JUST A GIRL
BY JANE PHELPS
A WALK
CHAPTER 4
I felt terribly annoyed with Edith when for telling me she felt a thrill when Kenneth Lawrence looked at her. Even if she had, it wasn't very nice to talk about it. I, too, had been thrilled, but I could not speak of it; it seemed too well, like some boy's feeling.
I had found out that Kenneth was 24 years old. I wasn't quite 19, but I knew I felt just as old as he did. They say—whatever "they" is—that girls are older than boys. I wonder why?
I had told Edith that Kenneth did not like cities, and had added rather maliciously:
"Neither's no use setting your cap for him unless you want to live on a farm with pigs and chickens."
"They don't have farms in California! They have ranches."
"Whatever the difference as long as they have the pigs and chickens, on both?"
"I don't care, Zena Stewart; I would rather have pigs and chickens with him than everything else with some of the fellows of our set."
"I suppose we can look for invitations soon. I feared, that little hurt feeling again in my heart.
"Does he wish an idiot?" Edith indignantly responded. Sometimes we girls were terribly shabby—when our parents weren't around.
"Can't a girl say she likes a man without your jumping at conclusions on both?"
"Of course I always take the cue when I go out for pleasure. I had a little shopping to do."
"Put this in a perfect day for a long walk. Do your shopping, let me wait for you, then take a nice long tramp with me."
"Of right, I will! But won't you come in if you will excuse me."
"Not if you will excuse me. I feel like a bull in a china shop in one of your stores. I'll wait right outside the door."
I found what I wanted quickly, and then joined him. I knew down in my heart that Mother would not approve, that had I asked her permission it would have been refused. I said nothing of this as I tried to accommodate myself, and my narrow skirt, to his stride. Any way I had no breath to talk.
It took all I had to keep up with him. "Oh, please don't go so fast," I begged, half laughing yet almost gasping for breath. "You know I am not accustomed to walking so fast."
"Of, I am so sorry! And with those ridiculous high heels, too, I don't see how you New York girls walk at all. You dress your feet just as ridiculously as the Chinese women in this bench and rest awhile. Next time we go for a walk put on sensible shoes—if you have any."
I wanted to tell him he was impudent to talk to me as he did, but my heart was beating so fast because he had implied we would go for another walk that I couldn't bring myself to say a thing. I only agreed to wear low-heeled shoes.
"I have a pair I used to wear in boarding school," I told him.
We rested a little and then resumed our walk. This time he went slowly, every little while asking me to rest.
"Are Californians are great walkers. There is something bracing about the climate. We don't seem to tire as you Eastern people do. That is, I have always thought it was the climate. But perhaps the kind of shoes we wear has something to do with it," he said with a quizzical look.

HINTS FOR The Motorist
BY ALBERT L. CLOUGH
Specialized Information on Motor Car Components
Thorough Understanding of A Car Conduces To Satisfactory Service
In this series of articles, urgent plans have repeatedly been made that more consideration be given to the matter contained in the instruction books furnished with motor cars, that such books be kept where readily available and that the material embodied in them be fully mastered and conscientiously applied by owners. This is because the instruction book is the best treatise obtainable upon the care and operation of any particular make of car—a specialized work gotten out by experienced experts. It is, however, perfectly logical to go further in the same direction and apply the same idea to the auxiliary apparatus used on cars, which is not built by the car makers themselves and concerning which detailed instructions cannot readily be included in the car instruction book itself. Under this head are included the fuel-feed system, the carburetor, the storage battery, the ignition system, the starting and lighting apparatus, the tires and rims and even the horn. The manufacturer of each one of these pieces of apparatus publishes and will readily furnish upon request, special printed matter relative to the care and adjustment of his produce and every motorist should be in possession of such literature as is applicable to his particular equipment. Carburetor booklets give refined methods of adjustment; instructions for forestalling and overcoming troubles are contained in the fuel feed and electrical system treatises and the storage battery book is almost essential, as car instruction books usually touch but lightly upon this subject. To know one's car is the first condition of success with it and the way to accomplish this is to gear everything possible about it. GEAR-BOX NOT STAY IN MESH

By pushing the car around, over a level floor, while the clutch- pedal is held in neutral and checking up the band and brake adjustments, you may be able to locate the trouble, but this make of car is not specially noted as a free coaster.
RINGS MAY LACK END CLEARANCE
C. M. writes: I fitted two of the four pistons of my engine with new rings and now I can hardly crank it. If I had fitted all four pistons, I don't believe I could turn the engine over at all now, although it is beginning to crank a little easier. I cleaned and polished the ring grooves, why do they bind so?
Answer: While new rings always operate with very considerable friction, on account of their bearing surfaces being rough as compared with the polished cylinder walls and on account of slight inaccuracies in the cylinder bore, we fear that you may have fitted your rings with too tight a fit and that the ends of each ring comes together when the engine is hot. They should not do so and to prevent this a clearance of say 1/64 in. should be allowed between their two ends at the cut, when the parts are cold. You should make sure that there is no oil on the clearance and that the engine is run very gently and with plenty of oil, until the rings wear in. If the cylinder bores are not fairly true, you will have difficulty in securing a good ring fit.

Questions of general interest to motorists will be answered in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address Albert L. Clough, care of our office.
A GATHERING TO SHOW APPRECIATION
On Wednesday evening, April 21st a number of the members and adherents of the Presbyterian Church, Murray Harbor met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Horton, Gladstone.
The purpose of this gathering was to try to express in a feeble manner the appreciation of those present for the faithful work done by Mr. and Mrs. Horton in all the activities of the Church.
After a few well chosen remarks by Miss Bell Bruce explaining the object of the gathering, an address was read by Miss Agnes Bell, and a reading lamp presented by Mrs. John Cairns, in behalf of the Young Ladies' Branch and the W. M. S.
Mr. and Mrs. Horton although taken by surprise, expressed their thanks for the thoughtfulness of their friends in remembering them in this way, and expressed the hope that they might be spared yet many years to continue in the work which they consider not only their duty but a pleasure to perform.
After playing a number of games and singing some good old favorites, the young ladies of the "Tri-Tri" branch served lunch in a very capable manner, to which the company did full justice.
After singing "God be with you till we meet again" the party dispersed to their homes, each one present feeling that it was good to have been there.
The address is as follows:—
To D. A. and Mrs. Horton:
Dear friends,—We have met here this evening to assure you both of our high appreciation of your ever faithful and untiring services, given so willingly and cheerfully for many years in every good cause in church and community.
We wish to acknowledge our esteem of your work in the Sabbath School, to Mr. Horton as Superintendent and to you both as faithful and capable teachers and we wish to assure you that many of us have received great benefit from your work.
In the Sabbath services of the church you have set us all a good

Dear friends,—We have met here this evening to assure you both of our high appreciation of your ever faithful and untiring services, given so willingly and cheerfully for many years in every good cause in church and community.
We wish to acknowledge our esteem of your work in the Sabbath School, to Mr. Horton as Superintendent and to you both as faithful and capable teachers and we wish to assure you that many of us have received great benefit from your work.
In the Sabbath services of the church you have set us all a good

After playing a number of games and singing some good old favorites, the young ladies of the "Tri-Tri" branch served lunch in a very capable manner, to which the company did full justice.
After singing "God be with you till we meet again" the party dispersed to their homes, each one present feeling that it was good to have been there.
The address is as follows:—

Valuable services, both in the larger Presbyterian work, and in the more local work of "Local Union" and auxiliary.
The Young Ladies' Branch take this opportunity to thank Mrs. Horton, for counsel, inspiration and guidance in their much enjoyed organization.
We beg you both to accept this small gift, presented by the W. M. S. and Young Ladies Branch, as a feeble expression of our high esteem of you in your ardent labors in the cause of the Master's Kingdom and we hope and pray that you may both be spared many years to lead and inspire us in the work of our Saviour.
Signed in behalf of the W. M. S. and Y. L. B.

We are ready now to receive live hogs, paying as follows, delivered at our packing house, Charlottetown:—
150-275 18 cents
275 up, 16 cents
Brood sows, any weight, 14 cents
all good quality, well fattened.
Delivery may be made on any day except Saturday.
Light hogs, under 150 lbs., are of very little use for packing purposes, and as the chief profit from feeding comes in the last few weeks of finishing, it is respectfully suggested that farmers hold any small hogs, under 150 lbs., until of weight and quality more profitable for all concerned. But should it be necessary to dispose of any such under-weights they will be received at market value, proportionate to above prices.
We also buy at various points throughout the Island and full information can be obtained from our local representatives.
