SEALING STEAMER TO THE RESCUE OF THE MINTO AND STANLEY

Sails At Daylight This Morning From Port Mulgrave—Will Go Round By Cape North, A Three Days Trip—Both Crews Now Working To Set The Stanley Free May Effect This Within A Few Days.

On the strength of representations made from Charlottetown by our representatives, the Agent of the Marine Department and the Board of Trade, the Department of Marine at Ottawa decided yesterday to send a sealing steamer to the rescue of the Minto and the Stanley.

Mr. Lord was advised by wire from the Department about seven o'clock last evening that the sealing steamer Newfoundland, Captain Farquhar of Halifax, and now at Port Mulgrave, will be despatched this morning at daylight for that purpose. The steamer is fully equipped for a sealing voyage, manned and coaled, and is a suitable vessel for the object in view.

Owing to the pack of ice between the Island steamers and the Strait of Canso it will be necessary for the rescue steamer to sail all the way round Cape Breton and approach the imprisoned vessels by way of Cape North. This will take at least three days before she can reach them.

It is expected she will first endeavor to free the Stanley, and if she cannot do this will take the Minto in tow and bring her to Picou where her new propeller blades can be put on.

Having disposed of the Minto a second effort could be made to get the Stanley free, and no doubt the skill and experience of Capt. Farquhar, who is an old sealer and ice-fighter will be of great value.

Sealing steamers carry from 100 to 400 men, and the Newfoundland's strong crew will form a powerful reinforcement to the seventy men of the Stanley and Minto now at work.

A private letter was received in the city yesterday from the Minto, dated March 2, states that the crews of both steamers were then working to relieve the Stanley which they hoped to accomplish within a few days. Should this prove true the winter steamers may be relieved before the sealing steamer reaches their vicinity.

The deepest interest and concern has been felt in the city and throughout the Island in the rescue of the Minto and Stanley and the news of the energetic efforts now being made will be received with general satisfaction.

CANADA'S WELL KNOWN LATE POET

The Grave of Archibald Lampman Visited

BEAUTIFUL THOUGHTS

From a Beautiful Life—A Pen Picture of the Last Resting Place of the Poet.

To many Canadians, who with me are fervent admirers of Archibald Lampman's poems, it may be of interest to learn that on the last anniversary of his death I found myself staying not an hour's drive from Beechwood Cemetery, where he lies. I had never seen his grave, and was anxious to do so, but a tremendous fall of snow had taken place two days before, and there was some doubt as to the road being open. My kind hosts, however, placed a scarlet-painted carolee at my disposal and, depositing a pair of snow shoes beside the driver, in case of emergencies, I started on my pilgrimage to place some flowers on Lampman's grave. It was just such a day as Lampman would have delighted in. A snowplough was all that had passed over the road before us, and almost as high as the scarlet plume which swung about the hood of silver bells the snow was piled on either side. I had to enlist the services of the guardian of the cemetery, who most kindly came with me, to show the location of the grave. There was about a hundred yards of unbroken snow to be traversed on snow shoes, and

THE ITALIAN STRIKERS TOOK CHARGE OF SYDNEY ON MONDAY

Three Hundred Strong They Marched to Steel Works and Held up Workmen and Citizens Till the Police Clubbed the Fight out of them—Workman Killed at the Steel Plant.

Sydney, March 2.—About 300 Italian laborers employed by the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., at coke ovens and other sections of the works, went out on strike this morning and for a time it looked as if there would be a riot.

Last night notices were posted that no one was to go to work this morning under penalty of being killed. A number of the men claimed that the company brought them here under a promise that they were to receive $1.50 a day, but when they started to work they received $1.40 a day or 14 cents an hour. These men are supposed to be the leaders of the strike and they are blamed for inducing others, all of whom are receiving $1.35 and $1.40 a day.

No attention was paid to the threats last night as it was not expected there would be trouble. At 6 o'clock this morning, however, the strikers assembled at the Seven Quarries crossing with two pickets of about 50 men each. Guards were stationed at the open hearth gates and at the coke ovens also.

The Italians were armed with heavy clubs, picks, shovels, iron bars, etc. One man carried a red flag. At first only those who looked like laborers were molested and told that they could not cross the track.

Later on men coming to business in the city were stopped and at 7 o'clock there were at least 200 workmen waiting to get into the works, not daring to pass the infuriated Italians. The police were telephoned for and in a few minutes a squad of officers arrived on the scene.

When they arrived they ordered the strikers to throw down their weapons and disperse and to allow the waiting laborers to go to work.

A number of workmen passed the Italians and the strikers then began to shout in their tongue and lift their weapons threateningly. The police waited no longer and started to disperse them by force.

After the police did considerable clubbing and arrested one or two they succeeded in quelling the disturbance and the strikers retired.

General Manager Shields, of the Steel Company, said that the strike might cause some temporary inconvenience, but it would not amount to much. Some of the strikers would not be taken back, but a majority would return if they wanted to. Mr. Shields says the cause of the strike was that the Italians claimed that they were not treated as well as the native laborers, the latter being given the preference in day work.

Alex. Carero, a workman at the steel plant, lost his life this morning while shunting cars. He was struck by a car and fell on the track. Several wheels passed over his body, mangleing it horribly. He died ten minutes afterwards. Carero belonged to Newfoundland.

FRANCE IN NEED OF MONEY ISSUES BONDS FOR $50,000,000

Animated Discussion in the Chamber of Deputies—the Government is Sharply Criticised—Minister Rouvier Claims the Borrowing is Only Temporary.

PARIS, March 2.—The delay in voting the budget has forced the government to introduce a bill providing for a provisional credit for a month's supplies to meet the March expenses. The bill also asks authorization for the issue of $50,000,000 short term treasury bonds to meet the deficits of the 1901-'02 budgets. The measure came up in the Chamber of deputies to-day and led to an animated debate, in which the government's financial policy was opposed and the government itself sharply criticised.

Finance Minister Rouvier, in replying to the criticisms, denied that the present Government was responsible for the country's financial situation. Deficits, he said, existed in all European countries except Italy, and how could it be otherwise while the nations were seeking to extend their military and naval powers to found new colonies and at the same time induce into their finances theories of human solidarity? M. Rouvier admitted that the issue of the treasury bonds was a sort of loan, but contended that it was only a temporary loan. He pointed out that between 1880 and 1890 nearly 400,000,000 of these bonds had been issued and all had been redeemed.

It was never intended, as was charged by the opposition, he said, to propose a loan for $240,000,000, and he would not resort to that expedient until he had done all in his power to avoid it. There were now in circulation $70,000,000 of treasury bonds, while the treasury had in hand $36,000,000. He concluded by asking for an immediate vote, and the Chamber adopted the bill by 370 votes to 87. The debate on the budget was then resumed, while the finance minister hurried to the Senate, which, after a brief debate, also passed the bill.

only a small, rounded mound showed where the grave lay, but we dug away the snow to make sure that we were right, and there, on the side of a huge boulder drawn from the neighboring woods, was the name—just the name—"Lampman," cut deep into the stone. A small headstone, only some inches in diameter, gave the date of his death, etc. One hated to disturb the snow that lay so white, so pure, and so undefiled over that great bit of rock. As the sleigh and its occupants drove on some distance to find a place to turn, I stood and looked at the peaceful scene and wondered how often Lampman had seen the exact picture which lay before me. A little hill to the west was bathed in blue shadows, the beech trees were almost purple against the flood of deep rose which just caught the top of the hill as the sun went down. To the north the ground sloped down and spruce and pine trees added to the intensity of the shadows. To the east one turned in amazement, for there the sky was curiously pale, and in it hung an immense pale moon, so pallid that the markings seemed outlined in charcoal. The bunch of deep crimson carnations I had placed on the stone seemed almost of velvet blackness in the midst of all this halo. Here it was, perhaps, that Lampman felt:

"A sense of my soul's strangeness, and its part In the dark march of human destiny. What am I, then, and what are they that pass, Yonder, and here and there, and there, and there?"

What shall they know of me, or I, alas! Of them? Little. At times, as if from sleep

We waken to this yearning, passionate mood, And tremble at our spiritual solitude."

There was something absolutely peaceful and strangely reassuring in the feeling that such a scene brought before one, and with the words of that beautiful verse, "We, Too, Shall Sleep," echoing in one's brain, one turned homeward, catching just a glimpse of what the poet has so exquisitely described as a "city with its sun-touched towers, a bunch of amethysts."—Cor.
