RADIO ORGANIST VISITS AMHERST PIANO FACTORY

The Amherst News says:

The Amherst Pianos Ltd. secured today another unsolicited testimonial from one of the leading organists in the United States, Prof. John Fitzpatrick, official organist at Radio Sations WDWF and WEAN Providence. Rhode Island. while passing through Amherst by motor on Tuesday had occasion to remain in town for a few hours and during that time, visited the plant of the Amherst Pianos Ltd. To officials of the plant, Prof. Fitzpatrick said "I have certainly enjoyed playing upon your Amherst Piano, and I may say that in practically every town in the Provinces where I have visited I have found an Amherst made piano. I appreciated the fine tone and action of your instrument and have commented upon the excellent tones in the middle keys, generally found only in the leading grand pianos." The sustaining pedal, in the Amherst piano for the bass only was one of the features that struck Prof. Fitzpatrick as highly commendable.

Give Your Child A Chance

In a physical race we would not place a lame boy with one who has normal limbs and body and expect him to do as well as his playmate, yet this is just what is expected of the child who is suffering from eyestrain. He is to keep pace with the rest of the scholars whose eyes are normal but he is handicapped by having a lot of his nerve energy going to support a physical defeat. School life, under normal conditions, is a pleasure rather than a burden to the child. Whenever it ceases to be a pleasure to a child a careful examination will reveal some physical defect, and in a majority of cases it will be found in the eyes.

Now is the best time of all the year to have their eyes examined so that during their play time, their eyes may be gaining strength so that when school reopens they will be in a position to enter their studies with keen enjoyment. Have your eyes examined with precision and thoroughness.

Device To Eliminate Phonograph Record

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—A man sitting in an office in Berlin, Capetown, or Pekin may soon be able to dictate a letter which will be heard and taken down instantly by a stenographer in an office in New York.

This is one of the startling results of an invention perfected in the laboratory of the Berlin Telegraphic Gesellschaft, Limited, after secret experiments based on the researches of the Danish inventor, Waldemar Poulsen. Briefly stated, the invention consists of a means of recording and storing sounds on steel. The inventor, Dr. Kurt Stille, has been eighteen years at work on this question.

Recorded on Wires

The sounds are recorded on a steel wire by electromagnetic means, so that the wire bears no surface markings of any kind and can at will be "emptied" of its sound contents in readiness to receive others. The wire, which can be of any length desired, so that it may "take" the longest speeches or musical scores, can be connected with any telegraphic cable, which conveys the sounds further.

It is predicted that within a short time every newspaper correspondent in the world will be able to dictate his articles direct to his office. New music or operas or plays or statesmen's speeches will be heard simultaneously in all parts of the world without the rasping, noisy interference which at present interferes with purity of sound by wireless transmission.

One of the incidental effects, it is said, will be to drive the phonograph out of business. Even in the most perfect phonograph models, there is always a faint scratching sound as the needle travels over the vulcanite plate, which is completely eliminated by this new process.

In the machine turned out by Dr. Stille the very thin steel wire revolves on two spools, deriving its current from a small electro-magneto; the sounds are conveyed by variations of the current. Pressing a button which induces another current "empties" the wire of its sound contents, which otherwise may be repeated at will and endure indefinitely.

A Rythmical Method.

The inventor describes the root principle of the invention in the following words: "We will suppose you want to dictate a letter. The sounds you utter are conveyed by means of a microphone and send waves through an electric current. This current flows through a small electro-magneto. The magnetic force becomes alternately weakened or strengthened according to what one might call the 'rhythm' of the electric current, which is, of course, based on the sound vibrations caused by the voice. This rhythmical magnetized electric current is communicated to the steel wire as it gradually winds out of one spool on to the other. When you cease speaking, your words are recorded in invisible magnetic writing on the wire. To empty the wire of this writing is a very simple matter; one simply reverses the process and retransforms the magnetic waves into ordinary sound waves."

Instead of being "emptied" for further use, the charged wire may be disconnected and stored up, when it will, on being reconnected, repeat its sound contents as often as is desired. The life of such a sound wire, unlike that of a phonograph plate, is limitless.

Bryan Leaves $100,000 To Education, Religion

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—An estate of $860,500 is distributed by the will of the late William Jennings Bryan. His estate, "Marymont," at Cocoanut Grove, Florida, goes to his wife, together with one-third of the rest of his estate.

His three children received approximately $100,000 each according to his own estimate. Approximately $10,000 goes to educational and religious institutions.

It is understood Mrs. Bryan will be appointed administratrix of the estate. The will in parts is as follows:

"In the name of God, farewell.

"Trusting for my salvation to the blood of Jesus Christ, my Lord and Redeemer, and relying on His promises for my hope of resurrection, I consign my body to the dust and recommended my spirit to the God who gave it."

The last stipulation in the will is as follows:

"I have saved for the last my bequest for religious education. While I have devoted a large part of my time to the study and discussion of political questins and have found an abundant reward in the reforms adopted with my humble aid, I feel more interested in religion than in politics, because religion is the only influence that controls the heart, out of which are the issues of life.

"Next to religion, I am most interested in education, because education can and should increase one's capacity for service.

"But education will not be a benefit to its possessor and a blessing to society unless wisely used.

"I am anxious that each intellectual ship shall be equipped with a moral rudder, sufficient to control its course on life's stormy sea.

"My chief interest is the reform of Christian education, the entwining of the spiritual with the intellectual.

"I had hoped to aid in the establishment of an academy that would embody my idea and serve as a model.

"Fearing that I shall not be able to carry out this plan during the years that remain, I am setting aside a fund equal to each child's share to be used for Christian education."

10,000 Year Old Urn Found In Africa

JOHNANNESBURG, Aug. 13.—An ancient copper urn, containing five thick copper bangles, supposedly taken from the legs of dead slaves, has been found among the wonderful terraced ruins of Ivanga, in southern Rhodesia. When exposed to the air the urn crumbled into dust.

The find is said to be the first of importance archaeologically. The age of the urn, which was found ten feet deep under alluvial soil, and which is the only man-made article ever found in these terraced ruins, is estimated by the finder to be from 8000 to 10,000 years.

The Ivanga district is noted for its ruins, which cover an area of 60 by 40 miles. They consist of the remains of stone building, aqueducts and terraces. No clue has hitherto been obtained regarding the builders of these ruins.

Large Bequest For Her Church

TORONTO, August 13.—"All the rest of my estate my executor shall pay to the non-concurring Presbyterian Church, to be used for missions, it being my wish to assist the said church and its work apart from the United Church of Canada," reads the final clause in the will executed June 18, last by Miss Sarah McCallum, who died in Aurora, July 2.

The estate is valued at $113,719. She left $1,000 and one-half the farm to her cousin, Archie McCallum, who is executor, and the remainder of the farm to Donald McCallum, a cousin. Annie E. McCallum, a sister, inherits an annuity of $75; Mrs. Katherine McCallum, Mrs. Jane McCallum, cousins, in Newmarket, annuities of $135.

Battery Charging

Seventy five per cent of lead plate batteries are ruined by Sulpluric Acid Solution and careless live charging. They do not live out half of their days.

Live Charging and Sulphuric Acid Solution are out of date.

"Always Ready Battery Solution" is a scientific discovery protected under letters patent.

We are renewing old batteries supposed to be useless. Bring us yours.

IN MEMORIAM

DONALD D. McKINNON

"A good man and a just and a disciple of Jesus" were the words taken from the New Testament, descriptive of one of its characters, by Rev. J. A. McLellan at the funeral service of the late Donald D. McKinnon, Brooklyn, as applicable to the life and character of Mr. McKinnon. All agreed to the suitableness of the words. Mr. McKinnon was born at Grandview sixty-six (66) years ago, where his parents stayed with friends on their arrival from Scotland until they made a home of their own at Brooklyn, Lot 63, where Mr. McKinnon lived all his days. His health began to fail two years ago but he was able to be about his work most of the time until a few weeks before his death on July 24. He was married to Margaret McPherson, Valleyfield East, who survives him. To them were born two sons and three daughters, all of whom are living. Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon possessed one of the most comfortable homes of the country, with industry and taste in evidence; kindness, courtesy, hospitality with other graces of the Christian life permeated the atmosphere where they lived. To those that come after him, Mr. McKinnon passed in name and character a good heritage. Quiet in disposition, strong in his convictions, since early life a true Christian, strict in his religious profession, industrious and frugal he had the highest esteem of all. A faithful attendant at church services, a liberal supporter by means and time of its work, Valleyfield Congregation, of which he was one of the most faithful members, will miss him much. The sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends goes to his widow and family in their heavy bereavement. His son Donald and his family live in the old home. Hector is in Alliston, Mass. The daughters are Mrs. A. Finlayson, Grandview; Mrs. P. McPhee, and Sadie, Alliston, Mass. Surviving Mr. McKinnon also are one brother, John, Brooklyn, and five sisters, Catherine, North Pt.; Mrs. Cousins, Arlington Heights, Mass.; Mrs. Essens, Cambridge, Mass.; Mrs. McPherson, Bellevue; and Effie, Brooklyn.

CANADIANS of all people should have perfect bread. For we have an unequalled source of supply. The finest wheat that grows is in our own Northwest—the world's peerless granary. Nature has given us her richest; it is for us to be careful and thorough in its preparation. That is where the millers of
