JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

BY DELLA E. STEWART

The job of being wife and mother is the very biggest job a woman can have. If she is a success in both characters it will take all the time and strength and nerve force at her command. We women make the greatest mistake of our lives if we think that wifehood and motherhood are incidental to a career. They of themselves are a career. The reason they seem to bring so much drudgery to some of us is that we do not have a large enough conception of them. We look only at the minute, instead of gaining a perspective on them as a whole. It is necessary to get our special John's dinner every day in the week and to see that our Mary goes to school neat, that the house is presentable, the mending, sewing and laundry done—whether we do all this by proxy, we ourselves must accomplish each process.

But that isn't all. Housekeeping, or rather home-making, which is a very different accomplishment, often, is one of the broadest professions in the whole world. It embraces all the arts and sciences yet known. It calls into play, if properly done, artistic talent, psychology, domestic science, management, education. It calls on every known power of body, mind, and soul. But very best is none too good. This is no argument for a narrow life, but rather one for the right focus of mind. Having the latter, we shall keep the primal professions in their proper place in our lives, whatever our outside activities may be. Our reward? The well-being and love of those in the home, the respect of the community in which we live, intelligent growth in our own lives.

FASHIONS FOR CANADIANS

Negligee garments for warm weather must be made on simple lines if they are to give really satisfactory service. Many trips to the cleaning establishment or the laundress are necessary for all types of summer apparel. That is one reason why simplicity is a safe guide. Then too, elaborate cloths always look warmer than simple things. That is also an excellent argument in favor of simplicity. One very practical type of negligee, popular ever since it was first introduced four or five seasons ago, is the breakfast coat. It is an all-year favorite and for summer is particularly attractive developed in voile or organdy or in dotted Swiss. Ruffles of self-fabric or lace edging is all the trimming required. The breakfast coat may be worn on the porch all the morning without the warmer feeling that she really is in negligee apparel. The sketch shows a breakfast coat which may be made of sheer cotton or of taffeta. The collar and lower part of the skirt may be embroidered in a block pattern, or the design may be worked out in pin tucking. If the coat is of taffeta little bands of hand embroidery done in a scroll design may give an additional trimming touch and if of cotton, lace or embroidery insertion may be used. A negligee of this type makes an excellent Pullman robe. The slip-over Pullman robe brought out a season or two ago, and highly commended by some who have tried it,

ATHENS, Aug. 5—Col. Jafar Tayar, the former Turkish insurgent leader in Thrace, arrived here today under a Greek escort. He was captured by the Greeks shortly after their occupation of Adrianople.
