Gaspereaux Meeting Gives Scheme Approval

At a largely attended agricultural meeting held in Gaspereaux Nov. 5, the potato marketing scheme was presented for consideration. The people in that section of the province gave evidence of being very much interested in the potato marketing scheme, and during the course of the meeting a petition, asking the Federal Department of Agriculture to put the proposed plan into effect at the earliest possible date, was signed by a large number of farmers and dealers Mr. J. A. Gillies represented the Provincial Marketing Board at the meeting.

Mr. L. W. Roper, cattle promoter of the Federal Department of Agriculture and Mr. S. D. Irvine of the sheep and swine division attended the meeting and discussed various phases of live stock improvement work, advocating that the farmers take advantage of the different departmental policies by which assistance is given in the distribution of pure bred sires and dams of special type.

Rev. Father McCabe made many valuable suggestions at the meeting, and it is anticipated that through his efforts something tangible along the line of live stock improvement will be brought about.

Schooner Stinas Crew Rescued

(By Guardian's Special Wire) ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 6.—Snatched from the deck of the sinking schooner Stina 300 miles off the coast of Portugal, Captain A. Rodway and his crew of five arrived here today on the steamship Newfoundland from Liverpool, Eng., where they had been landed by the Captain Rodway said the Coracero lowered boats and rescued the Newfoundland seamen three days after a terrific storm and heavy seas had crippled and battered the schooner.

Owned by Warehams of Harbor Buffett, the Stina was bound for Oporto with 5,000 quintals of fish when she was disabled. She ran in to the blow Oct. 19. Plunging into a trough of a huge wave, the staunch was raked from stem to stern, Captain Rodway said.

Her mainmast and foremast were carried away, her rudder was broken off and the pounding seas opened the seams in her decks.

Three days of continuous pumping failed to keep the water from gaining below and the weary and sleepless seamen had just about given up hope when they saw the lights of the Coracero in the distance.

Distress signals were answered by the freighter, boats were lowered and the crew of the schooner were soon safe and comfortable in warm bunks aboard the larger craft.

Before leaving the Stinas they saw fire to her in case she might survive the storm and become a menace to navigation.

JEWEL VELVETEEN DRESSES ARE COMING INTO THEIR OWN

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The "jewel velveteen" dresses—really jewels for practicality—are coming into their own.

They are frocks that take their colors from the red of garnets, the blue of sapphires, the green of emeralds and that are trimmed with imitation jewel clips and buttons.

One of the season's smartest materials, velveteen has been fashioned into dresses that can go to town, to bridge games or answer the need for a semi-sports frock.

With its thick, short, smooth nap, velveteen is especially rich looking in the color of jewel hues. In the purple of a deep toned amethyst, a velveteen frock has a regal look, and in the red of garnets or rubies, dress in the red of garnets or rubies.

Blue is the newcomer to the fall fashion's rainbow of colors, and a velveteen dress in sapphire blue is eye-attracting.

INDIAN GLASS EYES FOOL DEER POACHERS

BEMIDJI, Minn., November 6.—The glass-eye business is picking up—not because there is more eye trouble, but because of the Indians. The redmen on Read Lake reservation are using the glass eyes to fool deer poachers.

By nailing the glass eyes on trees along the highways so they will glow like deer eyes under a light, the Indians are deceiving the poachers into believing they are shooting at deer.

Bullet marks on scores of "eyed" trees attest to the good marksmanship of the poachers.

The Indians call their plan a "deer conservation" device.

ANN GOULD IS SHY AND BLUSHING FLOWER

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Miss Anne Gould, great-granddaughter of the multi-millionaire railroad pioneer, Jay Gould, today defended the right of daughters of wealth and society to hold down jobs as maids and to use their names to attract business.

Herself a model for two years, Miss Gould answered recent organized protests of professional maids against the society "interference" which she was modelling blouses here.

"Modelling is my career, not just a pastime," she declared. "I personally believe society girls have the right to be maids just as they want. So far as the work I am doing is concerned, you could not use an ordinary model for that."

"The people are drawn to the shop because of my name just because of their fame."
