Removes the Pain and the Cause instantly

Corns

PEOPLE who try to destroy corns by the risky practice of following old, antiquated methods, find they soon come back again, painful as ever.

But now a new method, that works on the only correct, scientific principle of removing the cause, is replacing these old, antiquated makeshifts.

It is Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads—a thin, medicated, antiseptic, protective, healing pad, that has completely revolutionized the treatment of corns. You put one on and the pain ends instantly.

A new corn can't come where the old one was, because Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads stops it before it can get started.

Put one on—the pain is gone

The Yellow Stub

"My God!" Church sobbed. "I don't know why, Rand. I bought this house. I spent a lot of money and got into debt."

"You didn't look very far or very hard, Church. You didn't want to find him."

"And I was afraid he'd find out some way and discover I'd spent a lot of his money. So I got Jensen."

"How much did you pay Jensen, Church?"

"Five thousand dollars."

"And where does Divis come in?"

"He didn't have anything to do with it. I didn't think he knew anything about it."

"Divis was just another of your handy men, eh?"

"Church hung his head and was silent."

"And why were you so anxious to get me out of town, Church?"

"Jimmy waited, but the other did not answer."

"Partly because you thought I was in your way with Mary Lowell?"

"And later on Church admitted, 'because I thought you might find out I was handling the estate.'"

"You dirty dog! Jimmy shot at him. 'I wish I could think of some punishment that wasn't too good for you.'"

"You rat! You know what a ticket stub—just an insignificant little yellow stub. Some time when you have occasion to reflect on this you can curse the day you delivered yourself into Jensen's hands."

"Did you think the secret would be safe with him? Didn't you have sense enough to realize he would blackmail you for the rest of your days?"

"I had enough on him," said Church dully, starting at his coat.

"Jimmy tossed the revolver to the center of the table, then leisurely found a cigaret and lit it."

"I may as well tell you now that I lied to when I said Divis got that picture from you. And I lied, too, when I told you Jensen had implicated you. Jensen's dead, and he died without mentioning your name. All I knew for sure, Church, was that you were administrator of Thaddeus Rand's estate. That and the fact that someone overheard Divis say Church had given him some money for Jensen."

He shrugged and walked deliberately away from the table. "The only thing you've done, Church, is to make it easier for us with your confession."

He had turned his back on Church, and he did not see the sudden look of cunning light in the other man's eyes. Church was slowly drawing himself up in his chair drawing himself up for a spring.

"You've saved us a lot of trouble," Jimmy began, but the sentence was never finished. With a quick leap Church had reached the revolver and he now held it in his hand.

"I did, eh?" he snapped, and there was in his voice hate, contempt and a promise of evil.

"I'm not through yet, see? Do you know how good a confession is, when it's drawn from a man at the point of a gun? Not worth that."

"I did it all right. I'm telling you again, but don't think you're going to have such easy sailing. Jensen's dead, eh? And Divis doesn't know. Well, they'd have a pretty hard time proving it on me, even with what you've got. But I'm taking no chances. I'm going to kill you and then I'm going to clear out!"

With the revolver pointed at Jimmy he backed out slowly to the safe and fumbled in a pigeon hole. He leisurely stuck some papers in his pocket, never once taking his eyes off Rand.

"I'm clearing out, Rand—after I finish with you," he tapped the revolver significantly. "If I'm ever caught, remember you are a housebreaker. They have nothing on me for that."

He laughed and slowly raised the weapon until it was level with his eyes.

"Now, damn you," he said.

Many Will Go To Chicago For Eucharistic Congress

Largest Special Passenger Traffic Movement in History of Canadian Railroads is Looked For.

According to advices received by Passenger Traffic Officials of the Canadian National Railways one of the largest special passenger traffic movements in the history of Canadian Railroading will take place in June next in congress at Chicago.

Preparations are being made in Chicago for the reception of more than a million pilgrims during the Congress, which will be held from June 20th, to June 24th, and the problem of transport for this multitude is already engaging the close attention of both American and Canadian Railroad Officials.

The Canadian Delegation will, of necessity, be a very large one, and will be thoroughly representative of the whole Dominion, already the Canadian National Railways have contracted with various organizations for ten special trains from the Maritime Provinces as far West as Alberta.

Most of these specials will be operated from Quebec and Ontario, but already enough travel is assured from the Maritimes for a special train to leave Moncton at or about 2:30 p. m. on Friday, June 18th.

This train will reach Chicago early Sunday morning. The train equipment will be of the very best and standard C.N.R. diners will serve meals enroute. The return trip will be made by special leaving Chicago, Thursday, June 24th, allowing trips to Niagara Falls and Ste. Anne de Beaupre, reaching Moncton on Monday June 28th.

Delegates from St. John and all Maritime province points outside of Moncton, will make their connection with the special train by the regular C. N. R. train services.

This tour includes five days in Chicago and a half day side trip to Niagara Falls. There will be a whole day at Montreal, and one at Quebec or Ste. Anne de Beaupre. It will be a notable tour under the very best auspices, and in the Railway Service there will be nothing lacking.

All applications for transportation fares and reservations on this special train should be made to Reverend J. E. Brown, Secretary of the Congress Pilgrimage care Bishop's Palace, Saint John, N. B. 8523-4-5-mon-41.

Southern Queens' And Kings Items

Mr. J. H. Stewart, General Merchant, of Wood Islands East, would seem to possess a vigorous constitution and more than ordinary power of recuperation for having received a severe cut a few days ago in his foot inflicted accidentally while chopping in the woods, he was able to go about almost immediately afterwards and is now quite himself again.

Among the recent visitors to White Sands was Mr. David Hume of Wood Islands.

The Society of Christian Endeavour continues to hold meetings in Little Sands Church every Sunday night and is provided capably over by the superintendent, Miss Mary Grace Smith.

It is learned by telephonic communication that between Pictou Island and Little Sands that scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles are very prevalent in our sister islet of the Straits, and have been for a considerable time.

We sincerely regret to hear of the illness of Miss Verna Dixon of Little Sands. Her friends of whom she has many will continue earnestly to hope that she may make a speedy recovery.

Among the subjects recently discussed by the Debating Society of Little Sands which meets at Port Wood at more or less regular intervals were: Rural Credits, Old Age Pensions, The Hudson Bay, Railway, Maritime Rights, The Reduction and eventual wiping out of the National Debt, The Immigration Policy, The Policy of Protection as against Free Trade, Non-political topics were: The Limitations of man's intellectual powers and the consequent limits of his future discoveries in the realm of invention. Man's incapacity to grasp the infinitely great or the infinitely minute and other subjects more or less related to these. It is of course unanimously admitted by all that by far the ablest speakers on these questions are Mr. William D. MacDonald, Mr. Hugh MacNeill and Mr. Samuel Dixon. Each and all of these were evidently quite at home in the discussion and elucidation of these weighty and important matters.

The many friends of Mrs. Hunt, who is now residing with her relatives, Mr. Daniel and Miss Flora Nicholson, learn with regret that she still continues in poor health. Mrs. Hunt is known to be a lady of high character and pleasing amiability.

The Guardian continues to maintain the first place in popularity among island newspapers in Southern Queens and Kings' and deservedly so.

Mr. Nell Morrison of South Pictou, one of the leading lobster packers of that locality is now taking active measures to be in readiness for the opening of the lobster season, in six weeks' time he hopes to have his traps in the water and a roaring fire under the boiler.

Cars are now being provided at Iris Station in adequate numbers for the accommodation of the lumbermen who are working in Wood Islands and shipping logs at that station. They have a large quantity still to haul and will be busy as long as the roads permit traffic with sleighs.

It is said the Ghost of Governor's Island though headless is quite agile in its movements and businesslike in its methods. When you come to look at it, it is not so strange at all. We have ourselves often heard that such and such a person quite normal in his functions had no head, no brains at all. If this is true what is to prevent a mere ghost from achieving notable stunts, though without a head.—S.

GIANTS. "PLASH! Splash! pop—plash!" went Bennie's boots in the water.

It was fun walking in the rain, in a rain-coat and rain-hat—and boots! He liked the rain on his face, too.

Then the rain stopped, and the sun came out. There were big patches of blue sky between the clouds.

"Why!" laughed Bennie, "water on the side-walk looks like the sky running. And I'm a Giant standing in the sky! I can step from one mountain to another—and let the sky run between my feet!"

"I like being Giant!"
