In the 1935 parliamentary elections there were seventy thousand men—one class of reserves and secondary reserves—were called to the colors Saturday and the frontier strengthened after two Sudeten Germans were killed by border guards.

Heavy Motorized Units

While the partial mobilization was described as primarily for maintaining public order—especially in Sudeten German districts—it was noted many tanks and other heavy motorized equipment rolled toward the border Saturday and Sunday.

Authorities insisted the frontier had not been closed to traffic. It was suggested the basis for frequent reports that borders had been closed was the fact motor roads in a number of places—particularly those of military significance—were blocked.

Government offices as well as foreign legations in Praha were staffed as for a week-day as diplomats kept abreast of developments.

Explosive Situation

Some observers pointed out that while official circles felt "the worst is over—at least for this week" the continuation of troop movements maintained an explosive situation which possibly could be turned into a catastrophe by a single border incident.

It was admitted frankly in official quarters that the country's soldiers were ready on or near all borders—especially the German border. International anxiety had been aroused by movements toward the Czechoslovakia border of German troops.

On the inner side of the horseshoe frontier between the two nations lies the main bulk of Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 German minority.

The cabinet Saturday night was closeted with President Eduard Benes until midnight. Afterwards the cabinet continued its deliberations until dawn.

Foreign Minister Kamil Krofta meanwhile was visited by the British, French, German and Polish ministers and explained to them the purpose of calling out reserves.

The Polish minister asked particularly about the concentration of Czechoslovak troops on the Polish border.

Krofta was understood to have told him the soldiers were concentrated only on a 30-mile stretch of the Polish border nearest Germany—in other words, a precautionary strengthening not extending over the whole frontier.

Up to noon today railway traffic across the Hungarian border was normal although the night train from Budapest was delayed more than an hour at the frontier before receiving the signal to proceed.

There were few evidences of the reinforcing of the army in Praha. At the Foreign Office the situation was described as unchanged from Saturday. Some officials professed to be more optimistic. The conviction expressed in some circles was that Hitler knew full well the Czechoslovaks would fight to defend the integrity of their boundaries and therefore he would not precipitate a conflict likely to involve all Europe.

So far as the Sudeten Germans are concerned, it was stated the Czechoslovak army could handle them. If German troops should cross the frontier, persons close to the Government said the Czechoslovak would withdraw to line outside of the Sudeten German district bordering Germany but would attempt to fight on the conflict territory where the minority Germans are concentrated.

Individual Awards

WINNIPEG, May 22.—Mrs. Pauline Boutil, St. Boniface, Man., and Frank Rostance, Toronto, won the Lady Tweedsmuir awards for the best individual performances by a woman and a man respectively either in the French or English language during the Dominion Drama Festival here.

Adjudicator Barrett H. Clark of New York selected the two best previous winners of festival awards for acting, from among 200 of Canada's best non-professional actors who presented 12 short plays and four full-length plays during the week-long festival, which ended Saturday night.

Mrs. Boutil, who played sister Jeanne in "Le Cercle Molliere" presented in the session as "Le Comte Robert de Damperre," French Minister in Canada, of the best individual performance in the French language by a woman. She won the same award in 1936.

Paul Pelletier, Ottawa, as Tito, the degenerate engineer in "Le Cavaeu," Ottawa production of Scam-polo, won the French Minister's prize for the best male performance in French.

Frank Rostance, 1837 winner of the Lady Tweedsmuir award, played the role of the jealous actor in "The Guardsman," who attempted to test his wife's love by wooing her disguised as a Russian guardsman.

Debates Loom On Unemployment (By The Canadian Press) OTTAWA, May 22.—Debates on unemployment and economic conditions in the House of Commons are expected to take a more concrete turn this week with the Government's new $100,000,000 spending program before the members and the further assurance of legislating to encourage low cost house building. Supplementary estimates tabled in the House Friday by Finance Minister Dunning contained appropriations of $40,000,000 for what Labor Minister Rogers termed "work-creating" projects. They include what Mr. Rogers described early in the session as a "program of national conservation and development."

So far members who discussed unemployment have done so without definite knowledge of what the Government proposed. Now they know and their suggestions will be directed to extension and criticism of the supplementary estimates in place of suggestions of their own.

... and have money left over! A wise man once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo." Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week. But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by careful spending. That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need . . . where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend. A careful reading of the advertisements . . . today, tomorrow, and every day after . . . will help you to do something that we'd all like to do: But what you want — and have money left over!

Daladier Keeps

Premier Edouard Daladier remained in his office in the War Ministry where he talked with Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

The French view of the Czechoslovak situation was that it was up to France alone to decide when and if to go to Czechoslovakia's aid in case of trouble. Soviet Russia is pledged to follow France if she backs up the Czechs with military support.

Diplomatic activity here continued at a feverish pitch. Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet today received the Polish Ambassador to France, Juljusz Lukasiewicz, following conferences Saturday with the Ambassadors of Great Britain, Czechoslovakia and Soviet Russia.

In talks with Stephen Osusky, Czechoslovak Minister, and Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador, Bonnet outlined the permanent position of France in the Czech problem, official sources said.

Bonnet, it was authoritatively stated, told the various ambassadors the French-Czech mutual assistance pact will be carried out faithfully if necessary.
