Living & Leisure THE WOMAN'S REALM

The scarlet of the maples can shake me like a cry
Of bugles going by,
And my lonely spirit thrills
To see the frosty asters like a smoke upon the hills.
There is something in October sets
the gipsy blood astir;
We must rise and follow her,
When from every hill of flame
She calls and calls each vagabond by name.

IT'S SMART TO BE SMART

In shoes as in every other part of the teen-age costume, "Sloppy Jane" is gone forever — and good riddance. From now on, it's smart to be smart, according to the stylists. This means goodbye to sloppy bulging footwear and insistence upon a trim, dainty silhouette with a clean-out leather sole helping the shoe keep its shape.

Loafers this year will boast special features like rising vamp, side buckles, wall toes and perforation. Among popular numbers for the junior miss will be tan monk-strap models with cross straps; step-in loafers with pintuck vamp; and closed moccasin-toe styles. The ever-popular oxford will show special treatments of buckles and laces, and contrasting stitching on leather soles. Ghillie ties and even blouses will abandon many campus feet this fall. And for dating and dancing the sling-back pump will hold on, especially with closed toes.

Never use lettuce and tomatoes in sandwiches that are going to be made up in advance.

ALUMINUM KEYS

Automobile keys of aluminum alloys are becoming popular because of their lightness.

In uncooked food, such as vegetable juice cocktails, add dried herbs well in advance — even overnight — to release their full flavor. To prevent specks in the finished dish, tie herbs in a bit of muslin and remove before serving.

Hotter Food

Before filling the cup or bowl with the hot nourishment for the invalid, fill it with boiling water. Let stand for a minute or so and then pour out. Dry the cup quickly and fill with the nourishment. You will find the food will stay hot much longer than if poured into a cold cup.

Kid Gloves

After perspiring in kid gloves, shake a little powder into them. It will absorb the moisture and prevent that smell of leather that is so objectionable.

Serving Fish

Silver utensils should always be used when serving fish, as steel often imparts a very disagreeable taste.

It is claimed that she shall rank as the daughter of a duke. Lady Katharine and her husband are still without a home of their own in England, and are living with his parents at Bickley, Kent. Major Brandram will be leaving soon to command a battery at the Royal Artillery O.C.T.U. at Deepcut near Aldershot.

Marital Grips

Wife Expects Man To Be Vociferous Sweetie But Husbands Do Too

The most common peeve of wives is that their husbands take them for granted. Having told them a million times during the days of courtship how much they loved them and that they were the only women in the world to them, and having married them to prove it, they consider that the incident is closed and never mention the state of their affections again.

The world is filled with husbands who have never looked at a petticoat other than their Jane's since their wedding day, and who think that their homely wives are more beautiful than any glamour girl. Heads of married men meekly submit to being heckled out of their lives by the female tyrants they have espoused, and the main reason why there are so many more widows than widowers is because husbands so often work themselves to death to make life soft and easy for the wives they adore.

But while the American man is the world's prize husband, he is its greatest flop as a love-maker. He exhausts his visible supply of romance during the days of courtship and thereafter he says it with beststinks and fur coats and expects his wife to know what he means, and to be as much thrilled at his bringing her home a hot dog as she would if he had written a sonnet to her eyebrows.

NOT ENOUGH

Women, however, are realists and this inarticulate lovemaking doesn't satisfy them. It is their curse that they never get over feeling like brides and wanting to be treated like brides. No matter how faithful and kind and good a husband is to his wife, unless he continues to tell her every day how beautiful and wonderful she is and makes a

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

That discouraging feeling, a queer disturbing emotion, began that morning in my holidays, when I said I had been "weighed in the balance" and found sadly "wanting" by James. Weighed, perhaps justly, though "to err is human" but at any rate, duly. "Drive in to—Yes, driven to it!" he said in a low tone and with the air of a martyr, as just past dawn in that busy digging season he sat down on the kitchen couch and proceeded to sew a patch on the knee of his overalls. Knives, especially older ones must be well protected, when one intends to lend a hand at the pickling. When backs refuse to stand the strain of stooping then down to our knees we drop to continue our gathering. It is a painful ordeal at best. To be present when James undertakes any sewing. He squints at the eye while the needle, makes several futile attempts to thread it before he finally succeeds and even then the worst is yet to come. It has not been knotted, a necessary procedure when James begins to sew. By way of further impressing my shortcomings, in word and deed, as it were, he waved away my last offer of assistance in a sorrowing gesture.

"No, Ellen," he said then continued in a resigned voice "a man never knows what kind of woman he gets when he marries. No, indeed, and if he gets one of the galvanizing kind, he's to be pitied. If instead of going off to the show last night, you had stayed at home as any other sensible farm woman would in this busy time, and mended my pants, you would only have been doing what was right and proper—and we would have had an earlier start today. "Ah me!" he went on "did I ever think, 'I'd come to this? Doing my own mending. A show you went to—and enjoyed! And the knees right off of my overalls, right down to the clay. I would be today, for all you'd care. Catch Jeanie or Karo—'m doing the like—here knot this Oh me, oh me!" and he fairly rocked in his disappointment and misery. And my ego dropped with his words, until I wondered, neglected person that I was, at his veritable goodness in allowing me to light his morning fire and stir his porridge! "There!" he said in a brighter tone, at length, his mending over and then slipping into the now whole garment, he was off to feed the horses in the stable and later, my spirits revived and every concern was forgotten and buried, wrapped with my naps and dreams about the Springs flowering bulbs. I planted that morning.

"The Egg and I" from the popular book by Betty MacDonald was the "show" in question, which I

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

When making a business telephone call, and a man's secretary asks for the name, isn't this somewhat presumptuous?

A. Not in the least. No doubt she has been requested to do this. Some busy men are bothered so much by insignificant calls that this is necessary.

Q. How should a man at a dance introduce his partner to another couple?

A. "Miss Crawford (his partner) this is Miss Miller and Mr. Franklin."

Q. May a printed card be used to acknowledge the wedding gifts?

A. Never; acknowledgements must be made by handwritten letter.

THE STARS SAY—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, October 31

THE indications, according to lunar aspects, point to a static, congested, delaying and disappointing state of affairs, with little of a constructive nature, although there may be futile attempts to make some advancement or profitable gesture. It is probable that an error of judgment, some sort of obstacle, or an unjustifiable or foolhardy effort may have an injurious rather than constructive denouement. Overdoing, forced issues, extravagance, unsound indulgence will be nil.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which but little headway is to be gained. Any efforts to offset static obstructing or depressing and blocking states of mind and emotions, would but aggravate the impediment or delay. An inner urge to force things by extravagant or high-handed measure would also prove hazardous. Shun all extravagance, excesses and profligality. Relaxation or diversion might pay better dividends in the end.

A child born on this day may find itself under a sign of frustration and defeatism, and would find little progress in efforts to force events or circumstances by rash, impetuous or prodigal methods. Health might be an undermining

MISUNDERSTOOD

Young Jones, unable to find a job at his own trade, applied for a vacancy as a drapery assistant in a large store. "Do you know anything about the trade?" asked the manager. "You know about gergette, for instance?"

"Gergette?" replied the youth, enthusiastically, "I know her quite well. Nice girl, isn't she?"

The truck driver was unfortunate enough to run his vehicle into a house where a woman stood bawling. Having lost his nerve, he did not know what to say, and blurted out: "Can you tell me the way to Toronto?"

"I can," replied the woman. "Straight past the clockboard and then turn left at the piano."
