General Agreement On Increasing Danger Of Present Day Hockey

OTTAWA, March 8.—(Special)—Agreement of Friday last that hockey has become one of the most dangerous competitive sports in Canada was expressed here today by top hockey authorities of this capital city.

League executives and governing bodies said they are deeply concerned over the mounting toll of hockey injuries which they attribute largely to the "ganging" style of play that has developed in recent seasons.

Government authorities including those in charge of the Dominion's Physical Fitness Branch were chary of making any suggestions as to betterment of Canada's national game.

Dr. Doris Flewes, acting director of the National Physical Fitness Division said, on the subject of the Guardian's editorial:

"The National Physical Fitness Division has neither the power nor the desire to legislate on rules of the team games in Canada. Any changes must come from the sports governing bodies themselves."

It is recalled that in this connection the Fitness Branch called a meeting of heads of governing bodies of major sports in Canada early in January. While the meeting was productive of much discussion, no actual decisions on improvement in the rules of either hockey or football were recommended.

Health Minister Martin himself said he was concerned over the mounting toll of hockey injuries, but admitted to the Guardian that he was no hockey expert and had little time recently to follow the sport even as a fan.

"I wouldn't like to think," he said, "that a strong, vigorous people like ourselves would be obliged to make any major changes in our great national winter game."

T. P. Gorman, manager of six National Hockey League teams which won the Stanley Cup in the past 25 years blamed the increase in boarding and holding for the heavy hockey casualty lists of the past few seasons.

"If boarding could be eliminated," Mr. Gorman said, "you wouldn't have all these hockey injuries. This business of riding an opponent into the boards has certainly increased in the past decade. I see it at the Montreal Forum a short while back."

"Holding also leads to trouble and injuries," the Ottawa and Montreal sports mogul said. "A man will hold an opposing forward against the boards or on the ice and stop him from shooting. Now holding in itself doesn't send the player to the hospital. But it leads to butt-ending, dirty work with the sticks and fighting on the ice. The Guardian is quite right about the game getting tougher than it was and we're all concerned about cutting down those injuries."

W.G. "Bill" Westwick, sports editor of the Ottawa Journal said hockey observers all over Canada will find themselves in general agreement with the Guardian's views on the increasing roughness of the game.

"I wouldn't go as far as to say hockey is becoming one of the world's most dangerous sports," commented Mr. Westwick. "It doesn't take the toll of life and limb that skiing or international bob-sled racing or automobile racing do, but it's much more dangerous than there's any reason for it to be."

"Of course you can blame the referees, but all in all the referees are doing as good a job as they can. If they are too severe, whistles are blowing all the time and the game isn't worth watching. It's just one of those things; a trend of roughness that's been getting worse in the past few years. Certainly the referees should show no leniency to a player that either hits or charges another from the rear, knocking him down when he isn't looking."

The Ottawa sports writer favors N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell's idea that the forward pass might well be confined to senior hockey only and that the juveniles and juniors play "on-side" hockey until the age of 16.

"After all," he pointed out, "a kid won't take the trouble to learn how to stick-handle around a defenceman or a checker if he can get out of trouble simply by shooting the puck up the ice ahead. There are still some fine stick-handlers in professional and senior amateur hockey but I think Mr. Campbell's idea of keeping the youngsters at the "on-side" game is a good one."

"Bucko" McDonald, sole hockey expert of the House of Commons, is known to share the current concern of all Canadian hockey-lovers over the growing roughness of the game.

The M.P. for Parry Sound, Ont., and former New York Rangers defenceman, has never favored "ganging" hockey methods. At present he is coaching one of the top "B" teams in his constituency and is with them on the road.

Boxing Bodies Divided On Proposed Fight

NEW YORK, Mar. 8.—Joe Louis said today that Eddie Egan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, had rejected his request to have the proposed Edward Charles-Jersey Joe Walcott heavyweight boxing bout sanctioned here as for the world's championship.

The Brown Bomber told a press conference that he met Egan this morning and Egan was "friendly and offered to help me in any way."

"The commissioner told me that he could not sanction any one fight as for the world's championship," Louis said.

Abe Green, commissioner of the National Boxing Association, already has given Louis' recently formed International Boxing Club permission to name the Charles-Walcott winner the "world's champion."

Louis said he would like to have the blessings of both bodies and didn't relish the idea of dual champions. He said he considered both fight bodies as equally im-

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Max Lanier and Fred Martin, who once pitched for St. Louis Cardinals, sued organized baseball for damages totalling $250,000 today in an effort to break the five-year suspensions imposed on them for jumping to the Mexican league.

They also obtained a Federal Court order directing organized baseball to show cause March 15 why it should not be temporarily restrained from barring them and from demanding that players sign contracts containing "either a reserve or a termination clause."

The reserve clause—often called the backbone of professional baseball—was attacked as a violation of the anti-trust laws in the suits filed in Federal Court here by John L. Flynn, New York lawyer.

Abbies And Murray Harbor Play Tonight

Charlie Ryan's Intermediate Abbies will have a tough battle on their hands, if they want to stay in Island Intermediate hockey playoff competition, when they clash with the Murray Harbor intermediates at the Forum tonight in the final game of their home and home, total goal series in the Island semi-finals.

The Abbies will have to make up a three-goal deficit in order to win out tonight, as the result of their 5-2 defeat at Murray Harbor on Monday night in the opening game of the series.

The winner will advance into the final round against the Western Division winners, the Summerside Intermediates.

This will be a tough proposition for the local squad against the rugged band of King's County representatives, but the Abbies have plenty on the ball and are an aggressive outfit and with the game on home ice certainly should make a good bid for upsetting the applicant.

Regardless of who will be the final winner, however, tonight's encounter should be a keenly contested affair which will produce plenty of fireworks and smart hockey to satisfy the expectations of attending hockey fans and supporters.

A special train from Murray Harbor will bring the visiting team and their many supporters to the City for the game tonight.

Conacher And Bentley Pool Scoring Pot

CHICAGO, March 7.—(AP)—Chicago's Roy Conacher and Doug Bentley are running one-two in the National Hockey League scoring race. Today they agreed to pool a $1,500 scoring pot to help their club's desperate try to gain the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Conacher, currently having 25 goals and 41 assists for 66 points, leads in the league race for top scoring spot which pays $1,000. Bentley is second, two points behind with 22 goals and 42 assists. The league pays $500 to the No. 2 scorer.

With five league games left to play, the Black Hawks are eight points out of fourth place, the last qualifying spot for the playoffs. The fourth-spot Toronto Maple Leafs have 21 wins and 20 losses for 55 points. The Hawks are fifth with 47 points on a 20-28 record.

Johnny Gottselig of the Hawk front office said the Conacher-Bentley agreement established a league precedent, although teammates previously had battled for scoring honors.

In the 1930-40 race, the Boston Bruins had three top contenders with Milt Schmidt finally winning out over Woody Dumart and Bob Bauer. Bryan Hextall and Lynn Patrick of the New York Rangers finished one-two in 1941-42.

"Roy and Doug thought it best to divide the $1,500 evenly, no matter who wins the scoring title, for the good of the club," said Gottselig. "They realized it would help the team to know that there would be no two-man race for points at a possible cost of missing the playoffs."

Out of the meeting emerged these principal points:

1. Since Egan won't sanction the Charles-Walcott "title" fight here, it will be held outside this state, probably in Chicago.

2. Louis said he definitely would not fight again. And if he should change his mind—this in answer to a question—he would not consider himself champion but a challenger.

3. Louis has no other fighters signed up outside of Charles and Walcott.

This last point stirred most of the controversy since the 20th Century Sporting Club also claims it has Charles signed to a contract.

Scottish Brushes To Rest at Moncton

MONCTON, March 8.—The famous Scottish curling "brushes" which gave rise to considerable friendly argument as to the superiority of the "broom" or the "brush" during the tour of Canada and the United States of the Scottish curlers early this year, are going to find a resting place in the Moncton Curling Club.

At a special dinner at the Moncton Club on Saturday night, R. B. Graham, general superintendent, Canadian National Railways here, officially presented the brushes to president James MacMurray. The brushes were given to Mr. Graham at a farewell party prior to the sailing of the Scottish curlers last February.
