UP TO DATE FARM.

A representative of The Guardian writes:—I was recently visiting the home of Mr. Joseph Noonan, the well known farmer of Albany and was received with the same generous hospitality, that Mr. Noonan has always shown to everybody. While there I was viewing his property and I believe Mr. Noonan to have one of the best conditioned farms in Prince County. He also owns some of the finest beef cattle and milk producing cows I have ever seen; his horses are of the best, large valuable percheron horses, especially one brood mare, that this year has thrown a foal second to none on the Island. Mr. Noonan is very much interested in the raising of hogs, and he has got a litter of young hogs this year, which is very hard to beat either for size or quality.

"Just between ourselves"—There's nothing to prevent you getting a Remington Typewriter whatever your machine may be—I can probably suggest a feasible plan whereby you can acquire one of these Standard makes. A. Milne Fraser, Halifax, N. S.

DAILY SELECTIONS FOR GUARDIAN READ

HANGING UP PICTURES.

A lady who occasionally used the elevator in a building devoted to business offices noticed that the walls of the little compartment were decorated with pictures. One day, when she chanced to be the only passenger, she spoke of them to the elevator boy.

"You like pictures, don't you?"

"Yes. You see I have to stay here so much of the time that I like to have something to look at," he explained.

He was not complaining of his place—it was the best he could have for the time—he had simply sought a way to lessen its monotony and give himself something pleasant to look at and think about. His car must move up and down all day with only the outlook of dark spaces and bare walls, but there was no reason why his eyes should not rest upon pictured mountains and ships at sea, or beautiful views of forest and lake. There is no need for a soul to be shut in that wills to be free. Our place may seem to be a narrow place, our daily work monotonous, but it is always possible to hang up beautiful pictures of imagination and memory, to have thoughts that open wide windows over the earth and toward the sky.

FUNNIOSITIES

Today's Great Thought.

A stitch in time saves embarrassing exposure.

* * *

Dimpled Darlings.

There was a young girl named Louisa,
A charming and beautiful tisa.
Her swain, lucky chap!
Used to call—such a snap!—
And squisa, and squisa, and squisa.

* * *

From the Foolish Dictionary.

Affinity—A complimentary term for your husband or your wife. Sometimes a synonym for "your finish."

Afterthought—A tardy sense of prudence that prompts one to try to shut his mouth about the time he has put his foot in it.

Angel—A heavenly ineligible, with wings and a harp; or, an earthly eligible, with money and a heart.

Alimony—An expensive soothing syrup, prescribed by the judge for a divorcee's bleeding heart. (Old spelling, allay money.)

Bachelor—From Latin baculus, a stick, unattached. Hence, an unattached man, which any lady may stick, stick to, or get stuck on.

Barber—A brilliant conversationalist, who occasionally shaves and cuts hair. Synonym for a phonograph.

Bargain—A disease common to women, caught in the Sunday papers and developed in department stores on Mondays. Symptoms, loud talk, pushing and shoving, a combination prize-fight and football scrimmage.

Baseball—A game in which the young man who strikes out for himself receives no praise for it.

Bigamy—A form of insanity in which a man insists on paying three board bills instead of two.

Borrow—To swap hot air for cold coin.

Brass Band—A clever though somewhat complicated arrangement for holding a crowd together.

Cavalry—That arm of the military service that engages in the real hostilities.

Cemetery—The one place where princes and paupers, porters and presidents are finally on the dead level.

Champagne—The stuff that makes the world goes round.

Chair—Four-legged aid to the injured.

Cinder—One of the first things to catch your eye in travelling.

Corset—From French, corps, shape, and sec. rough. Rough on the shape.

Den—A cavity; Dent, to punch; Dentist, one who punches the face and fills cavities.

Dickens—An author; also a polite term for the devil.

Discretion—An instructive perception that enables us to say, "Oh shut up!" to the small, weak man, and "I beg your pardon, but I do not entirely agree with your views," to the large, strong one.

An Exchange of Courtesies.

Two girls of high fashion, coming into an assembly room at Bath, met a citizen's fat wife quitting it. "Ah!" said one of them aloud, "there is beef a-la-mode going out." "Yes," answered the fat woman, "and there is game coming in."

* * *

The Real Sights.

"Bob," said a young fellow to his companion at a fancy fair, "you are missing all the sights on this side." "Never mind, Bill," retorted Bob, "I'm sighting all the misses on the other."

Quickly Done.

An old Dutch farmer, arrived at the dignity of a justice of the peace, has his first case of marriage. He said to the man: "Vell, you vants to be marrit do you? Vell, you lovish dis voman so goot as any voman answered the man. Then to the woman: "Vell do you like dis man so petter as any man you have seen?" She hesitated a little, and he repeated, "Vell, do you like him so vell as to be his vife?" "Yes, yes," she answered. "Vell dat ish all any reasonable man can expect. So you are marrit, I pronounce you man and vife." The man then asked what was to pay. "Noddings at all," was the farmer's reply—"you are welcome to it, if it will do you any goot."

The Value of Expert Evidence.

His Honor Judge Fitzpatrick, of the Supreme Court of this Province, has evidently little use for that extraordinary type of individual known as the expert. Said he in the Court on Saturday in the course of a trial then proceeding: "A good deal of expert evidence is way beyond the common sense and intelligence of the jury."

The Bitter Bit.

One of the "smarties" of this town, thinking he would have a little game at somebody else's expense, went the other day into a barber's shop, and asked the stuttering assistant: "Did you ever shave a monkey?" "No, Sir," said the boy; "but if you will s-s-s-sit down, I'll t-t-try."

* * *

Where Would He Be.

"Yes," said the storekeeper, "I want a good bright boy to be partly indoors and partly outdoors."

"That's all right," said the applicant; "but what becomes of me when the door slams?"

* * *

Of Course.

The following dialogue was overheard in one of the big dry goods stores in the city this week:

Smart Assistant:—"Stockings? Yes, ma'am. What number do you wear?"

Indignant Customer:—"What number? Why two, of course. Do you take me for a centipede?"

An Optical Vision.

There is a young fellow of our acquaintance in this city whose present overpowering ambition is to grow a moustache, and as may be imagined he makes himself pretty much of a bore on the subject. While the rest of the household were at breakfast a few mornings ago he came excitedly in and proudly called attention to a slight dark streak on his upper lip. "Jamie," interposed his mother reprovingly, "you have not washed your face this morning."

* * *

The Door.

An air of assurance distinguished the aunty young man who had appeared in answer to an advertisement for a clerk; but his manner did not commend him to the leather merchant.

Is there a good opening here for a young man who keeps his wits about him and does not care to begin at the bottom of the ladder?" asked the applicant, before the merchant had an opportunity to speak.

"Yes," he replied, after a comprehensive survey of his jaunty visitor, "there is. A thoughtful carpenter, foreseeing the appearance of just such young men, provided a good opening in the middle of that left-hand wall. Kindly make use of it."

Biliousness

is certainly one of the most disagreeable ailments which flesh is heir to. Coated tongue—bitter taste in the mouth—nausea—dizziness—these combine to make life a burden. The cause is a disordered liver—the cure Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They go straight to the root of the trouble, put the liver right, cleanse the stomach and bowels, clear the tongue and take away the bitter taste from the mouth.
