Mrs. Putnam Greatly Enjoys Festivities

LONDON, June 4—(A.P.)—Before Mrs. Amelia Ehnart Putnam went to the Derby at Epsom Downs she said she was going to place a little bet—but she did not.

No explanation of her switch in plans was forthcoming, but it was noted that she was the guest of Lord and Lady Astor, and although Lord Astor is a well known owner, they never wager.

Back from the race, Mrs. Putnam sat on the terrace overlooking the Thames at the Houses of Parliament, and told several members how much she had enjoyed herself.

"What struck me," she said, "was the sunshine and gaiety of the crowd. Everything was so festive. I had a lovely time."

Last night the filer was one of the most popular guests at the hospital charity ball. The Prince of Wales danced with her three times.

Plans were made for Mrs. Putnam to cross the English channel tonight aboard the motor yacht Braden, owned by C. R. Fairley, president of the Royal Aeronautical Society, to reach Cherbourg, France, in time to welcome her husband, George Palmer Putnam, on his arrival from New York.

Mr. Fairley and a number of friends will accompany Mrs. Putnam. A dinner party will be given at Hamble, near Southampton, before the yacht leaves, with Amy Johnson and others prominent in aviation expected to be present.

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

She's all worn out again

Poor girl... she has the same old headaches... backaches... and blues. She ought to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in tablet form.

SALAD DRESSING
 (For Mail Fleur.)

All measurements level and standard. Mix together in a bowl double boiler 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup white sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tea-spoons mustard, pinch of cayenne; break into this 2 eggs (4 if small), and mix thoroughly. Add 2 cups water, 1/2 cup cider vinegar, juice of 1 lemon and butter the size of an egg (or more). Cook over boiling water until thick, stirring constantly. Cover while cooking, to prevent crust forming. This will be quite thick. For some salads I use it as made. For others and for the mayonnaise bowl I thin it with cream, either sweet or sour, or milk, or vary by adding chilli sauce or pepper hash or whipped cream.

How Much Is A Kiss Worth?

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 4—How much is a kiss worth?

Daniel Petrelli said it was worth $1 anytime, and sometimes $2. His estranged wife, Josephine, said it would be worth $5.

The argument came into city court when Mrs. Petrelli arraigned Daniel on an assault charge. Daniel explained that he visited his wife each week, paid her $3 for the support of their three-year-old child and $1 for a kiss. Once, he said, he paid $2 for the kiss. When the price went up to $5 he objected, and the subsequent altercation ended in the assault charge.

The judge raised the amount for support of the child to $5 a week; placed Daniel on probation, but left the market price of kisses unsettled.

"There goes Dr. Souder," said the club bore. "D'ye know, the old doctor gave me only two years to live—and that was ten years ago!"

"Ah, he's a very good fellow," said the victim, "but terribly unreliable."

Free Love or Marriage? Dorothy Dix Finda Marriage Offer Proof of Love

Is Marriage an Out-Moded Convention?—Not for the Man Who Really Loves, Cries Dorothy Dix. He is Sure His Love Will Last Forever, and he is Satisfied With Nothing Less Than a Life Contract

Evidently men are growing less inclined to assume the burdens and responsibilities of matrimony, for I get an increasingly large number of letters every day from women who tell me that they are in love with men who do not believe in that archaic and outmoded convention of marriage, and who propose to them that they shall live together in a free love union. And these girls want to know what I think of it.

Well, I think that any woman who falls for that line of argument when a man puts it up to her should be locked up in a padded cell until she comes to her senses. For any man who proposes anything else than marriage to a woman serves notice on her at the time he does it that he is just offering her a temporary situation as a Lady Love and not a lifelong job as a companion. He is telling her in the most unmistakable way he can that he knows that she is just a passing fancy of which he will soon be cured, and that she realizes he doesn't care enough for her to bind himself to her forever.

When a man is really in love with a woman for keeps; when he feels that life will be cinders, ashes and dust to him if he doesn't get her, he doesn't try to make any part-time arrangement with her. He does his best to tie her up in a binding contract.

As a matter of fact the liaison is only of advantage to the man. It gives him the privilege of being able to desert a woman when he has wearied of her without going through the mess of a divorce suit or having to pay alimony. But it leaves the woman flat, and why any girl above the grade of a low-class moron would make such an unequal bargain is one of the mysteries past finding out.

Indisputably not all legal husbands are faithful. But there is something steady to a man in the very knowledge that he is bound to his wife. He has made a definite bargain and the same sense of honor that makes him live up to the provisions of a business trade generally make him respect his matrimonial one and settle down to make the best of his contract. Of course, there are exceptions to this rule, but the great majority of men feel that marriage is final—that it puts an end to the love chase for them—and they never see another petticoat except their Maria's after they are married.

But if the husband does turn out to be a philanderer the legal wife has some redress. She has some share in the property that her labor and thrift have helped her husband to accumulate. He cannot go off and leave her bankrupt in purse as well as heart, as he can a Lady Love.

A great many girls have an idea that there is something peculiarly beautiful and wonderful and romantic about that plain, honest matrimony does not possess, and that illicit love is more enduring than the legal variety. All of which is just pure tommyrot.

It isn't the marriage ceremony that averts romance and causes husbands and wives to get on each other's nerves. It is daily life, daily companionship. It is seeing each other with the perfume and the powder off and the cold cream and the stubble of beard on.

It is hearing the same old stories over and over again. It is the clash of different temperaments. It is selfishness meeting selfishness. It is temper and temperament. And, most of all, it is the money question.

These things happen when a man and woman live together whether they have been married or not. The free-love wife no more escapes her husband's grouches and sourness than does the legal wife. Lethargy is just as often a twilight as John Henry, and Don Juan can make as many remarks about a badly cooked dinner as can John Smith.

Then there is the matter of the girl's good name. Only a man who is supremely selfish and cold-blooded can deliberately ask a woman to sacrifice her reputation for him. He knows the frightful punishment that women mete out to those women who drag their skirts through the mud, and one may well wonder if anything a man can give a woman pays for the ostracism of her sex.

Finally, there are the children. No woman has a right to bring a little nameless child into the world and brand it with the stigma of illegitimacy. A girl may think that she has a right to lead her own life, but no sophistry of reasoning can justify her in blasting her child's welfare before it is born.

Of course, the man will say that all these things are a matter of convention and custom and that a woman who lives with a man without being married to him may be, in reality, just as virtuous and good as one who has had a show wedding with a dozen bridesmaids and ringbearers and all the rest of it. Perhaps. But we have to take the world as it is and society as it is constituted, customs as they exist. And so long as we live in a world that is ruled by Mrs. Grundy we are wise to abide by her laws.

Marriage is not a perfect institution, but it is the best arrangement for the association of the sexes and for the protection of women and children that human experience has been able to devise. And, that being so, women do well to stick to it and put their faith in men who offer them honest wedding rings instead of a few vague promises.

DOROTHY DIX.

The Feud

(Vancouver Province.)

The news that the Campbells and the MacLeans are now officially at peace will also be the news to a great many uninformed Sasnachs that they were ever anything else. That they have been at odds for 187 years might astonish even some of the Campbells and the MacLeans themselves. Let us hope that neither clan took the matter very seriously.

Such feuds, however, have been very interesting in the past. That great poet who wrote the "Bon Gaultier" ballads brings us a good account of one of them in that great ballad detailing the battle between the McPhersons and the Clan McTavish:

Against the Clan McTavish: And marched into his land To plunder and to ravish. For he made a vow To extirpate the vipers With four and twenty men And five and thirty pipers."

In the end, however, it was "The Fairshon" who was done up by the McTavishes. There is one thing about Scottish feuds, however, and that is that however much they might hate each other, they would always combine against the English in anything from a border cattle raid up to the domination of the British Parliament House.

Revenge is Sweet — Smithson — "How did your hive of bees turn out this year?"

Brownson—"Well, they didn't produce much honey, but they stung that pest Dunn who has been trying to collect the money I borrowed from him to buy the bees."

Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Furnished With Every Pattern By Annabelle Worthington

the making—well, you can see for yourself, it's child's play!

The dress with deep armholes and deep square neck, has an attached yoked skirt. A French blue and white batiste print with deep blue bindings was used to fashion it. The separate gumples with darling puff sleeves was of pale blue sheer batiste. Small daughter can indulge in numbers of gumples, for instance a white swiss dotted in blue would be lovely. Then again, it would be entirely different and very unusual with the gumples made of white batiste striped in the deeper blue.

Style No. 435 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires 1 1/2 yards of 38-inch material for dress with 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material for blouse and 2 1/2 yards of binding.

Be sure to fill in the size of the pattern.

Price of Pattern 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred.) Wrap coin carefully.

A Morning Smile

Meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Len Drake on May 2nd. Fifteen members answered the roll call by naming a "Duty of a Hostess". There was also a number of visitors present. Minutes of the previous meeting read and signed. Committee reports were not received in full owing to the absence of members. However, several bills were presented and ordered paid. The janitor of Cornwall Hall was asked to see that it was cleaned and money was voted to pay for the work. It was decided to have Professor Kendall come to Cornwall Hall to instruct the school children in singing. The secretary distributed copies of the Institute News, also convener papers among the members. A Question Box will be a feature of the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Pope Crosby. Roll call to be answered with a current event. The entertainment committee: Mrs. David White, Mrs. Gifford Bain, and Miss Lillian MacPhail. The programme committee presented the following: A reading, "If We Could but Know," by Miss Vickerson. A paper on "Cutting Edges in the Kitchen," was read by Mrs. Hazel Howard. A solo by Miss Helen Crosby whom we were all glad to welcome on her holidays and an alphabet contest by the secretary. The National Anthem was sung and lunch served.

Says Mrs. Doughty: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Built Me Up"

"I believe it my duty to tell others what wonderful results I obtained from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," writes Mrs. James Doughty, Brantford, Ont. "I was in a terribly nervous and run-down condition, very pale and with no ambition. I took three boxes of the Pills and I soon began to feel like a new woman. No trouble to do my housework. The Pills built me up and put me in first-class condition."

Mrs. Richard Rusk, Robin, Man., writes: "Diphtheria left our daughter, Beth, a nervous wreck. She was unable to continue at school. I gave her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the change in her was marvelous. She is enjoying splendid health—and we do feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved her life."

Don't allow yourself or your daughter to be robbed of health and vigor. Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are no temporary relief. They banish run-down or nervous conditions by creating new blood, which imparts health, vigor and vitality. 50¢ at your druggist.
