The bride and groom agreed with the bill, but challenged statements made in the house that it was unlikely there would be compulsory conscription to send men to the British Isles. Mr. St. Laurent had said that though some would volunteer to fight for the United Kingdom, people would be conscripted to form a national duty for Canadians as such to do so. "Perilous doctrine, coming from a minister of the Crown," said Mr. Moore. Dr. Leitch said he would support the bill because the government should have all the powers required to meet the emergency. Though his constituents had voted "no" in the plebiscite by a majority of 2,000 votes. Over $500 was realized in the lottery which was permitted by Ottawa and the City administration. LIGHTNING CAUSES DAMAGE

A bolt of lightning caused slight damage on the premises of Mr. Victor Shaw, retired farmer on the Mt. Edward Road, Thursday night. Mr. Shaw has been critically ill for some time. The bolt is believed to have struck a tree outside the house then jumped to a chain fence tearing up electric posts and burning off the chain connections. These latter fell to the ground and scorched the grass. The bolt then appears to have ploughed through the ground to a nearby pipe connected with the watermain; it followed along the latter into the house and burned off the telephone wires which were grounded to this pipe. The house shook under the blow, the lights went out and a stove pipe in the kitchen fell apart but the damage stopped there. No fire was started. The residents of the dwelling received quite a scare.

can be held until reinforcements arrive. So far as can be determined the main Axis and British forces had not collided, but in view of the delay in battle-front communications, this could not be said for certain. In Cairo, united nations informants insisted there was every reason to believe the enemy could be held until reinforcements arrived. HOW BRITAIN SPEEDS UP PRODUCTION

LONDON, June 26 (CP)—British production has been stepped up to the highest percentage of its potential in the history of any industrialized nation, it was stated authoritatively here today. Squads of mobile workers have been formed, ready to be rushed wherever needed to achieve and maintain this record in spite of bombings and blackout interruptions. These flying squads, composed of both men and women, rebuild damaged houses, reinforce the staffs on bombed factories, even aid bomb-put householders by supplying mobile bath and laundry unit services. One of the squads is the national flying mobile squad, familiarly known as the Nims. Composed of many smaller units, it was born about a year ago to meet the demand raised by the growth of ordnance factories. To meet the shortage of key men such as fitters, turners, setters and drillers in the new plants, hundreds of workers answered a call for volunteers who would agree to leave their homes, travel from town to town, eat and sleep in railway coaches and work 99 1/2 hours a week. All over the country these operations now prepare the way for semi-skilled machinists. In squads of 40 and 50 they are a ways "on tour." They stay a month

Address to Graduates

The following address was delivered by Dr. I. J. Yeoo: "The invitation extended by you Superintendent to attend these exercises is a great honor and the graduates were glad to accept it. The excellence of the work done in this institution by those in charge, Dr. Murchison, Dr. McLeod, Mrs. Dignan, Mrs. Garriak, by the nurses and the attendants merits recognition and assistance from all citizens who value the importance of Falconwood Hospital and the Provincial Infirmary."

No Storage Stocks

Mr. Donovan announced in his address that there are no storage stocks of eggs in Canada and this should mean satisfactory prices to producers for fall and winter. Mr. Donovan also pointed out that British Columbia is supplying large quantities of eggs to those working on the Alaska highway and the effect of liquidating about 200,000 layers. This means that the export from British Columbia will be somewhat reduced.

Only Fair Way

Capt. Black said compulsory selective service was the only fair way to raise a fighting force. By the voluntary method the loyal, courageous men enlisted while those who were not so loyal and courageous were left out. He had been shocked by the statement of Justice Minister St. Laurent earlier in the session that while it might be a great and glorious to fight and die for the world's salvation it was not a duty imposed by citizenship. It was pointed out by the same Minister that authorized the prosecution of a man with a splendid record of loyalty and courage for criticizing the report of a commission on an investigation recently held with respect to a public matter," said Capt. Black. "This was the criticism of a counsel who was present at the inquiry and who heard the evidence. (Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative Leader, was served with a summons last Wednesday under the Defence of Canada Regulations following statements he made on the report of Chief Justice Sir Lyman P. Duff, Commissioner in the Hong Kong expedition inquiry.) TO BUY FURS

The "fashion-wise" bride will see to it now that the furs she has in her mind for the early Fall and Winter, are in her wardrobe before she leaves on her wedding trip — for there is apt to be a shortage this year in the very best hearted deers. Of course, too, for cool nights there are the blonde furs that go so well with the smart street frock, and these are usually knee length and very becoming to the slender figure. REINFORCEMENTS

Good sized reinforcements for the British defenders must, however, be drawn from the British 8th Army in Palestine and the Levant States and from the 10th Army, even more distant in Iraq and Iran. Axis broadcasts have been quoting reports that elements of the 9th Army are concentrating at Haifa to embark for Egypt and the United States mobile troops from Iran are en route west, but united sources have declined comment on these reports for obvious reasons. Rommel, for his part, must depend on Tobruk, 200 miles across the desert behind his lines, for truck-borne supplies. The fact that United States four-motored Consolidated concentrated on Tobruk harbor last night — in co-operation with R. A. F. Wellingtons which raided the town — appeared to indicate that Axis supply ships already were using that port, despite demolitions hastily effected by the overwhelmed British garrison last week-end.
