PARIS, August 9—John W. Gates, the American financier, died at 5.18 this morning in the arms of his wife and his son. The end was peaceful and it seemed as tho he was falling asleep. The usual restoratives failed in the last crisis. Others present at the bedside besides the members of the family were Drs Gros and Reeves.

A BOLD AND SUCCESSFUL FINANCIER.

The death of Mr. Gates removes in his prime one of the boldest and most successful American financiers and a picturesque figure in the field of sports. Since 1880, when he organized the Southern Wire Company, Mr. Gates had been a man with whom it was necessary to reckon in the particular industrial affairs to which he had given his attention. In recent years he found relaxation from business cares in becoming a prominent patron of the American turf.

Mr. Gates began his business career as proprietor of a hardware store at Turner Junction, Illinois, near the farm where he was born in 1855. His parents were A. A. and Mary Gates. At St. Charles, Ill., in 1874, he married Dellora R. Baker, who, with their son, Charles G. Gates, survived. From a hardware merchant Mr.

Those registered at the Queen Hotel, Summerside, yesterday were: W. H. Henry, St. John; L. W. Gates, New Haven; J. M. Hattenbury, Charlottetown; W. D. White, Alberton; C. H. and J. C. McKenzie, Sackville. S. Gates became interested in barbed wire, first as a salesman and later as a manufacturer at St. Louis. Following the Southern Wire Company he organized the Braddock (Pa.) Wire Company, which in 1892 he combined with other wire concerns as the Consolidated Steel and Wire Company.

Six years later this was sold to the Federal Steel Company, in 1897 he organized the American Steel and Wire Company, which is now a subsidiary company of the United States Steel Company. Primarily interested in steel and later in oil, the financier was also identifier with many large operations of railway and industrial stocks. He was known as a shrewd speculator on Wall Street through many ventures, notably the coup by which he obtained control of the Louisville and Nashville railroad. He was a director of the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., the Western Maryland R. R., the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway Co., the American Salt Co., New Jersey and other concerns. The Wall Street house of Chas G. Gates and Co., of which the son was the ostensible head, did a great business for some time preceding the banking troubles of 1907. In common with many other financiers Mr. Gates suffered some reverses and soon afterwards retired from the market and the firm was dissolved.
