A Tribute To Two Island Ladies'

This is a beautiful Sunday morning with a real touch of Spring in the air. The whole atmosphere is surcharged with the things that make for a new approach to the new year of growth and hope in the recurring growth of life.

The funeral of Aunt Margaret yesterday marked the final episode in the life of a woman who had gone through from the cradle to the casket with the resolution and kindness of one who felt that life was a glorious experience where one could manifest the high ideals of womanhood in a kind and loving way. In her death she was the expression of that fine soul. Her countenance was so kind looking and so resigned to the last call, that one would think she was having a natural and deserved sleep of perfect satisfaction, with the knowledge she had served life in its fullest and finest measure.

The fine expression of sympathy and attendance was proof among her friends of the high esteem in which she was held. Even though her near relatives keenly felt the loss of a near and dear friend, they also felt, the Call from the Great Divide was the final and ultimate summons to the entrance behind the Veil that separates the material from the spiritual; the corrupt from the incorrupt; the secular from the sacred; the sorrowful from the joyous—the Veil that clothes the mortal with immortality and reveal the Portals of Paradise and the presence of God. In short, the transition from death to life.

The funeral of Mrs. Duncan Matheson, was a similar revelation of this transition, that transcends the ability of mortal mind to fully understand or describe. In each instance, the full flush of life seemed to express itself on the countenance of the departed. The fact, a shock, caused death, would explain this expression of full health almost to the instant of death.

So, in their fullness of life and the recurrent fitness of nature in its Springtime both Margaret MacDonald and Mrs. Duncan Matheson each of Forest Hill, were committed to the sustaining bosom of Mother Earth, the one in her native health, in Dundas, P. E. I., the other in that of her long resident abode in Marlborough, Mass.

Each, in their respective resting place, will await the spirit's Call to the resurrection in the Great Day of Final Judgment, when all shall answer that Call. With kindness and tenderness, the bosom of Mother Earth shall compose them in the interval, while their surviving friends and relatives shall mourn their departure amid their tenderest care and attention to their resting place.

Thus, from the cradle to the casket, we are all wending our way. The journey has varying lengths, and varying changes, and experiences. Infancy, childhood, youth, prime and age are on the march. Some are cut down by natural causes, others by violence; in the end, however, the ultimate awaits all—death and the resurrection.

Let us then be up and doing, With a heart for any fate; Still achieving, still pursuing, Learn to labor and to wait. PETER A. HILLY, 32 Westland Avenue, Boston, Mass., April 14, 1940. (Patriot please copy)
