MY BEST GIRL

had no pride, and no particular cause for pride, she said.

But the Petheridges and their collateral lines of Larkins and Lawrence! Ma told them thrilling tales of Grandma Larkin's sampler, hung above the Petheridge fireplace in the magnificent Petheridge home "down South," and about the Johnny Yanks mashing up all Gran'ma Larkin's cut glass, and about the slaves—hundreds of them, thousands of them, all singing and dancing and happy, and not any more wanting to be freed than so many irresponsible sparrows!

Pop, meanwhile, miserably represented not only the low-born Johnsons, but the entire ranks of the Johnny Yanks as well. He would cringe while Ma was enlarging upon this topic, and nervously clear his throat. And whenever he spoke of Vermont families, Ma said with her rich, unctuous laugh, "Makin' wooden nutmegs, I suppose?" and the girls had to laugh, too.

Not that Maggie was not loyal to her father; she had no heart in the laughter Ma so often directed against him. But it was simpler all round to laugh.

No use going against that particular current, there were too many others to struggle with, if one were to struggle at all!

Often, when Maggie and her father were alone, he would give her a fairer idea of the case.

"You see, dearie," Len would explain in his mind, uncomplaining voice, "Ma's just quotin' things she heard when she was a little girl. She never saw your great-grandmother's house, with those samplers and things." Your mother can't remember nothing about slaves and all that. I don't know as her folks ever had slaves, anyway. They lived right in East St. Louis, and they had a drug store—I don't know just what they would have done with slaves!"

Sometimes, Pa would ramble on to the other side by the ancestral picture, to his own boyhood on a Vermont farm.

"I surely would like you to see the place, some day, Maggie. There was eight of us boys, and my sister Margaret—you're named for her, and for my mother, too. There's some of them there still, I daresay—I haven't heard for twenty years. You'd like your grandmother's kitchen—winter or summer, that was the place us boys liked to be! I remember when a big storm would be comin' up—trees bendin' over, and planks rattlin' in the yard, and the old well-sweep creakin'—how we loved the kitchen then! There was a big open fireplace one side, but she had her range built right across it, and there wasn't never a drop of anythin' spilled on that range—she kep' it like black glass.

"Oh, Pop! But why did you ever come away?"
 "I d'no, Maggie. Jest got restless, I guess."
 "Look here, Pop. If my grandmother Johnson had nine children and no servants, how could she manage to keep the place so clean, and the stove shining so and every-thing? Ma says that no ladies ought ever to do her own work, and she says it can't be done!"

"Well, maybe your grandmother Johnson wasn't a lady, Maggie."

"Pop, do you think there's any hope I'm not a lady? Not like my grandmother Petheridge, I mean? Because," Maggie would rush on eagerly, "I'd love to have my kitchen always clean and orderly, and pies cooling on the windowsill, and jam all put up, and me in a nice clean gingham dress—and a big stiff white apron, sitting down on the side porch, rocking, like you said Gran'ma Johnson always did! And I'd like to believe in all those newspaper budgets and system, and having a regular hour for every-thing," Maggie would conclude, expectant eyes on his face.

"Well—I don't know, dearie. Your mother hasn't real good health, you know. And your sister has to keep her hands nice."

And then, of course, we're poor folks, Maggie. When you have to do without, things—"

"Pop, we're not poor! Why, you and I—make more than two hundred a month, Pa. And there's budgets as low as one hundred!"

"Two hundred a month for four folks ain't much in these days, Maggie, when everything's gone up so high!" It was the automatic protest.

"But, Pop—those budgets, and the lists the government sends out and the newspapers and the magazines know how things have gone up, don't they?"

"Dearie, your Pop ain't much on mathematics," Len would say, passing a weary hand over his troubled forehead, shaking his neck, gray little head.

Ma, approached on the subject of household reform, had much to say and very, very little to do.

"When I and your Pop was married, beef was fifteen cents a pound! I remember that, because I said to the butcher, 'Ain't that a lot?' I wasn't nothin' but an innocent child—I'd never done any work with my own hands before. 'Keep them little hands like flowers!' our old doctor, Dr. Lovejoy, use to say. He was a Southerner, too—"

Maggie only listened respectfully, feeling that if beef would only go down to fifteen cents a pound again, everything might yet be well. Meanwhile, the kitchen grew shabbier and shabbier, and water and grease and ashes darkened the chipped floor, and the plates were piled in the sink, and the faucets dripped on them unavailingly. She had found room for the ideal leaflet that Joe had given her on the crowded shelf above the sink, and sometimes she looked up from the dishpan at it, with wondering eyes. "The way to begin living the ideal life is—to begin."

Scout News and Notices

The Bedeque and Freetown Troop of Boy Scouts appear to be a very energetic group, refusing to stand still, and now they have organized a Cub Pack which had its original meeting Friday night with eight present. Scout Maurice Deacon led in games. Rev. Mr. Crowe, Honorary Cubmaster, taught the "Grand Howl" and explained something of the meaning of "Cubbing" and what good fun it was to hunt in a keen pack. Mr. J. B. Lewis was appointed Cubmaster and Maurice Deacon, assistant Cubmaster.

5TH CHARLOTTETOWN TROOP

The regular meeting of the 5th Charlottetown Troop was held in Zion Church on Tuesday, May 5th.

The greater part of the training period was spent on First Aid Instruction which included improvising a stretcher, bandaging a broken limb, bandaging the head, fireman's list, and first aid for drowning.

The Troop was favored by a visit from Mr. Murdoch Ross, who gave the boys a very acceptable treat. Mr. Ross is deeply interested in the work of the Boy Scouts and his visitations to the Troop are always a source of pleasure to the boys.

On Saturday the Troop enjoyed a hike to Southport. This hike was taken in order to complete the Second Class Test in the Scout's Pace. The following boys have successfully completed their Second Class Tests in full and will shortly be awarded the Second Class Badges:

C. Glover, R. Jewel, N. Large, M. Macdonald, K. Farquharson, H. Macdonald, G. MacEwen, C. MacLean.

After completing their tests, the boys enjoyed a game of soft ball, which was very keenly contested. Another hike is planned for in the near future.

KINDS OF PARENTS CHILDREN WISH LET THEM LICK A FROSTING DISH

CLEVELAND, May 15.—Here are the ideal parents:

"The mother—she lets the children pass the candy when company comes; she is a good cook and makes a fuss over her children when they cook a meal; she reads to them, plays with them, lets them go see their friends and lets their friends come to their home; she allows her children to lick the frosting dish, has cookies and candy in the house and asks the youngsters what they like for supper.

"The father—he jokes and plays make-believe, he lets his sons use his tools; he is kind to animals; he plays baseball with the children and is a good batter; he helps the children with their home work; he takes

CONDITIONS IN STATES SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Canada and the States Look Forward Hopefully to the Coming Week—Reports Are Encouraging.

By Ken Clark

Canadian Press Staff Writer NEW YORK, May 14.—(G.P.)—Storm clouds over Central Europe, war in South America, undeclared war in China, the nations of North America are nevertheless able tonight to look forward hopefully to the coming week.

Canada has announced a trade treaty with France, reports from the Geneva Wheat Conference are encouraging, experts believe silver may be benefited at the London Economic Conference. Meantime the Canadian dollar is steady.

Conditions in the United States show improvement. President Roosevelt pushes his economic recovery programme through Congress without hesitation. At the same time he conservatively uses the greatest peace powers ever granted a President.

For example, rather than inflate the currency to procure $5,000,000,000 for public works recovery plans, he proposed to get the money by taxation—probably a sales tax.

Balancing his international programme against the domestic programme, he holds in abeyance acreage reduction and process taxing powers given him under the Farm Relief Act because of the signing last week of a Tariff Truce by eight major powers.

The Tariff Truce is regarded here as the first check in the rise of Economic Nationalism and the importance with which it is regarded by Mr. Roosevelt is indicated by his suspension of one of the major provisions of the Relief Act, a provision which would provide compensating duties on the imports of commodities taxable in processing.

RECOVERY BILL

Mr. Roosevelt, presenting his public works Recovery Bill to Congress tomorrow, asks the co-operation of industry in raising wages and eliminating cut-throat competition. The bill will give the President immense power over industry, but he asks for a "partnership." With its passage he will have large control over agriculture, banking, currency and industry and be in a favorable negotiating position at the London Conference.

A docile Congress is expected to have completed its presentation of power to Mr. Roosevelt by June 10, two days before the conference opens and five days before the June 15 War Debt payments are due. Since the President has not committed himself on a moratorium, the dates may not be without significance.

Meantime reports from many sections of the United States, closest neighbor and good customer of the Dominion, announce re-employment of labor, or increase in production or wages in steel, automobile, textile and packing industries.

his sons hunting with him; and, he helps his wife."

Those aren't the requisites drawn up by a child expert; they are the mandates of the children themselves as obtained from questionnaires from the students at Thorax Park school in Parma, a suburb.

CONVENIENT GARAGE DOOR

—Mr. Benj. Rogers has installed at his garage in Euston Street a new up-to-date device for opening and closing the door without inconvenience or trouble. It consists of a lever, weights and springs, by which the door is opened upward on a swing, allowing the car to pass in or out under the door. The door is opened by a key in the usual way, but when unlocked, instead of pushing or pulling it open, it is lifted by a handle and then automatically slides into its position above the car. Autoists who have experienced trouble with opening and closing garage doors will appreciate the convenience of this innovation.

A Requiem High Mass was celebrated by her brother, Rev. Dr. W. E. Monaghan who also officiated at the grave. The pall bearers were, Anthony Malone, Jerome Monaghan, Joseph Kelly, Gordon Waddell, Thos. McAvinn, Wilfred Doucette.

BATHING COSTUMES

CAUSE "OH MY'S"

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., May 15.—Scanty attire on the Gulf beaches that a few years ago would have placed the offender behind the bars with breath-taking swiftness this season is evoking only a casual notice from police. Bathing suits for both men and women have reached a new low in brevity. For men: a pair of short trunks; for women: tight-fitting knit trunks and a narrow strip of cloth across the chest. "It's useless to attempt to enforce restrictions on the beach not supported by public opinion," said Police Chief R. H. Noel. "The city ordinance defines indecent exposure as something which causes offence, and the public no longer is offended by the uncovered male chest or the bare feminine thigh." Shirtless male bathers made their appearance for the first time on the beaches this winter. Police insisted shirts be worn the previous season. The day of beach censors, with tape measures, apparently is past.

British imports of manufactured tobacco in the first three months of 1933 were as follows in pounds: the figures in brackets being those of a year ago: United States 26,100,024 (31,803,495), Canada 7,824,919 (4,693,879), British India 1,281,132 (1,173,458), Southern Rhodesia 371,798 (288,545), Nyasaland 292,681 (98,263), other British Countries 518,524 (369,688), Total from British countries 10,289,054 (8,623,813), Total from foreign countries 26,628,655 (32,833,958).
