AMY REBELS Chapter 13

Jordon Talbot had a curiously severe face. As a young man he had been handsome enough, with more intelligence and fire in his countenance than any other of the "boys" in that section of the country. And Amy Talbot had admired him enormously.

But the fire had frozen, so to speak. The eyes that flashed with lun now flashed with contempt. The clever remarks that once made everyone laugh, began to carry a bit of a sting. Then the wit soured to sarcasm; now it was biting denunciation of everything that did not quite meet with his approval.

In all the 56 years of his life, Jordon Talbot had not been more than 20 miles from his home. His life was rising, working and going to bed; his relaxation sitting on the porch smoking a pipe and staring moodily into space. His vision was bound by the limits of his village.

"He used to be the brightest boy in the place," Mrs. Talbot said more than once to her growing children.

It was true that at school he had always easily obtained the highest marks. It was true he owned and read more books than anyone else in the community. This gave him a reputation for scholarship.

But as a matter of fact, Jordon Talbot stopped thinking somewhere between the age of 16 and 21.

This is far too often the case, even in the packed metropolis where new ideas are fairly forced upon people by their contact with each other. But Jordon Talbot became mentally sluggish all of a sudden.

Perhaps his physical work was too much for him. Perhaps it was easier not to think. In any case, he accepted certain ideas and formulas as taught to him in his youth and never went beyond them.

One of the ideas was that dancing was wicked.

So when he came up the road and heard the frivolous strains of a one-step coming from the porch of his own house, the black thunder clouds gathered in his face. He saw his son and his son's wife dancing together, and Jane, perched on the porch rail by the machine, keeping it wound when the mechanism ran down, thereby producing more of the evil music. He saw his youngest daughter dancing, her waist encircled by the arm of one of the boys in the village.

He had no authority over his grown children—but Amy must still obey. Carefully skirting the porch, he walked around to the back of the house. Mrs. Talbot, sensing trouble, disappeared to meet him.

"In a moment she came out again. "Amy," she called, "your father wants you."

Everyone guessed there was trouble brewing from the expression on her face. Amy left Dick and went indoors.

"Haven't you danced enough? I should think you'd be tired," Mrs. Talbot said. It was her way of being tactful. Lather took the hint, and stopped the music. In the silence they heard Amy's voice from the house.

"Very well, since you can still order me around! But in a few weeks I'll be 18, and then I can do as I choose." And the young lady, with the air of a queen of tragedy—doubtless copied from some actress she had seen on the screen—fairly stalked out of the house to the porch.

"Our father considers dancing wicked," she announced.

"Hush, Amy, no so loud, you'll be heard," he mother begged, fearing more trouble.

"The rest of you may dance." Amy went on unheeding and growling more magnificently tragic with every word. "But I must sit by and watch, so I won't be corrupted by the example of my brother and sister."

At this Claire began to giggle. "He's an old foggy," she said softly. "Let's take the machine down to Dick's place. We can dance on the side porch, and father won't hear us. Will your people mind, Dickie?"

"They'll be ticked," Dick said. "We've always wanted a talking machine and never got one. Come on along."

And the party went off, carrying the machine and the records. Mrs. Talbot held Amy back to dance.

"But you're not going to dance," she said. "not when your father says not to."

"I'll go and watch, and learn the steps that way. I said I'd obey till I was 18. I'm my own master then. And then I'm going to go to the city. I've had enough of this sort of life. I'll live with Jane and study. And Claire says I can live with them if I want."

A sense of doom came over the poor faded woman in the shadows of the porch. Her youngest, her baby, was going away too!

Amy had at last rebelled openly. What was ahead of her?

Tomorrow—An Incident Is Head Stuffed by Catarrh or Cold? Use Healing Cream

If your nostrils are clogged, your throat distressed, or your head is stuffed by nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic, germ destroying cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing inflamed, swollen membranes and you get instant relief.

How good it feels. Your nostrils are open. Your head is clear. No more hacking, snuffing, dryness or struggling for breath. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from any druggist. Colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up. Relief is sure.

Agriculture In P. E. Island

Early Importation of Seeds, Cattle, and Horses.—Judge Peters' "Hints to Farmers of P. E. Island."

(By W. L. Cotton.) In the succeeding fourteen years, between 1849 and 1863, the Royal Agricultural Society continued to import seeds, live stock and farming implements of the most improved kinds, to hold agricultural exhibitions annually in each of the three counties, and to spread agricultural literature and good ideas among the farmers of the Island. An additional branch of the Society was organized at St. Peter's Bay, and the farmers in that vicinity enjoyed the special advantages which the Society afforded.

On the 2nd of April, 1851, the following resolution was unanimously passed by the Society's committee: "Resolved, that the best thanks of this committee, as well as of every well-wisher of the best interests of this colony, are due to His Honor Judge Peters for his very valuable pamphlet called 'Hints to the Farmers of the Prince Edward Island,' which in the opinion of this committee is admirably calculated to advance the agricultural prospects of all persons who may avail themselves of the information therein contained."

"Further resolved, therefore, that a committee of five including the President and first Vice-President, be appointed to contract for the printing of ten thousand copies of the same including those already kindly given up by the author—six thousand thereof to be distributed gratuitously, with as little delay as possible, throughout the rural districts of the island, and that the same committee be requested to put themselves in communication with the Board of Education with a view to have such schools, and to ascertain the practicality of introducing those interesting pamphlets as general class books in the said schools."

This latter suggestion was not accepted. The pamphlet was, however, in circulation throughout the Province for many years. It was, without doubt, influential in stirring up farmers who were inclined to be careless. There was in it much valuable information that could be applied at once in the course of farm work. One of the injunctions it contained was committed to memory by many persons. It ran—

"Dung well the land; till well the soil; Nor intermit your useful toil."

In these two lines lies the main secret of success in agriculture. The fact is as certain today as it was when written more than seventy years ago. It ought to be constantly borne in mind by all P. E. Island farmers of the present and the future.

In 1852 it was ordered that the cattle show in Queen's County should be removed from the Market Square and held in an enclosed field in the neighborhood of the town. Strenuous objections were made year towards the incorporation of the Northern Agricultural Society with the Royal Agricultural Society. At a meeting of farmers held at the Cross Roads, Cascumpec, more than £30 were subscribed to this end, and the following officers were elected:—

Patron, His Honor Judge Peters; President, L. W. Gall, Esq.; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. Maurice O'Connor and Alexander Meggison; Committee, Messrs. James Forsythe, John Wells, James Ramsay, Lot 7; John Conroy, John Oliver, Robert Hardy, Benjamin Haywood, Robert Sturgeon and Thomas Hoppood.

Then, as now, the best farmers were greatly annoyed by the "scrub bulls" that were allowed to run at large. Strenuous resolutions were passed during the Legislature to pass a law to prevent the roaming at large of bulls, "except under a certificate or license from the Royal Society or one of its branches." Now there is a law to this end, but it is not as rigidly enforced as it ought to be.

At a meeting of the committee of the Royal Society held on the 14th of August, 1852, Captain Rice stated that "having received an offer for the blood horse 'Saladin' he was desirous, before accepting it, to know whether the Society had any wish to purchase him at the price of £80. This suggestion was not adopted; but Mr. William Bagnall was requested on his visit to New Brunswick to see the Cleveland Boy horse owned by Mr. Monteale in Sussex Vale, ascertain the price and report on his return. A few months later, the Committee of the Royal Agricultural Society memorialized the Legislature to grant a sum of money sufficient for the purchase in England of four horses for the stud in this Island. The Legislature responded with a grant of £1,000, and Hon. Judge Peters, Hon. Joseph Pope, Hon. George Cole, Hon. Stephen Rice and Hon. William Swabay were named as sub-committee to make the necessary arrangements for the importation. Thereupon Mr. John Thorne was deputed to proceed to England by the first steamer for the purpose of assisting in the selection of the animals and accompanying them on the passage out. The class of horses to be imported was fixed by the committee. There were to be three heavy horses of the English breed, and one thorough bred horse—all to be three years old, if possible, none to exceed five years of age. On due time four horses arrived in good order and condition. They were sold by auction as follows: For Queen's County, one cart stallion to Mr. John Thorne for £63, and one thoroughbred for £33; for King's County, one cart stallion to Messrs. Dingwell and Underhay, for £134; for Prince County, one cart stallion to Benjamin Darby for £131.

In their annual report for the year ending 1st March, 1854, the committee of the Royal Agricultural Society state that immediately after the vote of £1,000 for the importation of horses was passed by the Legislature, Mr. John Thorne was sent to Great Britain to procure them. By energy and diligence he succeeded in procuring six valuable animals of heavy breed, and a blood horse. But great difficulty was experienced in procuring transport for them. The Naget, with four of these horses, arrived in safety; but three very fine Clydesdale horses, shipped in the Atwood, died at sea, and being only insured against wreck, about £600 of the money so spent was thereby lost. The rams of the Leicester breed, shipped in the Sir Alexander, also died at sea, or immediately after their arrival.

Mr. Thorne did his work so well that the committee voted him £50 for his services in the purchase of the horses and his attention to those which survived on the passage out.

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was weak and unable to fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound, and was much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."—Mrs. J. R. McMAHON, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Coboconk, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

Mr. Bonar Law Seriously Ill

(Canadian Press.) LONDON, Oct. 23.—Andrew Bonar Law is still in bed with a serious throat affection, and his condition today became so aggravated as to justify the physicians issuing a bulletin, the first since the former Premier's breakdown last summer. The bulletin, signed by Sir Thos. Porrien, famous cancer specialist, and Dr. Gould May, said the patient was suffering from exacerbation of his recent feverish chill, necessitating confinement in bed.

Sulphur is Best to Clear up Ugly, Broken Out Skin

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles' Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.
