Indians Contributing To War Effort

Indians in practically every part of Canada are contributing generously to Canada's war effort, their donations taking many forms. Reports by returning treaty-paying parties and by Indian agents to the Department of Mines and Resources at Ottawa tell of how whole-heartedly the Indians are behind the Dominion in the conduct of the war. Not only have the Indians been anxious to turn over substantial sums from band funds for the purchase of war bonds and certificates and for other war services, but they have dipped deeply into their meagre personal funds to help the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, and the care of evacuated children. Records maintained in the Indian Affairs Branch show that donations made to date to war services total nearly $3,000. This figure represents only part of the contributions made as press and other reports indicate that many subscriptions have gone directly to the local service organizations, while donations of furs, clothing, and other articles have not been given a monetary value.

A treaty-paying officer who recently returned form northern Manitoba reported a donation of $260.65 by the bands in the Norway House Agency. The extent of the personal sacrifice made by the Indians in these bands to gather such a sum will be better understood when it is remembered that practically the only money seen by these Indians is at treaty paying time. Each Indian receives $5 and undoubtedly a goodly part of each treaty payment went to make up this donation. Indians from the Island Lake, Gods Lake, Oxford House, Cross Lake, and Norway House bands contributed.

Other contributions of which the Department has been advised or is handling include those from various bands in Ontario, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. The Red Cross is the most popular object to which the Indians donate. The six Nations Indians at Brantford made the handsome donation of $1,000 to this worthy cause, and the blackfoot Band in southern Alberta made a contribution of $1 per head of the band, the Red Cross benefiting to the extent of $350. Other donations included: Mississaugas of the Credit (Brantford), $150; Rice Lake Band (Peterborough) Red Cross, $100; Salvation Army, $100; Parry Island Band, Parry Sound, $5; Tyendinaga Band, Belleville, $100; Cape Croker Band, Bruce Peninsula $100; Cohancowace Band, Regina, Sask., $17.50; Couchiching Band, Fort Frances, Ont., $69; Car Lake Band, Northern Ontario, $12.

Canadian Indians gave generously of their man power in the first Great War and in the present struggle they are again well represented in units serving overseas and at home. On many of the reserves Indian women refuse to be outdone by their menfolk and are entering into the work of the various war services with enthusiasm.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

The Sunday morning service of Trinity United Church was conducted by Rev. Hugh Miller. Mr. Miller chose as his theme the story of the devotions of the Pharisee and the Publican, and showed plainly how the insincerity and conceit of people today in matters of religion, still divides church-goers into the classes represented by the Pharisee and Publican. At the close of the service a large number participated in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Rev. Donald Boothroyd spoke in the evening on the topic, "The Abundant Life." He said that three qualities were necessary to an abundant life. First, there must be a worthwhile purpose; secondly, such a life must be fortified by hope, and love toward man, and communion with God. Even Jesus had to fortify His life at times; then how much more need we to lean on God. Thirdly, an abundant life must be a dedicated one, for it is only by putting our hand into the hand of God that we can hope to do anything to better the condition of mankind. Included in the musical part of the services were three anthems, very enjoyably sung by the choir. "Seek Ye the Lord," in the morning, the soloist part being taken by Mr. Harvey MacPherson, and in the evening the two anthems, "Lead Kindly Light."—A. S. Sullivan, and "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus."—Shaw.

Army Chaplains Busy Workmen

TORONTO, Sept. 28—An Army Chaplain's work in war time is not merely a matter of conducting church parades, says The Canadian Churchman, official organ of the Church of England in Canada.

Most of the recreations of the unit, from football matches to checker tournaments, are arranged by the padre, says The Churchman, and he is usually the mess secretary's right-hand man in preparing and carrying out a guest night.

And while he is not expected to fight when in the firing line, he does not try to avoid danger spots.

He is kept busy "visiting" at all times, and is looked to for advice and help by all ranks. Sick men come under his special care, and he is often called upon to intercede with the colonel on behalf of some private who has light-heartedly broken the rules and regulations. Frequently he acts as an aide to the medical officer when casualties are heavy.

His saddest duties are those of conducting burials—sometimes over a group of shattered bodies in a trench—and the writing of letters of condolence to wives, mothers or other relatives of those who have fallen.

Destruction caused by the May earthquake has caused a building boom in Patti.

FINDS MARITIMES ACTIVE — A prominent Maritime commercial traveller who was in town recently pointed out to us that nearly all centres in the Maritime Provinces were actively engaged in war production or have soldiers in training with the exception of Sackville —"I mean by that remark, that there is ample employment for skilled and unskilled workmen —that pay rolls have apparently increased and that there is plenty of activity." The traveller referred to developments in Summerside, Charlottetown, Edmundston, Chatham, Sussex, Campbellton, New Glasgow, Yarmouth, Halifax, St. John, North Sydney, and other towns. —Sackville Post.

Uruguayan Press Fires Reprisal Blasts

MONTEVIDEO, Sept. 28—(AP)—Uruguayan newspapers fired "reprisal" blasts today at the Italian newspaper Regime Fascista of Cremona in a bitter word battle over the neutral status of Uruguay, which currently is sifting evidence against Nazi plotters.

Regime Fascista yesterday accused Uruguay of being "at the service of sterling" — meaning the British sterling—that she must consider herself "a belligerent against the totalitarians' and added something about a settling of accounts in the not too distant future.

Uruguayan newspapers came back spiritedly today and demanded action, against the Fascist journal.

Meanwhile eight Nazis charged with an ambitious plot to conquer Uruguay, remained in jail, while Judge Hamlet Reyes thumbed volumes of evidence phepared for their trial.

Judge Reyes is awaiting reports of special investigators who are checking the activities of the accused Germans, seven of whom have pleaded not guilty. The eigth, Adolfo Furhrmann, has admitted being author of the plot, but contends it was a "joke."

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

The Rev. Z. L. Fash, D. D., of Moncton, N. B., took both the morning and evening services at the Baptist Church yesterday. Dr. Fash recalled that during the period of his ministry in Charlottetown the "Young Worshipper's League" was founded. At that time he gave regularly each Sunday morning a brief address to boys and girls and on the present occasion presented a short, interesting and pointed address of that order. His morning sermon was based on St. John 12:21, "Sir, we would see Jesus." It is an ideal to which all effort should bend. Truly to see Jesus calls for self denial and it calls for perseverance, but great is the reward now and forever. Dr. Fash took as the theme of his interesting evening sermon "The Open Door." The music of the day included Arcadelt's "Give Ear Unto My Prayer," and Novello's "Like As The Hart Desireth the Water Brooks." It was intimated that next Sunday the Rev. I. Judson Levy, B. A., would open his ministry with this Church.

Canadian Indians Fight For Britain

ALERT BAY, B. C., Sept 28.—More than 4,000 Indians in Canada joined the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the Great War, while the Indian population contributed no less than $40,000 to the Red Cross and other patriotic funds, it was recalled today by the Rev. T. B. R. Westgate, secretary of the Indian and Eskimo Residential School Commission.

At the same time, the secretary made public a report by Principal Anfield, of the Church of England in Canada School at Alert Bay, B. C., on the work at present being done for the Red Cross by Indian children.

Sweaters, shirts, socks, pneumonia jackets, etc., have been made for Canadian troops, and a considerable quantity of clothing made or donated to refugees through the Red Cross. The latter includes dresses, underwear, hats, childrens suits and nightwear.

Pupils of the school also donated a total of $61 in cash to the Red Cross, as a result of special collections and the proceeds of a tea given by the boys on Empire Day. Senior boys ran a hot-dog stand at the Empire Day sports, and presented $50, the proceeds of their enterprise, to their local parish church.

Fascists Say Accord Is To Warn U. S.

ROME, Sept. 28— (CP) — Fascists claimed today that the new German-Italian -Japanese alliance would loose war on two continents against the United States if it sought to intervene to help Britain or offered any "interference" with what any of the three powers considers its own concerns.

The new accord, it was said here, is intended to "warn" the United States to stay out of the Anglo-German and Chinese-Japanese wars; to stay out of Europe, Asia, and Africa.

The first intention of the alliance, competent sources added, is to keep the United States from allying herself with Britain or attempting to use any British bases in the Pacific, such as Singapore.

Virginio Gayda, editorial spokesman, said "the new treaty threatens no one." But then he went on:—

"It warns those American circles who, feeling themselves protected by Roosevelt's favor, are outlining, at least in their speeches and publications, plans for intervention in a war which does not concern and cannot touch the Americas, and for interference in vital regions of Italy and Germany which do not think, on their part, of entering the vital zones and regions of the Americas."

It seemed clear to foreign observers that Spain would be brought soon into the new alliance—especially since she already is in an anti-comintern pact with the three others.

Gayda boasted:—

"England now has to choose between unconditional surrender and irreparable destruction of all which still remains of its national life and already declining power."

The Italian army's newspaper, "Forze Armate," suggested there "perhaps" would be war between Japan and the United States if the United States sought to use Singapore; that the Netherlands East Indies seems to figure now as "the prey of rather easy conquest;" that Japan might be planning to try to take the Phillipine Islands.

Use of metal for war purposes has caused a shortage of baby buggies in England.

MACRAE SMITH WNU SERVICE

"All right, Doc. We sure thank you. Good-night."

The door closed. John walked across the stretch of lawn toward the car. The full moon had dropped below the dipping hills but the farmyard was bright with radiance it had left. John drew in deep breaths of the cool damp air. He came up to the car walking quietly, shortening his long eager strides.

But she was not asleep.

"Hello, Doc," she said, and sat erect in the seat of the car.

"I thought I told you to go back to the cabin," he said, but his attempt to sound stern was not very convincing.

"You did," Gay said. "You've been telling me that at intervals all night."

"Are you frozen? Let me look at you." He leaned past her into the car and turned on the dark-board lights.

She wore his old college sweater, too large for her, the sleeves rolled back to free her hands and she had bundled herself into a cocoon of car robes and blankets.

"You should have gone back," he said as he slipped in behind the wheel. "They would have taken me or I could have stayed here all night. Do you realize that it's nearly three o'clock?" He released the brake and the car moved out into the road. What do you suppose Kate is thinking?"

"The worst, probably." She moved closer to him int he narrow seat. "What is it, a boy or a girl?"

"A boy." She was unconscious of having moved toward him, he thought. Wonderful to have her here very close to him, wearing his sweater, waiting for him to ride back to the cabin. Not real, of course, a piece of a dream, a part of the strange intimacy of this night they had spent together.

"I heard it." Her voice was hushed. "It sounded like a furious kitten. I'd like to have seen it. I've never seen one so—small."

They improve with age. He had a close shave. It's the first one and there were complications. I'd have given my soul for hospital equipment. That—" He broke off abruptly, then added with brusqueness induced by embarrassment and the fear that his enthusiasf might bore her. "I shouldn't have let you in for this. I didn't know it was a baby. Why didnt you take the car back to the cabin hours ago?"

"I wouldn't have missed it,' she said, still in that hushed and wondering voice. "Nothing as real as this ever happened to me. I should think that doing what you did tonight would make you feel like—God."

Washington Hears German 'Super Bombs' Are Really Devastating Land-Mines

By NEA Service

WASHINGTON,—The German "super-bombs" devastating London are in reality huge land-mines, capable of destruction unequalled by any other type bomb, according to private advices received in Washington. These same capital sources hear that the land-mines are loosed upon England by parachute from high-flying Nazi planes.

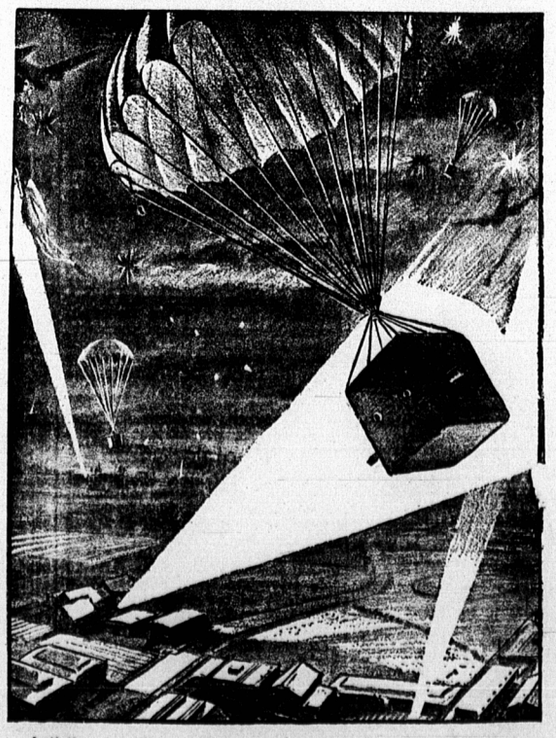
Approximately 150 of the land-mines, each weighing more than a ton, were released on various parts of the British Isles on several recent nights, it is understood.

These advices describe how a fair-sized village can be almost wiped out by two or three of the land-mines, dropped from high-altitude bombers.

Wafting slowly down by parachute onto a main street of a town, one of these super-explosives is said to be capable of crushing every house within 400 square yards of the spot on which the mine lands.

With the mine prevented from sinking into the earth by the gentle drop of the parachute, the full force of the blast is felt by buildings blocks away. Walls crumble. Homes when not flattened out are gutted of windows and doors.

A recent NEA Service-Acme Newspictures photo, depicting complete destruction of several large buildings in London by one bomb, is believed to show the work of one of the land-mines.



Artist's conception of Germany's land-mines drifting down on a small English town.
