceful lines of the fur garment. It blends with all colors; it softens the lines of all faces and figures. Then fur is highly practical—warm, serviceable; slow to go out of style; always refined and elegant; and becoming to all women.

Our collection this year is more varied and vast ever than before. We have brought together the elegant as well as the practical the finest furs that money can buy; and excellent furs at the most modest prices. All the highest character in peltry and workmanship.

Real Eastern Mink Necklets and Collarettes from $5.00, $8.00, $10.00. $15 00, $20.00 to $30.00. Just as stylish as one double the money.

JAMES PATON & CO.

Women's Dress Skirts---Uncommonly Good Value.

It isn't surprising that we're doing such an increasingly large business in women's ready-to-wear garments. Alert minds and nimble wits are behind our doings in that great second-floor room, $2.50 $3.50, $4.50 $5.50.

New Plaid Ribbons for Belts

WE HAVE BEEN worrying the manufacturers to get them—for never was there such a demand for one particular sort of Ribbon as for these gay plaids and stripes for Fall belts. Clan plaids and bold overplaid Ribbons in dainty colors.

Women's Wraps Reduced.

No question about it—the largest selling of Womens' Coats, and Capes centres at our store—has for ever so long. And there isn't a tailor in the land who would not gladly give us first choice on anylot of garments or cloth that had to be turned into money. It seems foolish to print price lists every day—we'll print none to-day—yet, the offerings are as good as any we've had: better in several lines.

15 Golf Capes, fashionable lengths and made from grey goods plaided on underside, $12.00 and $13 50, your choice for $9.00.
