CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

"Great Guns" Draws Big Crowds

It was a blitz on the blues last night at the Capitol Theatre. Those two hitwits in khaki, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, had the first night audience howling at their antics in 20th Century-Fox's "Great Guns."

They were the target in target practice. They were the revel in revelle. They were the pain in the sergeant's neck. They had the whole army bawling.

"Great Guns" is Stan and Ollie's first film in more than a year, and it is the funniest they have ever made. Packed with laughs from start to finish, the film is the Comedies' best vehicle yet.

The drat-unny story has Stan and Ollie, and their pet crow Penelope, taking care of young millionaire Dick Nelson who is supposed to be allergic to everything. When Dick is drafted, the two comedians enlist so they can take care of him.

Dick turns out to be a healthy young man, and finds romance with the girl who is allergic to everything. Stan and Ollie have their troubles with tough sergeant Edmund MacDonald. How they first mess up the maneuvers and then straighten everything out with Penelope's aid, makes for one of the most hilarious climaxes ever filmed.

Lovely Sheila Ryan gives her finest performance in her most important part to date. And Dick Nelson, in his first screen role, promises to become an outstanding screen personality. Edmund MacDonald is good as the Army sergeant.

AIR OBSERVER SCHOOL

WINNIPEG, Aug. 28—(CP)—E. Clayton, managing director of the Clayton Construction Company, of Winnipeg, announced today that the company had been granted the contract for construction of a complete new $1,000,000 establishment for No. 5 air observer school here. The establishment will include a large drill hall, several two storey buildings, airmen's living quarters and a central heating plant.

Black Sea Fleet

In the western Caucasus, too, the Germans have advanced but at a slower pace since the fighting has been approaching the hills. The Russians still speak of rear-guard action here and they may be fighting for time rather than attempting definitely to stop the German advance. The Black Sea fleet continues to operate successfully but what base it is using has not been revealed. It can hardly be Novorossisk, now under close air attack.

There can be no doubt that the Germans are making good their main effort at Stalingrad and the coming week may bring them success or something approaching definite failure.

Egypt

The situation in Egypt is still in suspense but at any moment the lull may be broken here also. The coming week may be marked by great events.

We know as much about the Dieppe landing as is likely to be revealed. The Germans are making one of the most outstanding points which has been brought out was the effect of co-operative action, in which the action of one arm compelled the enemy to offer a target to another.

At Dieppe, the attack brought the German air force to life and gave the R.A.F. an opportunity which it had evaded when acting alone. The entry of Brazil into the war should tend to make the recent satisfactory reduction in shipping losses more marked. It will provide a basis for both offensive and protective naval and air action and reduce the leakage of information.

Crop Report

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 28 — Weather varying from warm and dry to light and heavy rains, with local hail and cool nights which hindered near freezing was experienced this past week in the western grain growing regions, according to the weekly crop report of the department of Agriculture of the Canadian National Railways. Harvesting is in all stages of progress but only a small percentage of wheat has yet been cut except in Southern Manitoba. A few threshing machines are running, but warm, dry weather is still necessary to bring crops to maturity before frost danger becomes a real threat.

NAZI TANKMEN

Kletskaya small bands of Red army tank destroyers were fighting with anti-tank rifles from elevated, concealed trenches.

The dispatches said the anti-tank rifles were proving as effective against enemy armor as the heavy Soviet gunnery was to residential.

South of Stalingrad, the mid-day communique said, the Germans drove one more wedge into the Russian positions, but lost time tanks, 14 trucks and more than 300 officers and men in a fierce battle.

A parachute unit which landed behind the Russian lines and got control of a road junction was reported wiped out.

Dive-bombers in swarms still were attacking Stalingrad and its defenses, but the Russians sat most of the damage was to residential sections in the centre of the city where many homes were afire.

A Red feet dispatch from the Black Sea told of a seven-day fight between Russian and German troops. The 5th Rumanian Cavalry division in which the Rumanians were almost exterminated. Russian gunboats joined in the battle from the sea.

C.N.R. Official Home From Prison Camp In Hong Kong

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 28—When Stanley Neeley, traffic representative of the Canadian National Railways at Hong Kong, visited the company's New York office to report his safe return from Japanese internment at Hong Kong, he had two dollars left of twelve he possessed when Japanese soldiers thrust him at bayonet point with other Anglo-Saxons into confinement at the Hong Kong bank building. Later, Neeley was transferred to prison at Camp Stanley.

Mr. Neeley, who drove a British ambulance in Hong Kong after the Jap attack on December 8, told of the extreme bravery of the British and Americans under fire and during the long months in the prison camp where two meals of rice each day was the regular fare. This was supplemented once weekly by a piece of meat "the size of a postage stamp," and of doubtful origin.

The Canadian National Traffic representative, who left Hong Kong aboard the Japanese liner "Ari-Maru" on June 29, lost 20 pounds during captivity. He described the food on the Jap ship as "fair" and on the "Gripsholm" which brought the released prisoners from Port-au-Prince east Africa to New York, as "good," while New York food was "just unbelievable." Neeley said that all personal records were destroyed before the Japanese military took over as military headquarters.

Homesick for Fraser Valley Japanese Harvests Ontario Crop

Nothing Like Home Town He Says — And Insists He's As Good Canadian As Anyone Here.

(By Bruce West)

"It's not too bad out here in the east, but—well, you know, there's nothing like the old home town."

The homesick youngster who made this observation when asked for a comment on the Essex County in Ontario and the Fraser Valley of British Columbia was a Japanese, squat and dusky and complete with big teeth.

He was one of the several hundred who have been moved from British Columbia to Ontario to help fill the manpower needs on the farms of the latter province. He and his companions were all volunteers for farm work. As Canadian citizens—either born or naturalized as such—they were not interned at the outbreak of war with Japan.

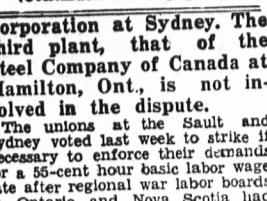

They're Not Interned

When a visitor arrives at one of the camps they take great pains to impress upon him that they are not internees like those ordinary Japs. They want you to understand fully that they are Canadians. This argument, of course, sounds more convincing in the heart of Ontario than it does near the coast of British Columbia, with Jap submarines shelling the mainland and considerable forces camped on the Aleutians. So the authorities moved large numbers of the Japanese inland.

So far, most of the Jap farm workers are behaving very well. The farmers who employ them agree that they are first class workers and are glad to get their help in harvesting and caring for the crops.

They live in camps located at central points in the farming districts and are transported to and from the job by the farmers. The method of obtaining employment for the Japanese in Ontario is very much the same as that used in the

Regular Movie Patrons

They frequently visit the towns near their camps and take in the movies quite often, even if that happens to feature such anti-Japanese thrillers as "A Yank on the Burma Road" or "Remember Pearl Harbor."

They are very well fed, but they don't go in for any strange Japanese meals. They seem to prefer such good old Canadian dishes as roast pork and apple sauce, the bacon and eggs. The food in the camp visited by this writer was prepared by a Japanese cook who came to Canada nearly forty years ago. He liked Canada, he said, and would be glad when this war business was over so that he could get back to British Columbia and carry on where he left off.

In their aspects and actions most of these Japanese are as Canadian as anyone you'd meet on the streets of Montreal, Toronto or Winnipeg. If you were to close your eyes and listen to them as they toss their jokes back and forth across the corn and potato patches you could easily imagine they were regular Canadians from away back. An illustration of this was the remark of one yellow-skinned youth as we walked through a field of soy beans.

"And here," he announced with a flourish, "are soy beans. Henry Ford's contribution to America!"
