At the Y's conference held in Willerj Hall, Monday afternoon Miss Ethel B Connors was elected as Provincial Y's delegate to the Dominion Convention to be held in Toronto Nov. 6 to 10th. Miss Carrie Holman was chosen alternative.

The large audience who listened to Rev. Dr. Smith's talk on the Northwest in Presbyterian Hall Tuesday evening were delighted with the discourse which was a most interesting description of the resources, possibilities, the general advantages and disadvantages of Western Canada.

The grist and shingle mills of Paul Thompson of Richmond were with all their contents destroyed by fire on Friday morning last. The loss is about $2000 with no insurance. Mr. Thompson has already installed a Maple Leaf grain crusher which he is running from power in a rotary saw mill.

THE funeral of the late Mrs. Jane Keating took place at eight o'clock Wednesday morning from the residence of James K only to the R. C. Cemetery. The late Mrs Keating was a native of England and was for many years a resident of this town where her late husband Walter Keating carried on a mercantile business. After her husband's death she was for many years housekeeper for the late Ronald McDonald, after whose death she resided with Mrs W A Murphy, Charlottetown. Deceased came to Summerside in August last on a visit and while here took ill which resulted in her death on Monday morning last at the advanced age of 83 years. Mrs Wm Wickham, Mrs William Shea, Summerside and Mrs O'Holloran, Charlottetown are sisters of deceased.

HE LEARNED A GREAT TRUTH. It is said of John Wesley that he once said to Mistress Wesley. "Why do you tell that child the same thing over and over again?" "John Wesley, because once telling is not enough." It is for this same reason that you are told again and again that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cures colds, and grip; that it counteracts any tendency of these diseases to result in pneumonia, and that it is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

Duke and Duchess Canadian made shoes. The acme of style, full value for your money. Ask your dealer for them.

Modesty of Greatness. Here the eminent statesman who was dictating the particulars of his early career to the reporter paused for a moment. "This will be the place, I think," he said, "to insert the statement that I don't like to talk about myself and that I mention these facts with evident reluctance."

RAN A NAIL THROUGH HIS HAND. While opening a box, J. C. Mount, of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. "I thought at once of all the pain and soreness this would cause me," he said, "and immediately applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and occasionally afterwards. To my surprise it removed all pain and soreness and the injured parts were soon healed." For sale by all druggists.

Good fit, good wear, perfect satisfaction. Ames Holden's advertised shoes ask for them.

Don't be afraid to clean your dropping boards every day. Don't be afraid of getting your hens too fat to lay well. You never saw a scrawny hen lay. Hens must first have enough to keep them in good condition before any of it will go to produce eggs. Don't let any one fool you by making you think that common fowls lay better than thoroughbred, for they don't.

EARLY MORNING AIR.

Its invigorating effects largely due to its being so dewy.

Most people at some time in their lives probably have risen early enough to experience the bracing effect given by filling the lungs while dew is still on the grass. So far as analysis goes the composition of early morning air is not different from that of air at any other time. It is well to remember, however, that during the passing of night to day and of day to night several physical changes take place.

There is a fall of temperature at sunset and a rise again at dawn, and consequently moisture is alternately being thrown out and taken up again, and it is well known that change of state is accompanied by electrical phenomena and certain chemical manifestations also. The formation of dew has probably therefore far more profound effects than merely the moistening of objects with water.

Dew is vitalizing not entirely because it is water, but because it possesses an invigorating action due partly, at any rate, to the fact that it is saturated with oxygen, and it has been stated that during its formation peroxide of hydrogen and some ozone are developed. It is not improbable that the peculiarly attractive and refreshing quality which marks the early morning air has its origin in this way.

Certain it is that the bracing property of the early morning air wears off as the day advances, and it is easy to conceive that this loss of freshness is due to the oxygen, ozone or peroxide of hydrogen, whichever it may be, being used up.

The difficulty of inducing grass to flourish under a tree in full leaf is well known and is generally explained by saying that the tree absorbs the nourishing constituents of the soil or that it keeps the sunlight away from the grass and protects it from rain. It is doubtful whether any of these explanations is true, the real reason most probably being that the vitalizing dew cannot form upon the grass under a tree, whereas, as a rule, both rain and light can reach it.

Dew is probably essential to the well being of both plants and animals to a greater extent than is known.

PICKINGS FROM FICTION.

A witty woman is a treasure; a witty beauty is a power.—"Diana of the Crossways" (George Meredith).

Speaking to, or crying over, a husband never did any good yet.—"Plain Tales From the Hills" (Rudyard Kipling).

Too many words be worse than not enough, for they'll often leave a man's meaning foggy.—"The River" (Eden Philpotts).

There's a saying that a man who can live quite happily alone must be one of two things—an angel or a demon.—"Sons of the Morning" (Eden Philpotts).

What can one say of the highest music except that, like death, it is the great leveler; it gathers us all to its tender keeping—and we rest.—"In Varying Moods" (Beatrice Harraden).

The genius of hospitality is not so much in making people meet, but in helping them to part—on good terms. Remember that!—"The Gods, Some Mortals and Lord Wickenham" (John Oliver Hobbes).

A Modern Cannery.

A modern cannery is a marvel of mechanical ingenuity. After the fish is cleaned automatic machines do nearly all the remainder of the work, even in some instances filling the cans with a motion for all the world like that of two human hands, one holding the can, the other crowding it full of raw fish. I shall not attempt to enter into a description of the machinery. The can of fish is started rolling on its way, and one has the impression that it continues to roll through machine after machine, hardly touched by human hands. It rolls into the cooker and out again, even rolls itself into a bright colored label, and finally somehow rolls into a packing box, ready to be loaded in the car waiting at the door.—Ray Stannard Baker in Century.

Fashionable Chairs, Perhaps.

Squire Hanson's language seldom lacked vigor, but was often wanting in strict accuracy and sometimes in consistency.

"I've been over to talk with Alvirra Pond about selling that corner lot," he said one day to his wife, his ruddy face mottled with purple from some recent exertion, "and I'll never enter her parlor again, never! Not a chair in the room but what is impossible to sit down in, out of the question to get up from and leaves you with such a cramp you can't move hand nor foot when you stand!"

Precept and Example.

Johnny had come in with a story of a remarkable automobile he had just seen. He declared that it was "as big as a house!"

"Now, Johnny," said his father severely, "you know it was not as big as a house. Why do you exaggerate things so? I've talked to you a million times about that habit of yours, and it doesn't seem to do a bit of good."

Man Born Unto Trouble.

"Of course," said the optimist. "If a man gets into the habit of hunting trouble he's sure to find it!"

"Yes," replied the pessimist, "and if he's so lazy that he always tries to avoid it it will find him. So what's the difference?"
