Very Sorry

WE are really very sorry to dissapoint so many people, but if we were producing five times our present output of

PORT HOOD COAL

we could not keep pace with the demand. PORT HOOD is probably the most popular house coal the Canadian Market has ever seen.

Where Eye Troubles Begin

Most eye troubles begin childhood.
A little abuse—a little strain in early life,—means much more after maturity.
The slightest symptom should be looked to.
Often, glasses are prescribed in time—actual disease is prevented—and they can be discarded as the child grows older.
Ask your doctor or come to us and have your boy or girl's eyes tested, and fitted with glasses only if needed.

Buy from the Producers

It pays to buy direct from the producer. In the large American cities business is so arranged that only those who buy very largely can avail themselves of this advantage—but thank goodness we have not as yet any big combines or trusts to snap up all the producer can grow, and make prices to suit themselves. We are producers, we grow and we sell direct to the consumer and our prices are so low that many wonder how we make ends meet. Our profits are small we admit—but our large sales carry us through.

Shippers, traders and anyone in need of a lb of vegetables will find it to their advantage to look up our prices on celery by the 1000, barrel or doz, onions by the bbl or 10 lb lots, cabbage by the ton or doz, parsnips, carrots and beets by the 100, barrel or bush, indeed anything in the vegetable line, see our prices, in a word buy from the producer when you can.—J. The Wisdom of Lorenzo.

The Theorist put on his wisest look. "Orlando, my friend and brother," he said, "let me advise thee. Because a maid is passing fair thou must not cast thy heart before her. Thou shouldst steel thy heart against smiles; but, no, thou winkest like a jester. Gadzooks! 'twill never do. Think of thy family, of thy great ancestor who held the keys of a King's wine cellar. Think thou of him and let thy pride bear thee up. Thou must beware the pitfalls and the snares, else will all be lost and thou bound, yea chained, in wedlock to a maid below thy station.

"Orlando, my friend and brother, let me tell thee how to pick a wife. As thou knowest, men call me Lorenzo the Wise, and 'tis a name that by the saints I well deserve. By that name, which I hold precious, by that name, I say, will I reveal to thee the secret of true happiness. Thou must use reason. Fools tell thee that Love and Logic are enemies and would have thee dash into courtship like a knight into battle. It is for thee to reconcile these enemies, for Love without Logic is honey without bread and thou wilt soon be sickened. Do I not know how I myself have suffered? Did I not wed a woman with the temper of a Tartar, and am I not bald and broken?

"When thou seest a maid that strikes thy fancy, study her well, Orlando. Ask thyself if it be really love that has come upon thee. Prithee, mistake it not, good Orlando. 'Tis a strange disease, but if thou art truly stricken bring thy reason to thy aid. Assure thyself that her temper be sweet. Remember wedlock is not for a day. Perhaps thou shalt be compelled to see that oval face grow peaked, that brow wrinkle, and those eyes lose lustre. Wilt thou love her then, Orlando? Thou canst not be too cautious. Learn if her tastes be like thine, for that is all-important, good Orlando. Then, thou must not forget what I have said about marrying beneath thy station. If her father be a plain man, an unfortunate without ancestors, a fellow who cannot say, 'My grandsire was cupbearer to a drunken King,' thou must give her up, even though thy heart shall pain thee like an aching tooth. That is my counsel, Orlando. I have said my say. Ponder it well, my friend and brother, and future years will find thee blessing the memory of Lorenzo the Wise."

Orlando smoothed his ribbons and twirled his cane. In truth he was something of a fop, and, having the conceit of his class, seemed little impressed by the words of the good Lorenzo. "Art through, Sir Wisdom?" he asked haughtily. "If so let the wise Orlando have a single word, nay two. Forget it."

Lorenzo sadly went upon his way, and the twain came not together until years had passed. Orlando had been away to the wars, and had come back with a great stock of reminiscences, a taste for strange vintages, and something else. They met one day upon the highway and after the greeting Lorenzo asked:

"Orlando, my friend and brother, how hast thou fared?"

"Thou meanest how have we fared," responded Orlando. "I would have thee to know that I have taken unto myself a wife."

"Gadzooks!" ejaculated Lorenzo. "And didst thou study her well?"

"Yea, and the more I studied her the more was I lost in wonderment."

"What was her station, good Orlando?"

"Breathe it softly, if thou lovest me. An innkeeper's daughter."

"Again Gadzooks! Doth she possess learning? I wot not."

"There thou art in error. She knoweth little of books, but few excelleth her in a knowledge of the wiles of love."

"Thy rashness runneth back for years, I venture?"

"Full seven years."

"The wiles of love groweth wearisome, and man longeth for the sight of a fresh face. Orlando, my friend and brother, I fear thou hast ruined thy life. Why didst thou not remember thy great ancestor?"

"A man's ancestors be dead and his sweetheart liveth."

"She hath tastes like thine?"

"Nay. She hateth Greek, liketh the play, and goeth wild when mountebanks performeth in the market place."

"Thou art vastly different. Thou canst have no peace in thy household."

"Canst, didst thou say? Thou art wrong, Lorenzo. Look thou upon a man who is deliriously happy. Thou gavest me advice, and I pondered it well. Then did I reject it bit by bit, and as the light heart often giveth the best counsel I heeded its promptings and found happiness. Thou sought to make me miserable, Sir Wisdom, and now I say, 'Have done with thee!' Back to thy cave!"

And once again Lorenzo went sadly upon his way.—John Taylor Waldorf.

TEETH

The best way to do a difficult thing is to divide it into parts and put a specialist on each part.

That is the way we practice dentistry.

Painlessness

In addition to specialists for each branch we offer patients another great advantage not found elsewhere, namely "The Berlin System" for filling, crowning, or extracting teeth without pain. Unlike most methods it does not depend on one or two ways of killing pain, but embraces ten enough to overcome all the pain caused by work on the teeth

Advantage in Magnitude

The great advantage in a large practice like ours is that there is enough work in each department to keep specialists constantly employed. "Practice makes perfect."

Teeth Extracted Without Pain

We simply put a little medicine around the tooth and lift it out painlessly, any number of teeth can be extracted at one sitting without any bad after effects. Skilled experience combined with modern appliances now make this operation one of pleasantness and satisfaction combined.

For persons of over nervous or timid dispositions, who desire unconsciousness during the operation we have "nitrous oxide gas."

Artificial Teeth properly made restore the natural expression of the mouth and preserve the youthful contour of the face.
