Beautiful In Its Simplicity

(By Dominion News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 18.—Forty-seven bells, blending like the notes of an organ, pealed the soulful music of Chaplin's Funeral March far over the low-lying Leicestershire countryside around Loughborough.
More than 100,000 people thronging the streets of the small town stood silent with heads bowed. It was the town's remarkable tribute to the memory of 500 of its men who fell in the war.
A picturesque memorial tower of red brick, rising out of glistening white Portland stone to the green copper cupola 150 feet high, has been built on the border of the town. It was from this tower, and from what is said to be the most wonderful carillon in the world, that the bell music came.
Every bell, from the deep-toned giant weighing four tons to the midge of barely twenty pounds, responded like an orchestral part to the magic touch of Chevalier J. Denyn, the grey-haired carillonneur of Malines Cathedral. A Clavier in the belfry—a keyboard of levers—communicates by quivering wires with the bells, which are responsive to the player's most delicate touch.
The chevalier, and impressive figure as he stood at the clavier, held every one spellbound with the refrain of Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory." It might have been the crescendo of a mighty organ so full of feeling were the notes.
Mrs. Melba, the great singer, stood on the tiny platform near Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, who unveiled the memorial. She listened, evidently moved, and her lips seemed to be forming the words as the beautiful chimes rang out.
Below her were sad-faced mothers and fathers, young widows weeping quietly, and wondering children, who glanced down frequently at the medals pinned on their collars—tokens of sacrifices won by fathers some of them had never seen.
The achievement of this war memorial is full of wonderful human touches. The bells have cost $35,000, and the workpeople of the town saved one or two shillings, and in countless instances given a few pence, each week in order to raise the sum.
The bells were made in Loughborough, which is famous throughout the world for its bell-casting. The tower cost more than $50,000 to build.

War Memorial Made In Germany

(By Dominion News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 18.—Considering the history of the last nine years, it would be impossible, in my judgment, for most people to go into a church and not have their spirit of worship disturbed if they saw before them figures which they knew to have been made by Germans.
The observation was made by Chancellor North at Norwich, Constabulary Court when Mr. Hales, on behalf of the Rev. Robert Gordon Roe, rector of Blakeney, withdrew an application for a faculty for assembling all the war memorial tablets in one place in the church and for the erection of certain figures above them.
He proceeded with the application for a faculty for the erection of a rearedos in the church.
A. T. Chittock, who had opposed the application, said that to the erection of a rearedos there was no objection. So far as the war memorial was concerned, the rector and the war memorial committee were now in complete agreement.

Lenin's Book Destroyed

(By Dominion News Service)
RIGA, Aug. 18.—The first copies of Lenin's complete writings will not appear for sale in Moscow, as the entire edition has been ruined by heavy rains which flooded the basement of the storerooms of the state printing plant. The Soviet Press estimates the damage at $230,000.
In addition to Lenin's works much Communist propaganda was also destroyed.

Locksmith Who Posed as Count

(By Dominion News Service)
BERLIN, Aug. 18.—Few men have packed so much into 24 hours as has 'Count' von Hohenan. At eight o'clock on Tuesday evening he took a furnished flat. At nine o'clock he fell in love with a girl in the next flat. At ten o'clock they were engaged to be married. The next day there were festivities, including a wonderful dinner from a restaurant and oceans of champagne.
At six o'clock in the evening the police arrived. At seven o'clock 'Count' von Hohenan confessed that he was really a locksmith named Rauseh. At eight o'clock the engagement was broken off and the ex-fiance left for prison. He had stolen a motor-car, sold it for 200,000,000 marks (about $750), and had determined to enjoy one day of his life as an aristocrat.

HAMPTON AND VICINITY

The farmers around Hampton and vicinity have about finished haying and report a very fair crop considering the lateness of the season. The other crops are looking their best and give promise of a bountiful harvest.
Miss Minnie Inman, Hampton is visiting relatives in Summerside and Kensington.
Rev. R. H. Stavert, Hunter River preached very acceptably to an appreciative audience in Hampton Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 12th. During the service he also rendered a solo "Wonderful Peace" which was greatly enjoyed by all present.
The Misses Annie and Cecelia MacDonald, Bridgewater, Mass are visiting relatives in Crapaud and Hampton.
The exterior of Hampton school is being repainted and when finished will be very pleasing in appearance and will add to the attraction of the village.
Our new merchant, Mr. Lloyd Moreside is receiving the patronage of his many customers in and around Hampton. We wish him every success in his new line of business.
The lobster packers of Victoria and Tryon are busy preparing for the coming late season. We hope they may secure a plentiful supply of redbacks.
Our two popular new millers, Mr. Finley Ferguson and Percy Delaney are each doing a rushing business. Their many friends wish them every success.
Capt. Dan Ferguson who is loading his schooner with coal at Pictou paid a flying visit to his home in Hampton recently. On his return he was accompanied by his young son "Jimmy" who will no doubt enjoy his trip very much.
Dr. and Mrs. Galvin, Providence R. I. are spending their holidays in Hampton, the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Haslam.
Mr. Chester Shaw, DeSable attended the horse races at New Annan on Wednesday. Chester is a good sport and we feel sure he would enjoy a days outing.
Rev. M. J. and Mrs. MacPherson the "Mansie", Hampton leave this week to spend a well earned vacation with friends in other parts of the Island.
The Kirk of DeSable is undergoing repairing and painting and when completed it will look very beautiful, as it is situated in one of the beauty spots of the community.
Cupid has been very busy of late in and around Hampton and has struck the hearts of several of our young people, consequently a number of early autumn weddings are looked forward to.
As haying is about completed the people around here are looking forward to having a few hours of pleasure in the form of attending picnics and other entertainments which are announced to take place shortly.

GREEN FEED AND ITS VALUE.

The utilization of green feed in some form is rapidly becoming recognized as the most economical method of stock feeding. Not only can more live stock be kept per acre, but it can be fed at proportionately less cost. For example, on the experimental farm, at Nappan fifty head of dairy cows were carried through the summer season on twenty-five acres of pasture (twenty of which was very rough, poor pasture), by the aid of a green feed from four acres. There was no appreciable decrease in the milk flow, other than the natural falling-off toward the end of the lactation period; rather, the cows were in good healthy condition in the fall.
Oats, peas and vetch, when sown together, make an excellent mixture for green feed for dairy cows, because it is rich in protein and carbohydrates.
Green feed will do much to reduce the cost of rearing calves. Ten pounds of good oats peas and vetch have approximately the equivalent in feeding value of three pounds of ground oats. In other words, if oats are worth from oats, peas and vetch would have a feeding value of $11 per ton.

When green feed in the form of clover, rape and oats, peas and vetch is provided for our brood sows we are able to reduce the meal ration from six pounds per head per day to three pounds, which is a saving in mill feeds of three pounds per day, or 5 cents per a sow per day. The following method is adopted for supplying green feed, for pigs:—A small area near the piggery is sown with common red clover and with a cover crop of oats. As the oats reach the milk stage they are cut and fed to pigs in pens. The clover will come on early in the following spring and be fit to pasture off by the middle of June. Two more small paddocks are sown with rape as early in May as the soil is fit to work. This is usually ready for pasturing from the first to the middle of July. A third paddock is sown to oats peas and vetch. This is cut and fed to pigs in pen, being ready about the last of July. In this way there is provided a continuous supply of green feed for the brood sows and growing pigs throughout the greater part of the season. Oats peas and vetch are mixed as follows:—Banner oats, 1 1/4 bushels; Gold Vine peas, 3/4 bushels; vetch, 1/2 bushel; and sown at the rate of 8 bushels per acre. Rape is sown at the rate of 8 pounds per acre, broadcast. Common red clover is seeded at the rate of 10 to 12 and alsike at the rate of 2 to 3 pounds per acre. It is not a good plan to turn the pigs in on the oats, peas and vetch, as there is too much waste from tramping. In feeding the rape, allow the pigs two or three hours per day at first; later they may be allowed full range of paddock. If the practice of growing green feed for stock is once established, its value as economical stock feed will soon become apparent.

Guide Posts of Business

RIDING along an unfamiliar road, you depend upon sign posts to guide you. Whether you're hitting the thank-you-mams in a flivver or soaring along in a costly car, they do their work equally well.

To-day, as you spend your money to fill your needs, advertisements are waiting to direct you. They are the guide posts of business. They point the short, straight road to satisfaction in buying. They will serve you well, whether you spend much or little.

Do you stop to read the advertisements? They are published to tell you exactly where to go for what you want. They lead you to values of which you would never know were they not there to guide you.

And remember that advertising always points out goods of unquestioned value. When a store or manufacturing concern puts its name on goods and tells you about them, you may be sure that they are worth consideration. It does not pay to advertise unworthy merchandise.

Be guided by the advertisements
