"Mountain Justice" At the Capitol

The fanaticism and intolerance of certain dwellers in remote hill-countries are revealed in "Mountain Justice," now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

This thrilling picture which is not alone a dramatic sociological document, but a tender romance, co-stars George Brent.

Miss Hutchinson portrays Ruth Harkins, a young mountaineer girl who has a taste of life and education in the "outside," and returns to her hamlet eager to bring health and education to at least the children of the back woods. Her one sympathizer and aide in this is Guy Kibbe, a genial old physician.

Her worst enemy and opponent is her own father, played by Robert Barrat, a bitter fanatic who hates everything taught by "civilization."

Things come to such a pass that the elder daughter, Miss Hutchinson, in a fight for her own life is obliged to kill her father. George Brent, a brilliant young attorney who has met her in New York and learns to love her, comes to her rescue and defends her at her trial for murder.

By a thrilling stratagem, she is removed from the prison and flown to another State, whose Government refuses to grant extradition papers, so she remains free.

"Mountain Justice" is a severe indictment of the backwardness of certain parts of the civilized United States. Others in the cast, besides those named, include Mona Barrie, Margaret Hamilton, Robert McWade, Fuzzy Knight, Edward Pawley.

Taylor she was the last surviving member of the family, her brothers, Thos. and Joseph L. of this city having predeceased her a number of years ago, besides some others residing in U.S.A. and western Canada.

The late Mrs. McPherson was a member of Trinity United Church since union and of the former Methodist Church, being one of the few remaining members before the present church was built. Her interest to the last was very real in her church and she was a regular attendant up to about three years ago.

She will be greatly missed by her wide circle of relatives and friends, to whom she was affectionately known as "Aunt Maggie."

Many were the tales she told of the days that are gone, with the exceptional wit which was characteristic of her, her mind being clear to the last.

She leaves to mourn a daughter Euphemia, Mrs. Wm. Drake, who tenderly cared for her mother for a number of years. A son William passed away in Boston a few months ago, whose death came as a great shock to his mother and seemed to hasten her going.

Her funeral was largely attended, Rev. Hugh Miller officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the People's Cemetery.

Youth Training Plan Outlined By Supervisor

The Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Plan was started about a year and a half ago under the National Employment Commission directed by Mr. Arthur B. Purvis, said Mr. R. F. Thompson, supervisor of the project when speaking at Rotary yesterday.

Something had to be done to help the 150,000 to 175,000 men between the ages of 18 and 25 who were not gainfully employed, said Mr. Thompson, explaining the origin of the plan.

There is an over-emphasis in our educational system on the academic side, and not enough vocational instruction. Consequently there was a lack of proper guidance in fitting young people to take their place in the economic system. When a boy or girl left school they figuratively "walked the plank." It was the job of the training movement to overcome the lack of coordination between school and industry.

Mr. Thompson pointed out that the age when youths were permitted to leave school was not the same in all provinces. Much trouble was caused by the "casual" employment of youths about 15 years of age. When they had worked a few years and were discharged they had not the training or education to fit them for permanent positions elsewhere.

There is a lack of skilled workmen at the present time and men to fill these positions were being imported.

Another cause for the rise in unemployment was the influx of youths to the cities. These men and women had been gainfully employed in rural areas but thinking to better themselves they gave up their jobs and had not been able to obtain the employment they sought.

A million dollars had been voted to carry on the work of the movement. This has been allocated to the different provinces on a dollar for dollar basis. Each province was selected youths between the ages of 18 and 20 years. The youths could not pay for their training. The selection was left in the hands of the Provincial Government and was subject to approval of the committee. Every effort was to be made to see that no discrimination be made as to the racial, religious or political beliefs of the applicant. Mr. Thompson added that the committee had found the finest cooperation from all provinces in this regard.

Those selected for training were given a living allowance during their apprenticeship and if they came from outside points their travelling expenses were paid.

He gave an instance in the province of Alberta where 1,200 youths gathered in a village to take an advertised course and the government had not been called upon to pay one cent either for their transportation or their board.

Training has been given in forestry, mining, motor mechanics, technical subjects, agriculture, household economics, salesmanship, handicrafts, blacksmithing, farm carpentry and fishing.

At the end of December over 20,000 youths had enrolled in some branch of the plan.

He concluded by asking the cooperation of the members of the Rotary Club and asked that they feel free to make suggestions for the carrying on and improvement of the plan at any time.

Rotarian Walter R. Shaw was in the chair. Miss Jean Rodd supervisor, Miss Louise Hazzard, assistant supervisor of the Workmen's Institutes, and Miss Mona Wilson, Chief Provincial Health Nurse, were guests.

Two new members, T. B. Rogers and Dr. Harold Shaw, were introduced respectively by Jack Sterne and Fred Colwell, and "charged" by Past District Governor Walter Grant.

Rotarian Roy Kendall, pianist of the club, was welcomed back after his six weeks' illness.

President Neil MacLean read a letter from D. A. MacKinnon, president of the Red Cross, thanking the club for a donation of a thousand dollars on behalf of crippled children.

On motion of the directors, a sum not to exceed $200 for the dental clinic of Charlottetown, after Rotarian Dr. Heath MacIntyre told what this clinic has been doing and what the plans were for the future.

THE ELMWOOD SCHOOL CONCERT

The Elmwood School Concert was held in the school on the evening of December 23rd attended by a very large crowd which occupied all available space in the excellently equipped and gaily decorated classroom. This despite bad roads and inclement weather was occasioned by the excellent reports circulated by those in the know previous to the concert. And those who came were not disappointed. For within the memory of the oldest present no recollection of a finer concert would be found. From the thinnest to the senior pupils, all performed like seasoned trouper with years of experience in treading the boards. Fluent gestures, clear and distinct articulation and enunciation were features of this performance well worthy of mention.

From the moment little Jean Dechery opened the program with a welcome, through the recital of dialogues, recitations, songs, and exercises, to the final chorus, the audience was held in rapt attention, periodically punctuated with thunderous and spontaneous applause. We must mention a dark-face comedy motion song, by fine boys, which was, to put it mildly, a scream. And then there was Leo Gallant's vocal solo, so good that he had to oblige with two encores. Time and space does not permit a more extended account, but suffice it to say that each and every pupil should be proud of a concert which hit a new high in this locality for juvenile entertainment.

During the intermission, a sale of home made candy was conducted, and in this period, Miss Evelyn and Mr. Raymond Gallant supplied very much appreciated instrumental music.

Immediately following the program, Jolly O' St. Nick arrived to distribute gifts from a heavily laden tree. This being completed, he wished one and all a Merry Christmas, and was off into the night. A pleasant evening was over, but the memory of it lingers still.

Gladys Walker winners of prize. Questionnaires on education and current events were filled in. Miss Mamie Mill and Mrs. Harold Laird to prepare program for next night. Meeting closed by singing National Anthem.

Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat At Prince Edward

"Knight Without Armour," the long-awaited vehicle in which the screen's perfect romantic team, Robert Donat and Marlene Dietrich, are co-starred and which is now playing at the Prince Edward Theatre, is based on James Hilton's popular novel of modern adventure. It deals with a young British secret service agent who is drawn into revolutionary activities in St. Petersburg before the war and is sentenced to Siberia. On his release he is made an official of the existing government and into his charge is placed the lovely Countess Alexander, whom, in pre-war days, he had worshipped humbly from afar. Their flight from the advancing White army, and later—when love overrides political allegiance—from the Reds, proves the breathtaking climax of the film.

"Knight Without Armour" is the most lavish picture to come from the Denham studios of Alexander Korda and represents the first appearance of Marlene Dietrich opposite Robert Donat, the popular hero of John Buchan's "Step" and whose parents formerly resided in Kentville, N. S., and whose brother, Philip Donat, is now a resident of that town.

For certain of the flight sequences, in which Donat is seen taking his exotic prisoner to St. Petersburg, an entire mile of railway line was laid out in a long curve of the woods near the studios. The entire sequence, incidentally, was shot during a violent downpour, for the depressing effect of the rain, with the shabby refugees huddled on the boggy ground.

BORDEN INSTITUTE BANQUET

A most enjoyable function was held on January 11th when the Borden Women's Institute gave a banquet having as their guests the members of the Institute and their husbands. The banquet was held as a social treat to the members of the Institute and also to tender appreciation to the cast of the play "The Eyes of Love" which has been so successful during the past summer. Mr. Charles MacArthur very efficiently acted as toast master and when all were seated, opened the banquet with a few pleasing remarks after which Mrs. Herring, President of the Institute in a short address welcomed those present. Mr. MacArthur after reading a splendid article on the duty of the Dominions, proposed a toast to the King which was responded to by singing God Save the King. The sumptuous repast was then served and heartily enjoyed by all. The following toasts were then proposed: Borden, responded to by Mayor Laird; Cast of the play "The Eyes of Love", responded to by Mr. Reginald Rogers; The Women's Institute, responded to by Mrs. Herring. Immediately following the banquet a presentation was made to one of the Institute members, Miss Adele Read, who leaves in the near future for Montreal. The address to Miss Read was read by Mrs. Lorne MacAler. Mrs. Herring making the presentation of a farewell gift from the Institute. Miss Read replied by briefly thanking the members for so kindly remembering her. The evening was then pleasantly spent in singing and games. Before departing for their homes a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the Women's Institute for a very happy evening as well as the splendid repast provided.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Burton, M.D.

THE LIVER IS THE GREAT PROVIDER OF THE BODY

I have written so much and so often about the liver that my readers may think I am too much "liver-minded." Yet when I remember that the liver has been rightfully called the "king of the organs" I realize that nothing I could write touches the health of my readers to the same extent as the liver.

As mentioned before the liver is the largest organ in the body, contains at least one-quarter of all the blood in the body, manufactures bile for breaking up fats, killing off harmful organisms, and aiding bowel movements (Nature's purgative), stores up sugar for future needs, supplies some of the substances forming the blood, filters poisons out of the blood, and does other useful duties in the body. It is not to be wondered at therefore that with all these forms of work so many individuals have a "little trouble" with their liver. And this little trouble usually due to eating meats that are too large, or meals containing too much fat and starch foods.

The other reason for having a little trouble with the liver is lack of exercise of the trunk or body—not enough bending and twisting to squeeze the liver and help its circulation, and not enough general exercise to make the lower part of the lungs go down and squeeze the floor of the chest against the liver lying beneath it.

It is certainly of great interest to all of us to have Dr. F. C. Mann, Mayo Clinic, in the American Journal of Digestive Diseases and Nutrition, refer to the liver as the commissariat (provisions and transport of an army) of the body. Dr. Mann believes that he has collected sufficient evidence to show the importance of the liver in maintaining a constant supply of "usable" food for the body. "The liver can be considered as a large 'storage' and 'manufacturing' plant constantly teeming with activity." Through and by means of its cells are transported the various materials on which the tissues of the body must rely for their source of energy, growth, and repair, and for maintaining the processes of life. Surely the liver can be called the "provider" of the body.
