A WELL KNOWN RESIDENT DEAD.—A sad gloom was cast over Albertou South, on Sunday Dec 29th when it became known that the Angel of Death had claimed for its victim Sarah Matthews, aged seventy-one, widow of the late Capt. Daniel Fraser who predeceased her five years ago. Her death was due to pneumonia and all that medical skill and loving care could do was of no avail.

ANNUAL MEETING.—The Ladies Aid of the Sacred Heart parish held their annual meeting on the 8th inst. Reports of the year's work were given by the different officials, and were very satisfactory. A Veteran Horseman Gone

(Halifax Record).

The death of Dr. J. T. Jenkins, of Charlottetown, will be heard with the very deepest regret not only by horse men throughout the Provinces, but by all who attended the race meetings, particularly at Halifax and Charlottetown. The presence of this nono generian at the annual seven days' meetings at Halifax was always looked forward to. He always took his position in front of the judges' stand, where he was provided with a chair, and his presence added tone and dignity to the proceedings. He was a "young old man," always ready to joke and tell stories and discuss the horses and the races.

He was not only a favorite with the gatherings, but his beautiful mare Devilish Dorothy was also the greatest kind of favorite, particularly with the ladies and there never was a more popular victory than when "the Doctor" and Dorothy were winners. He was a most active man, making a trip to the North West only a few years ago, and the season before last drove in a race. He was still vigorous for his years at the last exhibition meeting in Charlottetown, and as usual drove his horse home every day from the races.

He has not only raced horses, but has done untold good for the breeding interests of the country, and particularly Prince Edward Island. He imported some richly bred stallions years ago which laid a foundation of breeding of strains which have proved so valuable to the horses of the island, and have made them so well known throughout the country. Of late years he has made purchases at the New York horse sale. His long life has been a great benefit to the horse and turf interests of the Maritime Provinces, and the memory of his deeds will be a monument to him among lovers of horses.

He will be missed by all his acquaintances and those who knew him to see him at the races. And Devilish Dorothy will miss him too; he treated her like a companion; he always visited her between the heats of the race; he fed her with apples and sweets, and if she could speak none could pay him a greater tribute.

Dr. Jenkins has lived a long life, and a life that has done much good. His family will have the deepest sympathy of everybody.

IN HOCKEY CIRCLES.—The Alberton Hockey Team is doing splendid work, as evident by the fact that they have accepted a challenge to play the Summerside Crystals here in Alberton on Thursday night the 23rd. No doubt this will be an exciting game as the ice is all that could be desired and the Regals—well wait and see! The first Regals looked real classy the other night in their new uniform of white and green.—D.

THE MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT.—Society of the Sacred Heart Parish, Alberton, held their first formal meeting on Monday evening the 13th inst, and despite the bad roads and inclement weather a goodly number of the members were present. Much credit is due our worthy moderator, Rev. Dr. Campbell for the forming of this society as the object of it is self explanatory. The first number on the programme was a violin selection by three of the members, followed by a very interesting reading by the secretary S. R. Burke, while the recitations and reading by the President, J. Foster White were very timely and appropriate. Rev. Dr. Campbell then gave a much appreciated address which was followed by a few gramophone selections kindly loaned for the occasion by Mr. Chas. Profit.—D.

SAYS LINENS TO BE VERY SCARCE No Relief for Two Years, Says Agent of Belfast Firm

"Much" married women, brides, and young ladies with matrimonial prospects would be wise to procure linens for the new home without delay for, according to a representative of Ireland Brothers, a large linen manufacturing concern in Belfast, Ireland, who is at present at the Windsor Hotel, there is a serious shortage of Irish linens, which scarcity will be felt in this country as soon as the retail dealers have exhausted their present supplies, purchased before war.

Speaking to The Star this morning this linen house representative stated that the purchaser of linens could at present buy very much cheaper from the retail merchant in this country than direct from the manufacturer in Ireland. The reason is that retail merchants have stocked heavily before the war and can thus afford to sell cheaper until their old stocks are exhausted.

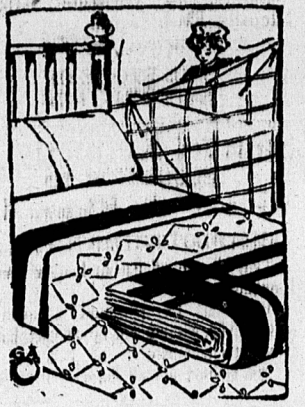

The present value of linen is 300 per cent. higher than in 1914, he stated, and it is likely to soar even a little higher, as linen will be very scarce for the next two years. At present the Government controls the linen trade in the Old Country but even if the Government were to release control the supply of linen would only be about one-third of the amount required. The reason for this scarcity, it was explained, is that before the war 90 per cent. of the flax used in Irish linens was grown outside of Ireland, principally in Russia and Belgium. While Ireland is now increasing the amount of home-grown flax, this takes time and in the meantime linens will consequently be scarce and therefore expensive.

TWO YEARS PROCESS.

At the end of two years it is likely that prices will gradually commence to go down again, as production of flax is increased. It takes two years to complete the process of linen manufacture from the growing of the flax to the final process that converts the raw material into the finished product.

Prices, it was stated, will never come down to the level of 1914 for the reason that wages are very much higher than at that time. Before the war labor was underpaid, a fact which the speaker deplored and attributed to the competition in the labor market of the foreign worker, the Austrian and German, who was willing to work at a considerably lower wage than the native Irishman. He expressed the opinion that it would be necessary to take steps to protect the native workers from the foreign element in the linen trade.
