

NEWS of the WORLD in PICTURES

Pictured above are members of a British American Ambulance Corps volunteer unit which was aboard the Egyptian liner Zamzam, reported sunk in the South Atlantic. Left to right: Front row, Charles A. McCarthy, Weston, Mass.; Charles L. Harris, New York; John W. Ryan, Newton, Mass.; Francis J. Vicovari, New York; Fred W. Hoising, Rochester, N.Y.; Capt. William A. Wyenbruck-Loe and George A. Tichenor, Maplewood, N.J. Back row, William Davidson, Worcester, Mass.; George M. Butcher, Seattle, Wash.; George Finneran, Rye, N.Y.; Henry Emsheimer, New York, and Philip N. Favensham, Concord, N.H.

In army language the term "small arms" includes every type of weapon from mortars, machine-guns and anti-tank rifles to bayonets, hand grenades and pistols. The former 30-day training camp at Long Branch, near Toronto, is now the Canadian Small Arms Training centre where neo's and junior officers from all over eastern Canada are taking courses in the use of small weapons. The "small arm" being used (LEFT) is a light trench mortar which throws a deadly little bomb. One of the most fearsome weapons demonstrated at Long Branch is the Thompson sub-machine gun (RIGHT), once favorite weapon of Chicago prohibition gangsters. The "Tommy gun" fires a .45 calibre bullet at a faster rate than most machine-guns and although not so effective as long range, it is deadly at close range.

The green and white flag of Egypt, technically a neutral country, failed to protect the Egyptian liner Zamzam, above, from German sea raiders, according to an Alexandria announcement that the ship had been sunk in the south Atlantic "by enemy action."

Frederick James Leathers, new Lord Leathers above, is Britain's new Atlantic battle chief and first minister of war-time communications shipping and transport. He was born in London's east end, worked many years in a shipping firm, is now a baron at 60.

Striking with sudden swiftness all over the nation in the first country-wide move to round up aliens who failed to comply with the 1940 registration act, government officials seized thousands of non-citizens and held them in unannounced numbers for deportation proceedings. The sullen group above are German seamen shown as they were taken from the German Seaman's Mission in Hoboken, N. J., for questioning on Ellis Island.

These American Red Cross nurses were pictured as they sailed for England, to join the staff of the Red Cross-Harvard Hospital, now under construction. Left to right: Theodosia Hawley, of Brimfield, Conn., Record Librarian; Elizabeth Phillips, of New York, associate Chief Nurse; Charlotte Raymond of Newtonville, Mass., dietitian; Mrs. Helen M. W. Johnson, of Newton Center, Mass., Assistant Superintendent and Gertrude Madley, of Detroit, Mich., Chief Nurse.

Mrs. Robin Strachan, on board the Zamzam, was on her way to visit her husband in Arabia. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Neelands of Toronto. Her husband, shown here, is an Englishman who formerly taught in Upper Canada college, and is an expert in Oriental languages. He has been in Arabia since the beginning of the war as adviser to a sultan friendly to the British government, according to a friend.

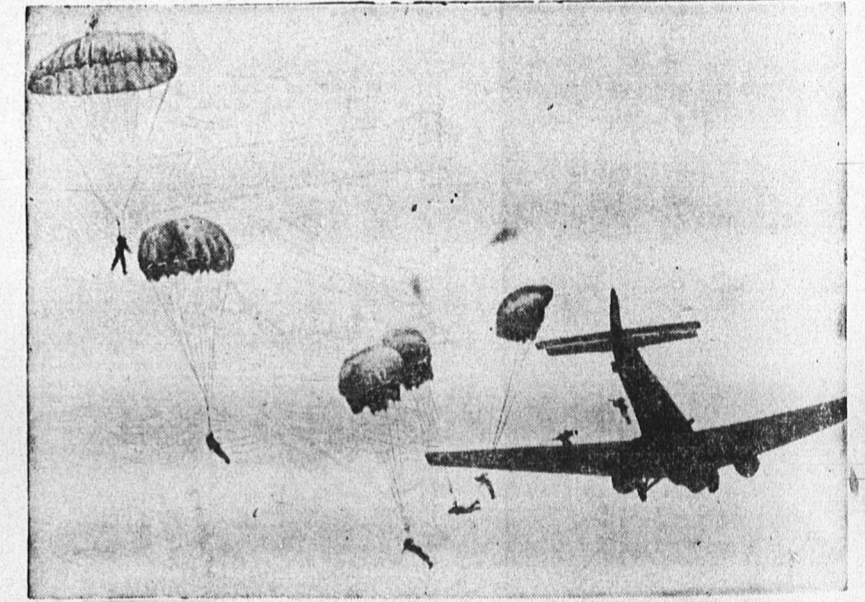

J. E. Griffin, unable to attend the wings presentation ceremony at Dunnville, Ont., had his present to him in bed. But he is no less happy, as they adorn his pyjamas, than were his uniformed classmates, who graduated in the ceremonies held at the school.

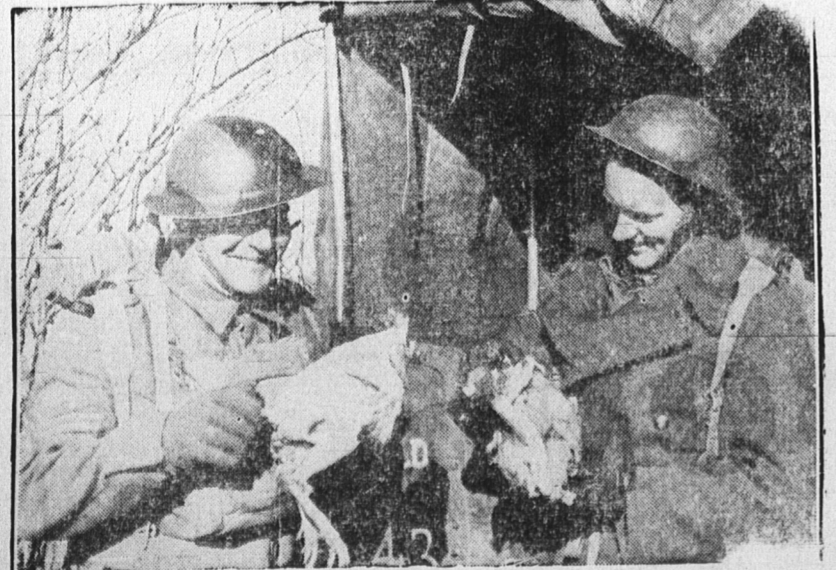

Life imprisonment was the sentence received by freckled Robert Messex, 12, at Waynesboro, Ga., after he was convicted of killing his father because he was whipped for not attending school. Robert, who weighs 70 pounds, finds life fascinating.

In the arena at Tijuana, Mexico Conchita takes on a 1,200-pound enraged bull, fighting on foot in Spanish style. Cheering throngs from Portugal to Mexico have watched the slightly-built queen of the bull-fighters.

A huge tri-motor plane carries these German parachute troops for a practice jump at Stendal parachute jumping school. This picture represents a rehearsal for what took place in Crete, when the Nazis made a parachute attack yet tried was made by the Nazis over the island where Britain has established a strong eastern Mediterranean naval base. The attack on Crete, in turn, may be a rehearsal for a future attempt to invade England by air and sea. It was thought in London. London reports a number of the parachute troops have been "accounted for" and the round-up continues.

TASTY GIFTS FOR CANADIANS
Sgts. C. F. Bauer and E. R. MacDonald of Moncton, funnel a couple of tasty gifts from England farm folk to Canadian gunners on a 1st Division exercise. Judging by the look on their faces the gifts are really going to be enjoyed by these lads.

Fella, President Roosevelt's pet Scottie, has been chosen president of "Barkers for Britain," an organization of dogs of the U.S., created by Barkers for Britain Inc., to afford opportunity to dog lovers to aid the cause of British relief through the purchase of tags.

German parachute and air-borne troops made a concerted attack during the night of May 19 on Crete, temporary seat of the Greek government. The British eastern command announced that the attacking forces had been "accounted for". Crete became an exceedingly important naval base for the British when the Italians began their invasion of Greece. The harbor of Crete is shown LEFT. A view of the mountainous territory of the island where the Greeks are carrying on the war with Germany alongside of the British, is shown at RIGHT.

