Applications for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Land Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situated. (2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming and owned solely by him not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent in the vicinity of the homestead, or upon a homestead entered by him in the vicinity such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father, or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line, exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent or the district of such intention. Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

WHERE LOCUSTS ARE FOOD.

Locusts are a table luxury in Palestine and other places. The Jews fry them in sesame oil. In Arabia Petraea locusts are dried in the sun and ground into a kind of flour for baking. In Central Africa certain tribes make them into thick brown soup.

In Madagascar they are baked in huge jars, then fried in grease and mixed with rice. In Algeria they simply are boiled in water and salted to taste. The Arabs grind and bake them as cakes, roast them in butter or crush them with camel's cheese and dates. But they only resort to this fare in time of famine. In Southern Russia, where locusts still are extensively eaten by the serfs, the insects usually are smoked in the first instance like fish.

When required for consumption the legs and wings are broken off and the bodies are boiled, roasted, stewed, fried or broiled. The flavor of locusts, while strong and disagreeable, becomes mild and readily disguised when cooked. Some locust soups scarcely are to be distinguished from beef broth. Fried in their own oil and slightly salted they acquire a pleasant nutty flavor.

Locust-eating tribes invariably grow fat when the food is plentiful. Grubs an caterpillars are eaten with avidity by Parisians, and butterflies are eaten by the natives of Australia, New Guinea and other islands. Silkworms in China and harvest flies by some Africans.

Your place, sir, will never be filled," said a reporter to Heinrich following.
