Scientific Eyes Being Focused On Quadruplets

Criminologists Trying To Prove Whether Two Finger Prints Are Ever Found Identical

SAINT JOHN, N. B., July 29.—On Christmas Day, 1923, an unusual bit was presented to Mr. and Mrs. William T. Mahaney of this city in the form of four smiling babies—two famous Mahaney quadruplets—three girls and a boy. Today these four kiddies are again into the headlines, but for a far different reason than their arrival about eight years ago as one of the few recorded births of quadruplets in the history of the Dominion. The four little sets of slim fingers are now being smeared with printer's ink and impressions made on inky glass in an effort to ascertain whether or not it is possible to have two finger prints fundamentally identical.

Debate has waxed warm on this topic for many years. Scientists claim they have proved that it is impossible to have any two finger prints the same. But while debate continues, think what this matter of finger prints means, especially as it is related to the question of lost or kidnapped children.

Sydney R. Vardon, of Chatham, N. B., graduate of the New York School of Applied Science of Identification, a student of the International Criminology College in ballistics and graphology, came here to secure evidence to substantiate the views of the scientists. He said the evidence secured from the prints of the Mahaney children would mean a lot to the world at large. In cases of kidnapping, photos are useless after a few years, and only finger prints can tell, he said.

To the children it was a new and pleasant experience. They were all dressed neatly for the experiment, and of course they were photographed for the newspapers, but this is nothing new for these youngsters, and they have already been in many fairs and exhibitions.

Cattle Exports Are 10,000 Head

OTTAWA, July 28.—Approximately 10,000 head of cattle have been shipped from Canada to the United Kingdom so far this season. Cables received today by Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture gave the result of the latest shipment which was landed at Glasgow.

One lot of cattle from Ontario will net back eight and a half cents a pound to the shipper and another seven and a half cents. A carload of yearling steers from the Ross ranch, Alberta, brought an average of 19 pounds 12 shillings. This should net the exporter 655 or $70 a head.

Owing to the lack of demand for bulls on Toronto live stock market, where only three and a half cents a pound was offered, the department arranged to ship two carloads to the old country. These will net back five and a half cents a pound.

Scrubbing the front porch wouldn't be so objectionable to some women if they could do it in a one-piece bathing suit with a big crowd looking on.

The Australian Treaty

(Montreal Star)

Essentially the new Australian treaty represents an effort to have trade follow the flag. Notwithstanding that for years Canada has been selling to Australia from four to six times as much as she buys from her, Inter-Imperial sentiment was so strong in the Commonwealth that a reciprocal arrangement was possible.

As compared with the previous treaty, the present one is infinitely more comprehensive. Whereas under the old arrangement Canada secured preferences in only some 28 items, and the British preference in only four, the Dominion now secures the British preference under 416 of the 433 items which comprise the Australian tariff. Important advantages, running up to approximately two shillings per hundred square feet as against the American product, are secured for Canadian lumber, which under the late treaty enjoyed no preferences whatever. Canned fish, notably tinned salmon, secures an increase in the preference accorded it of from three to six cents per pound. Canadian newsprint is to go into the Commonwealth free, while a duty of 4 pounds sterling (about $20) per ton is to be imposed on imports from other countries.

As compared with the former treaty, the present one embodies some important general features. In the first place it is provided that in valuing an article the only freight rate which can enter into the total is the freight from the point of shipment to the nearest port of exit from the country. Thus the freight to be calculated on an article shipped from Montreal, would be the freight from Montreal to the New York State border, notwithstanding that the commodity might leave Canada by Vancouver. This concession removes an important source of objection to the old treaty. Another provision of importance is that the treaty cannot be revoked in whole because of disagreement developing over any one item. Both countries agree that neither will impose dumping duties against the other.

Australia's share of the treaty's benefits consist in a market for her tropical fruits, dried fruits, and sugar. She is accorded a tariff of five cents per pound on butter, comparing with the general tariff of eight cents per pound to other countries and with the rate of one cent per pound enacted by the King Government in the old treaty. She secures a preference on meats and, while the duty is higher than under the old rate in order to protect the Canadian producer, the spread between it and the general rate is increased so as to make the difference greater.

To sum up, the great gain for Canada in the arrangement is the advantage she secures over the United States in seeking to enter Australian markets. To quote a few examples: on lumber Canada will have a preference of $5 per 1,000 feet board measure over the States; on unassembled motor car chassis the Australian rate on Canadian imports will be 15 per cent and on Ontario imports 32 1/2 per cent; on assembled chassis the duties will be 32 and 45 per cent respectively; on canned salmon the Dominion will enjoy a preference of six cents per pound and on newsprint of $20 per ton.

BLANCHING AND STORAGE OF CELERY

(Experimental Farms Note)

Blanching may be started when the plants are 10 to 12 inches tall by placing 12-inch boards at each side of the row and holding them in place with stakes, or earth may be pressed up to the plant after the first gathering the stalks together so that soil will not get into the crown of the plant. If sucker growth has developed the suckers should be removed before blanching, as well as short, poor stalks, to give even heads with good stalks. It is not necessary to blanch all at once, and a little handling of the plants by working some soil up to them will tend to produce upright rather than sprawling heads. A drain tile set over each plant is excellent for blanching. Any material that shuts out light around the plant will serve the purpose. In two or three weeks under such treatment White Plume or Paris Golden will blanch if active growth is being made.

For storage in the late fall before severe frost the plants should be lifted when dry, leaving as much soil as possible on the roots. At the Experimental Station, Kenville, the plants are packed on an earth floor with sand or earth to cover the roots. Usually four to six rows are placed close together and a space of about a foot left before the rows are packed. This space affords opportunity for ventilation, and for watering if the soil dries out. The plants should never be watered in storage, but the soil can be dampened with a hose in the foot of space provided between the closely packed rows. This water will soak to the roots. The foliage should remain dry and the roots moist, and

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER.—Despite the inclemency of the weather on the evening of July 22nd about fifty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Budd Birch (nee Alice MacRae) gathered at the home of Mrs. Birch's mother, Mrs. Benj. Matheson, Brookfield, and tendered them a miscellaneous shower. About 10 P. M. the bride and groom were ushered into the living room by Miss Florence MacRae, Mr. Fred MacRae respectively, while Miss Mabel Ling played Lohergins wedding march. Little Miss Mae MacRae presented Mrs. Birch with a bouquet of roses and Maiden hair fern, prettily tied with white ribbon. The Misses Fernie Wood and Meriam Dollar then brought into the living room a beautifully decorated basket filled with costly and useful gifts, and proceeded to cut the strings and Miss Florence MacRae read the accompanying verses which created much laughter. Mrs. Birch, on behalf of her husband, in a few well chosen words thanked those present for their kindness and good wishes, and invited all to visit her in her new home in Belmont, after which all joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows." The remainder of the evening was spent in music and social intercourses. Refreshments were served by the ladies. (Patriot and Summerside papers, please copy.)

CARE OF SCREENS

Probably no other part of home equipment is so badly neglected or will return so much profit for a small amount of care as do the screens. In the first place, they should be substantially made with corners well fitted together, fastened with screws and strengthened with flat corner irons. They should be made full length of the windows in most cases, should be hinged at top so they can be opened when desired. Each frame should be fitted carefully to its particular opening, and both opening and frame should be marked plainly so that there will be no chance for getting a frame in the wrong place. Don't depend on your memory or on a list posted some place, as you may not be there next time they are to be put in place. Metal figures made especially for this purpose can be purchased in nearly any hardware store, or very serviceable figures can be made by using the point of a screw driver.

When finished and properly fitted, the frames should be given two coats of good paint, especial care being taken to get the paint into the points at the corners. They should then be covered with good wire screening. The copper coated wire is much better, but the cheaper black will give good service if properly cared for.

In the second place, the screens should be painted every spring before being put in place. The paint

$500,000 DAMAGE DONE MAINE POTATO CROP

The hail cut off growing potato plants and beat down standing grain and in places rain came in such a deluge as to cause washouts. The damage was particularly heavy at Mars Hill, Bridgewater and Hodgson, where large areas of potatoes and grain are reported ruined.

HAS CONFIDENCE IN GERMANY

(Special to the Guardian)

BERLIN, July 28.—Great Britain's confidence in Germany is undiminished, Premier Ramsay MacDonald declared tonight in an address at a dinner at the German chancellery where he was the guest of Chancellor Heinrich Brüning. Referring to the visit of himself and the British foreign secretary, Right Hon. Arthur Henderson to Berlin he added that "we are firmly convinced" that if Germany continues her efforts, without giving way to despair, other nations will help her and not suffer her to go under. The British Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary arrived here separately during the day and both were given tremendous ovations by the German people.

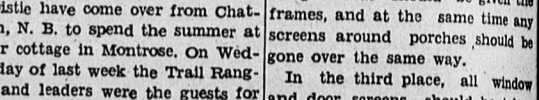

should be rather thin and should be brushed on each side of the screen, but not rubbed back and forth, as that has a tendency to produce air bubbles which will clog up the screen openings. Plenty of turpentine or other dryer should be used to make the paint dry quickly. A light coat should be given the frames, and at the same time any screens around porches should be gone over the same way.

In the third place, all window and door screens should be taken down each fall and stored in a dry place. If possible they should be placed straight on edge in a sort of rack to keep them from twisting although they can be laid one on top of another if carefully handled. No chaff, hay, or other trash should be allowed to collect on them.
