They were accompanied to the altar by Miss Mary Gavin, sister of the groom, and the bride's brother Alfred E. O'Brien. After the ceremony which included a nuptial Mass, the wedding party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a wedding feast awaited their arrival. HIS PRAYER.

He prayed,
There where he lay,
Blood-soaked and unkempt,
As never in his young carelessness
He'd dreamt—
That he could pray.

He prayed;
Not that the pain should cease,
Nor yet for water in that parching
heat,
Nor for death's quick release,
Nor even for the tardy feet
Of stretcher-bearers bringing aid.

He prayed;
Cast helpless on the bloody sod;
"Don't trouble now, O God, for me,
But keep the boys. Go forward with them, God!"
O speed the Camerons to victory!
The kilts flashed on: "Well played,"
he sighed, "well played."
Just so he prayed.

—From Poems of the War, by Wm. Letts.

MAKING A CALL.

A little boy of five went with his mother to make a call. The lady of the house, who was very fond of children, told him she intended to ask his mother to let her have him.

"Don't you think your mother would let me buy you?" she asked.

"No," he said, "you haven't got money enough?"

"How much would it take?" she asked.

"Three hundred pounds," he answered promptly, "and you haven't got that much."

"I think I could manage it," she said, "if I can, will you come to me?"

"No," he said, with decision. "Mamma wouldn't sell me, anyhow. There are five of us, and mamma wouldn't like to break the set."

A NEW UNIONIST PARTY?

Gladstone's Irish policy drove the best brains out of the ranks of Liberalism and gave birth to the modern British Unionist party. Is Laurier's truckling to Nationalist sentiment going to drive the best brains out of Canadian Liberalism and mark the beginning of a Canadian Unionist party?

IN THE TRENCHES.

"Hi, Bill! Here comes a gas wave!" "Thank Heavens! This toothache's almost killing me."—Cartoons Magazine.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has turned his gaze from the trenches in Flanders to the polling booths in Quebec.

EASIER THAN WORK

Mrs. Brown stood in the doorway of her suburban home and eyed the tramp critically.

"Are you willing to work for a meal?" she asked at last.

The tramp extended his hands expansively as though work was the one thing in life he hankered after; and his apparent sincerity overcame Mrs. Brown's last scruple.

She retired to the house, and presently returned carrying a large plate of food and a businesslike looking hoe.

When the tramp had eaten the food she handed him the hoe, and, pointing towards the garden path, remarked:—"Now, I want you to clean out that gutter. You see, it's filled with mud."

The tramp glanced at the gutter, then at the hoe.

"I never use a hoe," he said, "when cleaning out a gutter."

"Never use a hoe? Then, what do you use a shovels?"

"No," said the tramp, "as he moved towards the gate. "My method is to pray for rain!"

THANKSGIVING HYMN

For light and heat and rain and dew,
For life and food and raiment too,
For blessings great and not a few,

For morn and noon and evening fair,
Our hymn we raise.
