—FIRST PIP PROPS TO LEAVE ISLAND.—1,200 cords of pit props for Summerside recently to be used in British mines. This industry is something new for Prince Edward Island and is the direct outcome of the domination of Hitler in Norway. The cost mines of Great Britain furnish 90 per cent of pit props for the mines from Norway, but the source of supply is being sought by the authorities turned the attention to Canada. Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island being on the Atlantic are logical sources of supply. The Admiralty place the shipment of pit props on the preferred list next to foodstuffs and have chartered steamers which will be employed to take the shipments to the United Kingdom. Besides the shipment already loaded, two more are expected to load, one in October and another in November. The Admiralty will take on 500 additional cords from Nova Scotia port, Mr. James MacLean is the largest shipper and has been busy all summer getting and buying from the different farmers. His land at the corner of Linkletter road was the assembly place for the recent shipment of 1200 cords. Mr. J. C. Venes of the Acadia Forestry station at Fredericton has been on the island, instructing the Island farmers on the proper way to cut pit props. The main object is to cut the timber so as not to injure the growth for a future supply warning men against needless cutting down of trees and supply. The Department of Mines and Supply has announced that Thomas H. King, former mayor of Moncton, N.E., has been appointed to buy timber for the department for all "refuge" projects in the Maritime. The purchase of pit props will not be included in the projects.

BORDEI

On Monday evening, Borden, like other parts of the island was visited with high winds and heavy rain. About 8 o'clock the electricity line was out of commission, and lamps and candles were brought out during the black-out. As usual during a storm here, most interest was centered on the boats. The car ferry S. S. Charlottetown, although it took over an hour and a half to dock, suffered no mishaps. On this trip of the ferry were 30 airmen from different parts of the Dominion. Many of these had never been on the ferry or on Prince Edward Island before, and arriving as they did in the midst of the worst storm in years, it would be most interesting to hear their first impressions of the Garden of the Gulf. Probably those who suffer most during a storm of this kind are the fishermen, and as elsewhere most of the smaller boats here were sunk. On the following day the sea was quite rough, and the noon freight trip of the S. S. Charlottetown had to be canceled.

Although it is rather early for hockey talk, the writer would like to remind hockey fans that now is the time to prepare, by putting on a pair of skates, to defray expenses of a winter game. So, what say if we get going? Don't forget last year's juveniles and provincial champions, with the exception of two and possibly three members are still intact and will be 100 per cent better than last year, and when these vacancies are filled, which will be easily done from last year's spares, the boys will make a very other juvenile teams do some mighty fast stepping to take a fall out of them, but give the junior and senior teams busy time to set them back. So, let's go, fans, and raise the necessary, for those boys to give them a boost in their Maritime championship this season. The boys need uniforms and plenty of equipment, and you may rest assured that they will not let you down when the opening bell sounds for the face-off of the season.

Demands for Retaliation

I talked with many Londoners last night and today and found a growing demand among the public for retaliatory raids on Berlin.

"Let's give Berlin a dose of the medicine the Jerries are giving us," I was told by a man married less than three weeks, whose new home had been demolished.

In face of this growing demand to bomb the capital of the Reich as London has been bombed, the government continues to base its general bombing policy on military considerations. The fact that few raids have been made on Berlin and that they have been confined to military targets, is because the British government considers it better strategy to concentrate the bombing fleet on Hitler's invasion routes as long as it threatens this country.

To resist like Prime Minister Churchill it is better tactics for Britain and a speedier and surer method of winning the war to disrupt Hitler's invasion plans than to level a few homes and buildings and blow up a few streets in Berlin.

If the blitzkrieg continues indefinitely and if London gets a steady pounding, it may be necessary to force people to leave the city, but there has been no indication of this so far.

The government has started expropriating homes away from the danger areas as temporary accommodation for people whose houses have been demolished. In addition communal feeding centres have been established.

"Amazing Unity" In England Says Sir Evelyn Wrench

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—(CP)—"I am glad to say that in England we never hear the phrase 'if we can,'" said Sir Evelyn Wrench, founder of the Overseas League, and the English-speaking Union of the British Empire, in an address prepared for delivery today to a local service club (Empire Club).

"We all know that we will fight on through the dark moments till dawn breaks on the horizon," he said. "The Old Country is carrying on with grim determination, steadfastness of purpose and great courage, as those of us who know her and love her felt sure she would, from our being sneen down to the humblest citizen."

One of the most difficult things about the war so far had been living in a constant state of unpleasant happenings. "That, of course, was part of Hitler's technique, but he failed to rattle us in the war of nerves. He added, 'Well-informed correspondents in the various European capitals kept continuously warning us of the dire happenings in store for us on such and such a date. 'Wolf, wolf' was cried so often that many Londoners thought that mass bombing over London would never come."

Sir Evelyn said that no picture of Britain at the present time would be complete without the laying of special emphasis on the amazing unity of all sections of the people. "Rich and poor, Tory and Labor, Protestant and Catholic, intellectual and handworker—they all share a common purpose, a determination to defeat the Axis powers."

"I believe that a new Britain will emerge after this war. Many of the old evils will be discarded. Our militia army is serving as a great leaven of the classes. The sons of millionaires and dukes have to go through the ranks like everyone else. The Trades Unionists and workers in our great industries feel that they are in the front line of the battle—as they are. When the story comes to be told of the war they carry, the machines and the aircraft, it will be one of which we all shall be proud."

Close Association

Sir Evelyn referred briefly to the friendship between the British Empire and the United States. "I have never regarded British and American co-operation as something exclusive and detracting from Canadian-British friendship and association."

"I have no patience with the professors and other intellectuals who tell the Canadian people that they have a defence pact with the United States there will be an inevitable drift away from their association with Great Britain and the British Commonwealth."

"I believe that the future of civilization depends on the close association between the British Commonwealth and the American Commonwealth."

"Untapped Pool" Of Human Effort

By GLADYS ARNOLD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 19.—(CP)—Plans for harnessing Canada's great and yet untapped pool of human effort to wartime needs are taking shape under the National War Services Department, Dr. E. W. Stapleford, of Victoria College, Toronto, said today.

"I believe that within a short time we will be able to announce just how we will use this human energy which is eager to be put to work," said Dr. Stapleford, director of Voluntary Services under War Services Minister Gardiner.

Offers of voluntary aid of all descriptions are pouring into the department and Dr. Stapleford anticipated no easy task.

Many offers are from unemployed seeking jobs. Then, too, there are faddists with fantastic schemes and ideas for winning the war, but for the most part the offers are serious, and come from competent people and associations desiring to do something to boost the war effort.

"A short period will be necessary to survey the whole field and the organization of these thousands of offers is going to be no bed of roses," said the director, only recently appointed.

Dr. Stapleford sees his job as twofold—the task of co-ordinating and organizing the voluntary war effort of the Canadian people and the administration of the War Charities Act.

In the latter connection he emphasized that the registration of each money-raising charity organization is coming up shortly for renewal and the present intention is to co-ordinate efforts to raise funds.

Each charity must present an audited account of its expenditures, money raised and the sums devoted to war purposes when asking consideration for re-registration.

Last week-end Mr. Gardiner said a plan looking to restriction of appeals for charitable funds to two main drives annually, one for war charities and the other for civilian welfare work is under study.

BANGOR, Me., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Ernest Max Pursch, of Meisen, Germany was held today for deportation proceedings after immigration officials reported he admitted deserting from a German ship in Philadelphia 25 years ago. He was arrested here yesterday.

Military authorities at Cairo believe that the Royal Air Force and the Mediterranean fleet would be able to cut off supplies to the Italian motorized column advancing along the coast. In their first contact with the Italians, who have advanced 80 miles out of Libya into Egypt in four days, British fighters bombed them disastrously near Buhaug, a communication reported. Bombs were said to have fallen among truck loads of Italian troops, armored cars, tanks, gasoline and water trucks, starting fires seen 100 miles away.

War Loan Dollars Pursue Hitler

One of the 185 German warplanes shot down in mass raids on London, Sept. 15, this big Dornier bomber crashed on the roof of a jeweller's shop across from Victoria station, where air raid workers are pouring water on its blazing wreckage. The plane fell apart as it came down, and odd parts were scattered over a wide area. Londoners saw dozens of raiders fall as R.A.F. fighters piled up their biggest score of victories to date. Germany lost 450 airmen in the day's raids.
