MANY complaints by citizens have lately been made to The Guardian regarding dead animals being left to decay and poison the atmosphere in different parts of the city. There is good cause for the complaints, and it appears as if there was delay in removing these nuisances. But citizens should remember that the proper course to pursue is to leave a complaint with the City Clerk at the City Hall. If this is done the trouble will probably be removed without delay; if not The Guardian will give the subject any necessary free advertising it may require.
