Flying Priest Of The Arctic Visits Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 13—(CP)—Father Paul Schulte, heroic "flying priest of the Arctic," whose one-man aerial mission is internationally famous, will fly next year into Canada's eastern Arctic t. world's first "winged chapel."

Father Schulte, who developed and financed through his own efforts "MIVA" ... international vehicular association is in Toronto ... Archbishop J. C. McGuigan and preparing for his next flight into the vast northland.

The aerial chapel of the north Father Schulte plans to buy will be a combination freight and passenger-carrying plane. A small altar, fully-equipped, will be installed in a convenient location and the necessary vestments will be carried in a special compartment.

During the long trips over the extensive vicariate of Hudson Bay, Father Schulte will bring his "flying chapel" and the sacrifice of the Mass to the isolated settlements comprising mostly Eskimo natives and a handful of French-Canadian traders and trappers. The Eskimo converts will be able to kneel at the foot of the altar they have been taught symbolizes Christ.

Though Father Schulte, broad-shouldered former German war ace, spent perhaps two or three months in the Arctic every year since he started his mission service in 1936, his time always is taken up on his return by lecture tours in Canada and the United States.

He explained today the lecture tours bring him the necessary funds to carry on the work, inspired by charity, of helping Bishop Arsene Turquetil of Hudson Bay motorize his vast vicariate of 1,500,000 square miles.

Father Schulte will leave soon on a lecture tour through the United States, speaking from six to nine times every Sunday for several months. With money thus obtained he hopes to buy his "flying chapel" to replace the small, four-seated plane he has been using.

Mr. McLean M.P. And Mrs. McLean Return From West

Mr. A. E. McLean, M. P. who with Mrs. McLean has just returned from a trip to Western Canada had some interesting facts to relate relative to the cities and farm homes that they visited. Incidenally they met many Islanders who made them very welcome.

Mr. McLean was much impressed with the oil drilling activities in Alberta which are going ahead very rapidly. In the Turner Valley district they have drilled down to 7,000 feet and have struck oil. The oil findings are the more interesting as the nature of the ground is gray rock and it has usually been considered that oil is only found in limestone rock. Engineers there say that it would scarcely be believed back East that oil has been located in any other ground than limestone rock. Mr. McLean was given samples of the core from the drill, which convinced him that crude oil can be obtained from gray rock. It is said that English capital will be invested in the oil fields and great prospects are looming up on that account.

The huge gas flares all over the districts are ample evidence of gas and oil in that part of the West. These flares are burning day and night continually. Gas supplies, lighting and fuel in all the cities and districts round the Turner Valley.

Mr. McLean expected to see a great boom in these Western oil fields.

Mr. MacLean visited a section of farm lands near Regina where the wheat crop had been practically ruined by grasshoppers. There were many farms however which had not been affected and where the crops were very good.

Farmers in the West had had good crops on the whole this year, in fact the best for several years. In some parts of southern Saskatchewan rust had destroyed the wheat but where Thatcher wheat had been grown, the crops were not affected. Mixed farming is carried on in some sections of the West, chiefly in Manitoba.

British Columbia has good farm lands and orchards.

Mr. McLean and Mrs. McLean visited the new Lions Gate Bridge at Vancouver. The bridge is at the entrance to the harbor and is being built by British capital, and it is said about $3,000,000 is being expended on this work. The bridge is 6,000 feet long. The spans between the towers are 1,500 feet. 10,000 tons of steel have been used in its construction. It is expected that the bridge will be opened in November.

Mr. McLean was impressed with the magnificent buildings in Vancouver. The Parliament Buildings in Victoria were visited and here Mr. McLean met Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stavert and Mr. Hensley, formerly of Summerside.

At Calgary they had the interesting experience of hearing Premier Aberhart lecture. Mr. Aberhart spoke for over two hours "and then some."

In Winnipeg many of the splendid residences are vacant. These were built during boom years and when the slump came were taken over by the city for taxes.

Mr. McLean thoroughly enjoyed the trip as everything was entirely new to him and he found it interesting and instructive.—S

Perennial Asters Or Michaelmas Daisies

(Experimental Farms News)

Many persons are familiar with the wild asters that grow by the roadside in many parts of Canada and it is from these and other wild species that the garden varieties have been obtained. In late summer the Italian Aster, A. amellus blooms. The variety King George is one of the best and has large purple flowers on stems about eighteen inches tall. Later in the season the New York asters (Novi-Belgii) commence to bloom.

There are a large number of garden varieties which vary in date of bloom and in the colour of the flowers, states Isabella Preston, Assistant in Ornamental Plant Breeding, Division of Horticulture, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Some of the best are:—Blue, Beauty of Colwall, Blue Gem and Feltham Blue; Pink, Alderman Vokes, Heather Glow and Pink Nymph; White, Mount Everest. These varieties should be divided every second year to keep them in good condition. The New England Asters are the hardiest and easiest to grow but the flowers are not so refined as those of the New York variety. The plants are four and five feet tall and rapidly grow into large clumps so should be divided frequently. They are very useful for the back of perennial borders as they remain colourful until late in the autumn. Ryecroft Purple has rich purple flowers and Lil Fardell is deep rose.

The new Dwarf Asters are of recent origin and are proving very useful for rock gardens as well as for the front of the perennial border. The plants cover themselves with flowers and add spots of colour in the garden just when needed. Of the ones grown at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, the following were specially noted.

Bluebird is one of the darkest and blooms late in September. Lady Henry Maddocks is pink and blooms from August to November. Victor is one of the best early varieties being a mass of lavender flowers from the beginning of September to early October. These plants do best in good loam which does not dry out. They flower well in sun or shade. Spraying with a tobacco solution is sometimes necessary in order to control aphis and a lace wing fly which are sometimes troublesome.

12 Escape Injury In Bus Accident

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

NEW GLASGOW, N. S., Oct. 12—A bus driver and his 11 passengers escaped injury tonight when the bus ran into a herd of 12 cows on the highway at Broadway, 10 miles east of here, and then plunged into the ditch. Four of the cows were killed and the bus badly damaged.

Impact of the collision with the first cow snapped off a front wheel of the bus, severing an air line and making the brakes useless. The vehicle then ran along out of control for some yards before striking the ditch.

As the two-and-a-half-year reign of terror by Arab rebels against British mandate rule in Palestine became so intensified that 1700 casualities and more than 700 deaths resulted in the last ten weeks, Great Britain took drastic steps to crush the revolt. British troops, aided by Royal Air Force planes, killed fifty men in a major engagement near the northern border of Galilee. Because of the guerilla nature of the warfare, all Arabs are under close surveillance. In the photo above, Jewish supernumerary police are shown searching Arabs in the mountains of Galilee.
