FISHING SCHOONER BREAKING UP

Schooner Democracy Ashore on Nfld. Coast—Crew of Twenty Escape in Dories.

(Canadian Press) FORTUNE, Nfld., May 8.—The schooner Democracy was swiftly breaking up tonight under the battering of wind and wave that ground her against the rocky shoal where she drove ashore Friday night.

The 130-ton fishing vessel was pounding heavily before North Atlantic breakers that washed the exposed spot near here, and she was believed a total loss.

The Democracy ran aground before a heavy gale as she headed for the fishing grounds on Friday night. Her crew of 20 fishermen escaped to shore in dories when their vessel struck. After spending the week-end at the home of kindly neighbors here, they were preparing tonight to return to their homes.

ULSTER RACES IN JEOPARDY

Whether Northern Ireland will be affected by the recent ban on totalisators at dog races in England is being seriously discussed in Belfast. Officials of the tracks declare that they are uncertain as to whether the ban extends to Ulster, and they may postpone all meets until the matter is cleared.

Sees Connection Between Theology And Depression

The economic crisis appears to have come upon us "with the impersonal fatality of a cyclone," declared Professor J. D. Thomson, Halifax, at Rotary luncheon yesterday when he was guest speaker. Better times, he predicted would come "as stealthily and as unwilling as the good times departed."

The basis of our economic life, the speaker insisted is not gold but faith, trust, something that in its last analysis is unseen and spiritual in its character. He could not hope to prove by laws of irrefutable logic that the universe is maintained and governed by a spiritual presence, but then neither had he any way of proving that a sunset is beautiful. The spiritual interpretation never comes at the conclusion of an argument. He could only offer evidence in the hope that they may be persuaded for themselves.

A situation of crisis in the study of theology as well as of economics was then outlined. This situation has come upon us from the same conditions that has produced the crisis in the economic world. We are suffering from success. Through science an amazing economic system has been created beneficent, raising the standards of human well being in a thousand directions, but the question has come to be: Has man created something too vast to be controlled or is this wonderful work of his creative genius to crush the very life which should have been nourished?

Scientific discoveries have altered most profoundly our ideas about the whole universe and the nature of the forces that have created and still control its life. Has the scientist with his methods and results taken the place of the theologian? Are we the sport of impersonal atoms and electrons or can we still believe in the personal control of the forces of life? That is a supreme issue today. There was a time when the scientist and theologian were supposed to be antagonists; but today, so far from regarding the scientific method as an object of suspicion, the theologian recognizes its value and conclusions. The practical results of the application of scientific discoveries and the uses of mankind we hail as the gift of a beneficent Providence. We respect the scientist and greet him as a fellow worker in the search for truth. The time has come for an equally frank recognition of theology on the part of the scientist.

At one time it looked as if the results of the researches of scientists were to undermine the whole historical basis of our religion. By some it was asserted that the portrait of Jesus with which we are familiar in the Scriptures is not historically accurate, that it is really a creation of the early church that painted an idealist portrait of the Master. Some went so far as to suggest that its very existence is a myth. "But out of the vast weight of learning that has been brought to bear upon this subject," said Professor Thomson, "we are now able to affirm with confidence that the Gospels are essentially accurate."

The speaker continued: "Christ is the most significant fact of revelation that we know. He refuses to be dispensed of. It is not scientific nor for that matter is it honest to refuse to face the issues of His life. That is what present day theology has to say to you. The final truth of things is not hidden but comes to us in a form that the simplest minded can apprehend. We knew the character of God through Christ."

The present condition of the world's life, the speaker continued, is a call to all of us to return to God, not in a merely sentimental sense, but with our entire lives. If we are brave enough to do that, we shall have solved the crisis not only for the life of the world, but for our own personal lives as well. Rolanran G. J. Tweedy, presided yesterday. The Secretary read letters from Miss Kathleen Hornby and Mrs. Lillian Earle acknowledging flowers sent to them during their illness. The guests were Rev. C. N. Brown and Mr. T. F. White.
