Education is the stepping stone to progress and prosperity. You, as parents, know this and send your children to school that they may not be handicapped in future years. But do you know that about seven out of every ten school children in this country have defective eyes? Do you know that defective eyes are frequently the cause of poor school work, even though the child is naturally bright? Have your child's eyes examined now and know what their condition is—do not guess. G. F. Hutcheson Optometrist

The years best book by America's best woman writer "BLACK OXEN" by GERTRUDE ATHERTON Published by arrangement with Associated First National Pictures, Inc. Watch for the screen version produced by Frank Lloyd with Corinne Griffith as Countess Zaltiany. The young editors, critics, special writers, were enchanted. This was life! At last! Moreover it was Democracy. These young and able men, having renounced their earlier socialism, their sense of humor, recognizing its disharmony with high salaries and pleasant living, were hot for Democracy. Nothing paid like Democracy in this heaving world. The Democratic wave rose and roared. Symbolic was this violent eruption of small town fiction, as realistic as the kitchen, as pessimistic as Wall Street. All virtue, all hope, all idealism had gone out of the world. Romance, for that matter, never had existed and it was high time the stupid world was forcibly purged of its immemorial illusion. Life was and ever had been sordid, commonplace, ignoble, vulgar, immedicable; refinement was a cowardly veneer that was beneath any seeker after Truth, and Truth was all that mattered. Love was a laugh. Happiness was a delusion, and content the delusion of morons (a word now hotly racing "authentic.") As for those verbal criminals, "loyalty" and "patriotism"—fecit vomitare. Their success was colossal. Gora Dwight caught the crest of the wave and sold three hundred thousand copies of "Fools." She immediately signed a contract with a publisher, and the "woman's magazines" for the serial rights of her next novel for thirty thousand dollars, and received a corresponding advance from her publisher. Her short stories sold for two thousand dollars apiece, and her first novel was exhumed and had a heavy sale. It was difficult to be pessimistic with a hundred thousand dollars in bonds and mortgages and the deed of a house in her strong box, but Gora Dwight was an artist and could always fall back on technique. But although her book was the intellectual expression of wildly distorted complexes, owing to the disillusionments of war, the humiliation of her ego in woman's most disastrous adventure, and the consequent regression of all her deepest urges, she deserved her success far more than any of her adolescent rivals. She had formed her style in the days of complete normalcy, and not only was that style distinguished, vigorous and individual, but she was able to convey her extremest realism so subtly and yet so ambiguously that she could afford to disdain the latitudes of the "younger school." A marvelous feat. Most of them used the frigid vocabulary of the middle bourgeoisie, alone synonymous with Truth. Never before had such words invaded the sacrosanct pages of American letters. Little they recked, as Mr. Lee Clavering, who took the entire school as an obscene joke, pointed out, that they were but taking the shortest cut—advantages of the post-war license affecting all classes—to save themselves the exhausting effort of acquiring a vocabulary and forming a style. The spade as a symbol vanished from fiction. Miss Dwight had her own ideals, little as she permitted, her unfortunate characters to have any, and not only was she a consummate master of words and of the art of suggestion, but she had been brought up by frigate parents who held that certain words were not to be used in refined society. The impressions received in plastic years were not to be obliterated by any fad of the hour. No one knew, not even her fellow Californians, that she had had a disastrous love affair, which had culminated in an attempt to murder her beautiful sister-in-law. Her certain words were not to be used in refined society. The impressions received in plastic years were not to be obliterated by any fad of the hour. SAVED FROM AN OPERATION Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Washington, D.C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run down after five years after little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 90. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use this testimonial for I am only too glad to let suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me." Mrs. IDA HEWITT, 1529 Penna. Ave. S.E., Washington, D.C. Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Middle Ground By Marion Rubincam. AMY'S DECISION Chapter 24. It was June when Mrs. Talbot's family first gathered about her. It was well into July now, when Claire announced that she could not stand any more country life. She was to leave in a few days—she only delayed to have clothes laundered and to write to her maid in the city to open and clean the apartment for her return. Amy was told she could go—to that girls' unbounded joy. Amy did practically no sleeping between the time she knew she was to go away and the actual departure. She flew from end to end of the house, and about the lawn, her red hair making sunlight wherever she went, her eyes alight. She would break out into trills and songs—then repress herself, knowing that her voice annoyed her father and her joy only depressed her mother.

How to Prevent Biliousness Doctors warn against remedies containing powerful drugs and alcohol. "The Extract of Roots, long known as Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup, has no dope or strong ingredients; it chases away indigestion, biliousness and constipation. Can be had at any drug store." Get the genuine, 50c. and $1.00 Bottles.

ANY ADDED, giving herself the compliment she had not been able to coax out of Dick. "Where is the woman who cannot, if she tries, upset every preconceived notion and prejudice a man has—if she begins on him young enough? Dick had disliked red hair because when he was a child, Amy was called "carrot-patch." Sunday morning and Sunday evening he sat in the church watching her, heart-hungry because she was leaving. Amy sang in the choir, a demure figure in black with a little hat that scarcely covered her hair. There was no aesthetic background of stained glass, no mysterious gathering of shadows, no vastness of architecture to set off her prettiness, to idealize her. But Dick suddenly felt romance stirring within him: Amy became to him an angel with an aura of light about her head, a halo or nimbus of her own glorious hair, whose voice poured out in divine melodies. He had a wild desire to say all sorts of romantic things to her, to go out and overcome all sorts of obstacles for her admiration. He fancied great dangers threatening her, from which he would rescue her.

OUCH! My Back! Rub Lumbago Pain Away St. Jacob's Oil stops any pain, so when your back is sore and lame, or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of oil, honest St. Jacob's Oil at any drug store, pour a little in your hand, and rub it right on your aching back; and by the time you count fifty the soreness and lameness is gone. Don't stay crippled; This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless, and doesn't burn the skin. Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints, 201

Chair that exactly fitted his spine and enjoyed contrasting his with the other woman. Gora Dwight had no beauty, but she negated unnoted in a crowd, even if unrecognized. Her oval eyes were a pale clear gray, cold almost sinister, and she wore her mass of rich brown hair on top of her head and down to her heavy eyebrows. Her mouth was straight and sharply cut, but mobile and capable of relating into a charming smile, and she had beautiful teeth. The nose was short and emphatic, the jawbone salient. It was, altogether, a disharmonious type, for the head was long and the face short, broad across the high cheekbones; and her large light eyes set in her small dark face produced a disconcerting effect on sensitive people, but more often fascinated them. Clavering had been told that in her California days she had possessed a superb bust, but long years of unremitting work in France and England had taken toll of her flesh and it had never returned she was very thin and the squareness of her frame was emphasized by the strong uncompromising bones. But her feet and her brown hair were long and narrow and the straight lines of the present fashion were becoming to her. She wore today a gown of dark red velvet trimmed with brown fur and a touch of gold in the region of the waist. It was known that she got her clothes at the "best houses." She was a curious mixture, Clavering reflected, and not the least contradictory thing about her was the way in which her rather sullen face could light up exactly as if some inner flame kept suddenly behind those unmyopic eyes and shed its light over the very muscles of her cheeks and under her skin. The oddest of her traits was her apparent pleasure in seeing a man comfortable while she looked like a ramrod herself; and she was the easiest of mortals to talk to when she was in the right mood. She was morose at times, but her favorites were seldom afflicted with her moods, and of all her favorites Clavering reigned supreme. This he knew and took advantage of after the fashion of his sex. He told her all his troubles, his ambitions, which he believed to be futile—he had written plays which his own criticism had damned and no eye but his own and Gora Dwight's had ever seen—and she refreshed and stimulated his mind when his daily column must be written and his brain was stagnant. She also knew of his secret quest of the one woman and had been the repository of several fleeting hopes. And never for a moment had she thought him saturnine or disillusioned. Not she! Gora Dwight had an extraordinary knowledge of men for a woman to whom men did not make love. But if she had neither beauty nor allure she had genius and a father confessor hardly knows more about women than a nurse about men. Moreover, she had arts, little as men suspected it. Long ago she had read an appraisal of Madame Recamier by Sainte-Beuve: "She listens avec seduction." Gora had no intention of practicing seduction in any of its forms, but she listened and she never betrayed, and her reward was that men sound and whole, and full of man's inherent and technical peculiarities, had confided in her. Altogether she was well equipped for fiction. (To be Continued.) "Dear me!" I've broken my looking glass. Seven years of bad luck, I s'pose." Mrs. Harris: "Don't you believe it, Mrs. Brown. A friend o' mine broke hers, and she didn't have no seven years! She was killed in an explosion two days later; so you needn't worry."
