SERIOUS FIRE.—Mr. Robert McKinnon of Frislan Road, suffered a heavy loss last week in the loss of his dwelling house by fire with near all its contents. Mrs. MacKinnon was the only one home at the time. The fire was first noticed by a neighbor, coming out through the roof, and before any one got there, the house was in flames. Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. McKinnon at this season of the year.

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED.—Mr. and Mrs. Byron Norton received a telegram yesterday from Dr. P. Patterson, President of Acadia University, expressing for them in their recent sad bereavement the profoundest sympathy of the faculty and the student body. He also stated that a memorial service was being held in Wolfville yesterday afternoon, after which the remains would leave for Charlottetown, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Hutchins, Ph. D. Dean of Theology in Acadia University Dr. Patterson is writing full particulars. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

THE LATE MRS. EDWARD KELLY

Fortified by the last rites of Holy Mother Church of which she was always a consistent member, there passed to her eternal reward at the home of her son, Joseph, Southport, March 10th, Ann, beloved wife of the late Edward Kelly in her ninetieth year. The late Mrs. Kelly was born in Ireland and when a young girl came to this island with her parents. For over seventy years she was a resident of Charlottetown, where she is kindly remembered by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, especially the poor to whom she was always a good friend. She has gone to her eternal reward after a well spent life and to the family the memory of the just is blessed.

She leaves to cherish her memory two sons, John E., a prominent resident of Rosindale, Mass., and Joseph, Southport; and six daughters, Sr. St. Joseph Mary, Congregation of Notre Dame, Providence, R. I.; Mrs. Thomas McQuaid, Mrs. John J. Trainor, Mrs. John Hughes, Charlottetown; Mrs. Michael Trainor, Vancouver, and Mrs. Charles Kelly, Lake Verd, to all of whom the warm sympathy of the community is extended in their bereavement.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon from her son's residence Southport, to St. Dunstan's Cathedral, and notwithstanding the bad shape of the roads was very largely attended. The services were conducted by Father Maurice McDonald, after which the remains of a truly Christian woman were conveyed to the cemetery and laid beside those of her husband who died four months ago. May her soul rest in peace.

The pall bearers were George McDonald, Morwell Henry, Martin Smith, Charles Stewart, James Trainor and Frank Haley.

HOW A SKY MYSTERY WAS SOLVED

According to an English writer, many years ago astronomers were puzzled by the weird wanderings of the two gigantic planets, Jupiter and Uranus. Sometimes they arrived at points in the heavens long before they were due; at other times they were unaccountably late. Their paths too, were strangely crooked.

No one could furnish an explanation. A young English mathematician named Adams set himself to tackle the problem. If these wanderings were due to some unseen force, he argued something must be pulling them astray.

After nearly two years of work, the existence of some still unknown planet, whose mighty bulk was responsible for the apparent confusion. He calculated not only its size and the path that it must follow in the skies, but also the exact places it would occupy on certain future days.

As he had no telescope of his own he sent his calculations to the Astronomer Royal, asking him to search the part of the sky he had indicated. At first the authorities were skeptical, and would not make the search, but eventually they decided that there might be something in it.

The huge telescope was swung to the proper quarter of the heavens and there, precisely in the spot indicated, was a dim point of light. Subsequent observation showed that it was moving.

This way, Neptune, most distant of all the planets that swing around the sun, was discovered. Its size seventeen times that of the earth, was found to correspond almost exactly with Adam's predictions, and he had calculated its year, which is almost 165 times as long as our own.

IN MEMORIAM

day, February 19, 1923, age 85 years, 11 months and 5 days. Death came suddenly and very unexpectedly. Mr. Wm. LeMasurier had just completed the sawing of a pile of wood for Mr. Easter, with which work the old gentleman had assisted. As Mr. LeMasurier left the place, Mr. Easter asked him for a shovel with which to move some snow. Mr. LeMasurier gave him the shovel and started to leave the yard. Turning to look back he saw the deceased lying in the snow. Life was quite extinct. Death had overtaken him in the midst of his little work about the residence.

Deceased was born in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, on March 14, 1837. When 21 years of age he married Jane Ann Cloy and of this union thirteen children were born. Mr. and Mrs. John Easter came to this section in May 1880. They established a home on a farm near Humboldt where they resided until 1903 when they moved to St. Vincent. Mrs. Easter died in 1914 and since that time deceased has lived alone. Of the children of the deceased, eight are now living. They are: George Easter, Humboldt; Mrs. John Ross, St. Vincent; Mrs. Duncan Cameron, St. Vincent; Mrs. W. G. Easton, Humboldt; John Easter, Humboldt; Mrs. George Clegg, Mrs. Wm. LeMasurier and W. G. Easter, St. Vincent.

The funeral was held from the Methodist Church at one o'clock Wednesday, February 21st, the Rev. A. R. Henry conducting the ceremony.

A kind hearted, friendly gentleman with an honest desire to do as near right as God gave him power to see the right, John Easter will be missed by those who knew him and his passing regretted.

BRITAIN NEEDS STORE CATTLE

here unfolded it is worth while repeating the six factors given by the Agricultural Department at Ottawa as a necessity in profitable beef raising, namely: Use of pure-bred bulls only; Use of the cattle; bringing to early maturity; selling as few cattle as possible in the fall; winter finishing; and, winter finishing.

In the more remote sections of the flowery kingdom many of the ancient customs are being retained, just as they were centuries before Occidental civilization was ever thought of.

Those of the Aml who live inland from the Chinese coast follow what was evidently their original custom, as it is still that of the Palwan and the eastern Bunnus; namely, the burial of the dead, in a crouching position, underneath the hearthstone of the family home.

Gruesome as the custom may seem to Western minds—and unhygienic—it is accepted as a matter of course by the tribes among whom it exists, and the idea of its exciting horror in the mind of anyone else seems to them incredible and absurd.

The houses of the people who practice this peculiar form of inhumation are substantially built of slate; one or more slabs of slate being used as a hearth, on which a fire is kept always burning, or during the dry season, smouldering.

When the death occurs of any member of the family, the body is bound with strands of coarse grass in a stooping or crouching posture. Then after the usual funeral ceremonies, both of wailing and of feasting, are concluded, the ashes are scraped from the hearth—care being taken, however, that the coals are kept "alive," for should these be extinguished, or grow cold, it would be considered an omen of evil, and would also "displease the Ottouf" of the dead—and the hearthstones are removed.

A deep hole is dug in the place from which the stones have been removed. This is usually lined with grass before the body is lowered into it. The personal belongings of the deceased are also placed in the grave, which is then filled in, the hearth-stone replaced, and the fire rekindled. Then the life of the surviving members of the household goes on as before.

The Turks carefully collect every scrap of paper that comes in their way, because the name of God may be written thereon.

STRANGE BURIAL CUSTOMS

The disposal of the remains of the dead has always been an interesting study as every race from time to time immemorial has had some custom of its own peculiar in the eyes of modern civilization.

The recent opening of famous tombs has brought to light many strange customs of Ancient Egypt. India has her own funeral rites. Japan's rites have been part of the national religion. Our own North American Indians paid special attention to the disposal of their departed friends. But now, where are the customs more peculiar than those of China.

In the more remote sections of the flowery kingdom many of the ancient customs are being retained, just as they were centuries before Occidental civilization was ever thought of.
