BRIQUETTING LIGNITE

Provinces Might Adopt New Method and Save Money

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta contain many millions of tons of sub-bituminous coal and lignite but the comparatively low heating value of this coal and the fact that it disintegrates rapidly when exposed to the air prevent its economical transportation for any considerable distance. In fact, the by-products are now supplied almost entirely by coal from the Crow's Nest district in Alberta and British Columbia and from the United States.

In a plant in Denver, Colorado, with a capacity of 500 tons of lignite per day, lignite is distilled, the by-products are saved and the residue is manufactured into briquettes. These briquettes are of very good quality, and are suitable for domestic or railway locomotive purposes. The lignite is charged into ovens having a capacity of 10 tons each. The ovens are heated by gas and the residue is washed and distilled in carried on for about two hours without the admission of oxygen from the atmosphere. During distillation about 100,000 cubic feet of gas, 130 gallons of tar and 25 pounds of ammonium sulphate, are removed per 10 tons of lignite. Benzol is removed from the gas and the gas is cleaned by electrical precipitation. While the raw lignite only contains 85 per cent. of fixed carbon, the briquettes average 84 per cent.
